DRIVE ALLIES BACK AT SEVERAL POINTS

Paris, Oct. 5.—(3:02 p. m.)—The following official statement was given out in Paris this afternoon:

"On our left wing, to the north of Oise, the battle continues with great violence. The result remains indecisive. We have been obliged, at certain points, to yield ground.

"Along the remainder of the front there has been no change.

"In Russia, after a battle which lasted ten days, the German army which was operating between the Eastern Prussian front and the Nieman river has been driven back along the entire line and made its retreat abandoning a considerable quantity of war material.

"This army has evacuated completely the territory of the Russian provinces of Suwalki and Lonja."

The Figaro says that France has protested to Holland that German merchants are using their flag to carry contraband and that Holland, after investigating, announced that the complaints were justified. It is believed, says the Figaro, that a state of siege will be proclaimed in Rotterdam to end the trade in contraband.

The Servian Claims.

A Havas agency dispatch from Nish brings the following official statement from the Servian war office:

"Servian troops in Bosnia have approached the fortifications protecting Sarajevo (the capital). The Austrians, who occupy the heights on the right bank of the Drina, are suffering from lack of provisions.

"On Oct. 2, near Klenant on the Save, the Austrians attacked their own troops."

Today's War News Given in Summary.

The allies have been obliged to give ground at certain points on the western side of the battle line. This was announced in a statement issued by the French war office at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The announcement is brief, containing only the additional information that the battle continues with great violence to the north of the Oise without decisive results and that there is no change on the remainder of the front.

A wireless dispatch from Berlin today brings a long German official statement in which, however, there is no reference whatever to the great engagement in which the allies are attempting to turn the German right wing in northern France and reach the German line of communication to Belgium.

The German war office declares that in the siege of Antwerp forts Lierre, Waelhem and Konigshoyckt have been taken, opening the way for an attack on the inner circle of fortifications and the city proper.

Belgian's denials that any of their forts had fallen came from Antwerp, by way of London, yesterday and again today an official Belgian announcement, which passed through the hands of the British censor, declares that the situation of the fortified positions around Antwerp remains unchanged today.

The German war office says the Russian left wing was defeated after a furious battle of two days on the Niemen river.

There has been nothing official from Petrograd, but the most recent reports, official and unofficial, from the Russian capital, set forth that the German and Austrian forces all along the fighting area from the Baltic to Hungaria were being checked, driven back or routed.

The returns of the German imperial bank last week are described in a Beroin dispatch as showing an increase in specie of $10,250,000 over the last previous report.

The German infantry have appeared in the fighting in the territory of Kiao Chow, China. Tokio announces a surprise night attack by infantry from Tsing Tau, but says that attack was repulsed. Fighting between the land and naval ferces at Kiao Chow continues.

The Servians still claim to be about to capture Sarajevo, the capital of the Austrian province of Bosnia. War headquarters at Nish announce that Servian troops have approached the fortifications of the city.

An official report from Vienna says that the Austrians are driving the Servian and Montenegrin invaders from East Bosnia and that two Montenegrin brigades were repulsed after a severe engagement lasting two days.

BIG LOT OF WORK AHEAD

Wilson Outlining Program for Congress Far in Advance.

But Does Not Believe Extra Sessions Will Be Necessary.

Washington, Oct. 5.—Outlining the legislative program for the remainder of the session of congress, President Wilson told caliers today that no extra session in November was contemplated. He added that only some extraordinary emergency would necessitate an extra session following adjournment of the short session in March.

The president said the war tax bill, the Clayton anti-trust bill and the Alaska coal leasing bill would complete the important work for the present session and that when these bills were disposed of he saw no reason why an adjournment should not be taken. October 15 is the date tentatively agreed upon.

Asked about the threat of Representative Henry of Texas, to fight against an adjournment until cotton relief measures were passed, the president said that the membership of the house other than Mr. Henry would decide when to adjourn.

Next Session's Program.

For the next session the program as outlined by the president include the Alexander ship purchase bill, the Philippine bill, the General leasing bill, the general land bill, the general dam bill and the usual appropriation bills. Regarding the presidential primary bill, which he advocates, the president said today that he had held several conferences on the subject and had found there would be great complexity in framing the details in order not to conflict with state election laws. He declared it would be difficult to complete the legislation this congress but that he was still at work on the subject.

WILL ENDORSE THEM ALL FOR RE-ELECTION.

Washington, Oct. 5.—President Wilson was understood today to be preparing a letter endorsing for re-election all democratic members of the house, urging the necessity of retaining the democratic majority in congress to

RUSH AMERICAN HORSES FOR WAR

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 5.—J. S. McFayden, general manager of the Herr's Island stockyards, today was notified by the Pennsylvania railroad to prepare to handle 1,000 horses tomorrow, feeding and watering and unloading them for a rest of five hours. They are being brought from East St. Louis and are on their way to New York where they will be shipped to Europe by the British government. Nine thousand more are to follow as rapidly as they can be handled. The horses are traveling in special trains, fifty cars to the train.

East St. Louis, Ill., Oct. 5.—British agents resumed the buying of horses today. They have orders to buy 10,000 head and have placed an order with one local firm for seven hundred a week. The French are buying horses at the rate of 350 a day.

WEAVE NET OF STEEL ABOUT GEN. VON KLUCK

London, Oct. 5.—(1:15 p. m.)—The fact that fighting is in progress in and around the town of Douai, midway between Arras and Valenciennes on the railroad to Mons, is taken in London to show how surely the allies in northern France have pushed the forward movement they hope will envelop Gen. von Kluck, the commander of the German right wing, in a net of steel.

For the past week the Germans, so far as can be ascertained from the few facts known in London, have been vainly hurling themselves against different points in the allied line in an effort to discover a weak mesh in the net. At the present time, in the view of Gen. Joffre, commander in chief of the French forces, the process of attrition has gone far enough to justify the resumption of offensive movements on the part of the allies as is announced in the last communication from French headquarters.

Apparently the intention now is to attempt something decisive against the German right wing and if possible bring to an end this contest which for magnitude and stubbornness is without precedent in history.

The series of high lands stretching north and south along the allied left are the master keys of the battle, and a considerable force from over-seas and elsewhere has been pushed up to secure control of them.

At Soissons the German trenches already have been captured, but the Germans continue to fight fiercely and are still attacking at this point as elsewhere along the entire line of battle which their latest official report asserts is going well in their favor just as confidently as Gen. Joffre maintains the contrary.

English observers, to be contemplating a period of defense before undertaking the offensive. They are busily engaged between Thorn, in Eastern Prussia, and Galicia in entrenching themselves against the Russian hosts gathering on the other side of the frontier. It is calculated that there is no fewer than four million fighting men in this eastern arena and a repetiton of the long and arduous siege battles which have been such a feature of the struggle in France seems a certainty.

The Russian plans to push eastward on Cracow evidently with the hope of getting thence to Breslau, and they go on stretching their tenacles out southward toward Budapest. The Cossacks are well in on the plains of Hungary. Even Budapest admits that they have crossed the river Theiss, which was regarded as one of the main obstacles to their progress.

The Austrians claim further victories against their smaller enemy invading Bosnia, but they are silent on the subject of Sarajevo, which, according to Servian and Montenegrin statements, is surrounded by their allied armies.

NO TROUBLE IN ANY WAY

Mr. and Mrs. Barney Borkenstein Arrive from Germany.

Fort Wayne Man Denies Rumored Detention by Military Authorities.

Barney Borkenstein, 2532 John street, former member of the Fort Wayne city council and a well known contractor, is back from war-stricken Europe, accompanied by Mrs. Borkenstein, and the two enjoy an unusual distinction in the fact that although they were in Germany from the time hostilities were commenced until Sept. 23, they suffered no hardships.

They were not questioned, nor detained, had no trouble getting all the money they needed and just when they needed it, had plenty to eat, a good place to sleep every night and the couple would have remained longer but for the fact that the good wife became uneasy and homesick and wanted to get back to Fort Wayne.

Mr. Borkenstein entered a laughing denial to the fact that he was detained by the military authorities. A report to this effect had attained circulation in Fort Wayne. "Why, I talked to the police every day, ate with them and I would have been over there yet but my wife got homesick and I had to come with her as she could not come alone. It was so interesting over there that I

SAYS ENGLAND WILL FORCE PORTUGAL IN

Berlin, Oct. 5.—(By Wireless to Sayville, L. I.)—British ships have arrived at Lisbon and are probably destined to transport Portuguese troops, says an official report from the German army headquarters today. It continues:

"Portugal's co-operation in the war is imminent, the mobilization of the Portuguese forces, it is said, having been ordered on the demand of the British government.

"According to a statement made by his eminence, Cardinal Beldinger, the highest Roman Catholic authority in Bavaria, the statement appearing in English and American newspapers that priests have been shot and bayonetted by German soldiers, while attending the wounded in Belgium, are to be considered as absolutely without foundation. This also declared that English newspaper correspondents overlook the fact that a large portion of the Germany army is Roman Catholic.

"A manifesto signed by Harnack, Bode, Behring, Hauptmann, Klinger, Sudermann, Roentgen, Fulda, Deissmann, Humperdinck, Liebermann, Mansel, Lieszt, Thoma and Wund and other prominent savants and artists indignantly protests against what is termed unceasing lies about the pretended barbarous warfare of the Germans.

"The American commission has addressed a letter to Franz Mendelsohn and the German American relief committee highly praising the German nation in arms and thanking them for innumerable proofs of kindness."

"The force of native troops from British India, which recently landed at Marseilles, has left that port for the northward.

"British ships have arrived at Lisbon and are probably destined to transport Portuguese troops."

DEAD BESTREW BATTLE FIELD

New York, Oct. 5.—Lieutenant A. Ellicott Brown, U. S. A., who visited the battlefield of the Meuse after the fighting, reached New York today aboard the steamship Minnetonka with a vivid description of the battlefield. So great had been the carnage, he said, that within a radius of 600 yards he saw 1,000 dead Germans.

The bayonet charges of the allies, he said, were responsible for the great slaughter as the German soldiers were so strongly entrenched that they could be dislodged in no other way.

"I saw Captain Parker of the United States army while I was in France," Lieut. Brown said, "and he told me that the German army's retreat from its near approach to Paris had been a perfect military movement and that he had seen but one dead German left behind."

The German soldiers are friendly to the French peasants, he said, and he found no trace of atrocities although he had heard much about them.

JACK'S $50,000 BOND FORFEITED

Chicago, Oct. 5.—The $50,000 bail bonds of Jack JoJohnson, the prize fighter, were forfeited in the United States district court, but the government is said to have a poor chance of collecting.

The bonds were provded by the late Matthew Baldwin, whose estate is insolvent, and Johnson's mother, also said to be unable to pay.

The bonds were furnished to guarantee Johnson's appearance today for retrial on charges that he violated the Mann act in transporting Belle Schreiber from Pittsburg to Chicago. He was convicted on the first trial, but error was discovered by the court of appeals.

Antwerp, Belgium, Oct. 5.—(Via London, 4:03 p. m.)—According to official announcement made here today the situation of the forts around Antwerp remains today without change.

THOUGHT SERMON NOTES WERE CODED

London, Oct. 5.—Albert Williams, pastor of the Maverick Congregational church at Boston, has reached London after arrest and imprisonment in Brussels at the hands of the German military authorities on the charge of being an English spy and with trying to buy information concerning the movement of German troops. Notes made by Mr. Williams in a French dictionary for a sermon on the horrors of war fell into the hands of the abbreviated form in which they had been set down.

He was not permitted to communicate wth Brand Whitlock, the American minister in Brussels. Finally he persuaded a German student that he was not a spy and he managed to get a letter to Mr. Whitlock, who brought about his release.

LOSS OF LIFE IS ENORMOUS

TREMOR IS NOTED AT OTHER POINTS

Centers of Smyrnan Carpet Industry Suffer Very Heavily.

Smyrna, Asiatic Turkey, Sunday, Oct. 4.—(Via London, Oct. 5.)—1:13 p. m.—The towns of Isbarta (population about 25,000) and Burdur (population about 12,000) in the province of Konia, were severely damaged by an earthquake last night at midnight.

The loss of life was very heavy. These two towns are centers of the carpet industry.

A dispatch from Fort de France, island of Martinique, received in New York last Saturday, said that shortly after 1 o'clock that day a severe earthquake shock was felt at Fort de France. The direction was from north to south. No damage was done locally.

The same shock was recorded also through the Windward and Leeward islands.

Wilson and Harvey Hold a Peace Conference at White House.

Washington, Oct. 6.—President Wilson and George Harvey, former editor of Harper's Weekly, but now of the North American Review, whose controversy over the support of Harper's Weekly furnished one of the chief incidents of Mr. Wilson's campaign for the presidency, celebrated "peace Sunday" yesterday by a harmony meeting at the white house. It was their first meeting since their talk in 1911 in the presence of Henry Watterson, editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal whose attacks on Mr. Wilson caused Mr. Harvey to withdraw his support from Mr. Wilson for the presidential nomination.

Mr. Harvey called at the white house at the invitation of Mr. Wilson to discuss the European situation and the fall campaign. In the last issue of his magazine, Mr. Harvey praised the president's attitude since the outbreak of war in Europe and suggested that he wait patiently for the psychological moment to urge peace. He also advocated the election of a democratic senate and house in November.

The president and Mr. Harvey remained in conference for more than an hour in the president's study. It was said at the white house later that the meeting was most friendly and that the past difference was not referred to.

Mr. Harvey said he had called at Mr. Wilson's request "to discuss public questions, principally the European situation," and that "as a matter of course," the talk was friendly.

The white house meeting followed a conference between Mr. Harvey, Mr. Tumulty, the president's secretary; Frederick Lynch, democratic national committeeman from Minnesota, and Thomas Pence, of the National committee's publicity bureau. The fall campaign was discussed.

GERMANS ROUTED, RUSSIANS CLAIM

London, Oct. 5.—(10:10 a. m.)—Russian reports indicate that the German offensive towards the Nieman river from the East Prussian frontier has ended in a German rout after the battle of Augustowo, which has been under way since Sept. 25.

If these reports are true it means that not only has Gen. Rennenkampff been given an opportunity to resume offensive, but the important fortress of Ossowetz has been relieved from investment.

An official message from the commandant of the German fortresses at Koenigsberg, however, directly contradicts the Russian report and the Berlin version of the fighting, while it does not localize it as particularly as the Russian report, maintains that the Germans along the East Prussian frontier have generally been victorious.

As was expected, subsequent reports have discredited the rumor that the Russians were investing Cracow. It was hardly possible for Muscovite forces to have reached there such a short time, but a report that Cossacks have reached the neighborhood of Cracow is distinctly credible and the famous Russian cavalry is showing an ability to cover the same wide field of operations as the Uhlans in the western war area.

While the allies in the west are congratulating themselves upon the excellence of the railway service which enabled them to bring up all the necessary transports and reinforcements, the Russians in East Prussia are suffering from a lack of such facilities. No matter how great the Russian invading host proves to be, physical conditions alone would prevent any duplication of the wonderful march of the German forces through Belgium and northern France. Fighting is reported around Doubai, fifteen miles east-northeast of Arras, and if this is true Gen. von Kluck is in a dangerous predicament as he has been since the allies began their determined movement to turn the German right in northern France.

A lull befitting the day apparently prevailed Sunday along most of the great battle front. The anxiety over the French situation at St. Mihiel evidently has been greatly relieved, probably by the movement which threatens the rear of the crown prince's army.

It now seems certain that the forts in the outer rim of the Antwerp defense are still occupied by the defenders, but these must have suffered greatly. The desperate efforts on the part of the Germans to cross the river Nethe, where their advance lines rest, have been repulsed. Along this line one of the great German siege guns is said to have been lost in a swamp. If this is true it is a serious disaster to the Germans for the huge weapons are not easy to replace. The latest reports from the besieged city indicate that two attempts of the Germans to cross the river Nethe have been smothered by the defenders' artillery.

TO ORGANIZE BY DISTRICT

Veteran Soldiers to Hold Meeting at Lagrange on Thursday.

Joseph Kickley, of Fort Wayne, has issued a call for a meeting of all veteran soldiers to be held at Lagrange on Thursday, October 8, for the purpose of forming a district organization.

"We veterans are dropping off rapidly," said Mr. Kickley to The Sentinel. "It will soon be impossible to hold regimental or company reunions, because too few of the old boys will be left. The plan is to form a district organization of old soldiers, whether they be members of the G. A. R. and kindred soldier organizations or not, in order that we may maintain an organization longer. Every veteran in the Twelfth congressional district is urged to attend and members of his family are also invited."

Twenty-Third Battery.

The twenty-eighth annual reunion of the twenty-third Indiana battery will be held in the assembly room of the court house in Fort Wayne Thursday morning, October 8, at 10:30 o'clock.

RETAIL MERCHANTS WILL MEET.

An important meeting of the Retail Merchants' association will be held at the Commercial club Monday evening. The new officers will be in charge at the meeting. All members should attend.

EATON WILL LIVE TO FACE A TRIAL

New York, Oct. 5.—Physicians at the hospital where he was taken on Wednesday night, after he had been shot by detectives from whom he was trying to escape, said last night that Herbert Eaton, the young clerk who, thinking he was on his death bed, confessed, according to the police, to thefts involving about $20,000, of which jewelry valued at $15,000 was taken from Miss Mariah Kohn, will live to stand trial. On Saturday it was thought that Eaton had only a few days to live.

Eaton began to show signs of recovery, the physicians say, after his wife had visited him and promised to make a new start with him as soon as his troubles are over.

ADDS $200 TO RED CROSS FUND.

Entertainment by Allied German Societies Big Success.

The benefit entertainment given Sunday evening at Turner hall under the auspices of the allied German societies of the city, was a decided success. About $200 was realized from the event and this sum will be added to the Red Cross fund now being raised.

The musical program which was appropriate for the occasion, was excellent. The Moose band made the hall ring with martial and patriotic airs of the Germans, and young Herbert Frankenstein played upon his violin.

Following the music, Henry Meyer introduced Attorney Otto Fuelber, the first speaker of the evening. Mr. Fuelber spoke about the titanic struggle now in progress on the continent of Europe, and urged his audience to aid the German cause in every manner permissible to citizens of a neutral nation. He pointed out the many ties of kinship and friendship which binds the German-Americans to the fatherland.

Attorney William Fruechtenicht followed with an eloquent address in which he referred to the one-sided reports which the American newspapers receive, due to the fact that the German cable was cut by the allies.

The gymnastic exercises of the active Turners, the tableau "Germania," exhibitions by members of the Landwehr and the Concordia, Saxonia and Kreis Stolzenau singing societies were exceedingly good.

Sweet potatoes may be said to be the staple crop of China. There is no section which does not raise them, and they are a substantial part of the diet of a greater part of the Chinese people.

In the home of an old German who died in Davenport, Wash., there has been found a Bible 219 years old and a set of silver dating back to 1733. Both of them will be sold at auction.

INDIANS DISPERSE MOB.

Braves in Feathers and Blankets Put I. W. W. Itinerants to Flight.

Glasgow, Mont., Oct. 5.—Indians in feathers and blankets fell upon and dispersed Industrial Workers of the World itinerants, whose clashes Saturday cost four lives. The Indians' work was bloodless so far as could be learned. The Indian police from a reservation near Poplar, Mont., were called upon and responded, with a number of braves who had been hastily deputized. Action was in progress and all were gaudy with paint and decorations.

It was learned that Saturday's troubles arose from internal dissentions and that one bullet which killed A. J. Giantvalley, a civil engineer of St. Paul, Minn., was a stray one. The three other men killed were members of the band.

SLAIN IN STREET DUEL.

Man Who Shot Indian Attorney at Durant, Okla., Makes Escape.

Durant, Okla., Oct. 5.—S. J. Homer, an attorney, was shot and instantly killed here today in a revolver duel on a main street. The man who is said to have done the shooting escaped.

Homer was one of the leading Indians of the state, having been formerly national secretary of the tribal government of the Choctaw nation.

DOESN'T KNOW HOW TO SLEUTH

But Seattle Police Chief is Big Success as a Peace-Keeper.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 5—Chief of Police Austin F. Griffiths of this city is probably the most learned police executive in Amercia today.

He doesn't know a great deal about the fine art of sleuthing, the best make

of handcuffs or any of the old-time qualifications thought essential for the head of a police department.

But Griffiths, a lawyer incidentally, knows a lot about playground movements, social conditions in his city, is an expert on forms of city government, espousing the commission form, and on what the average man ought to have in the charter to give him a square deal.

Twice a member of the city council, Chief Griffiths was the most surprised man in town when he was made head of police by Mayor Hiram Gill, who "came back" after being recalled, and whom he had opposed as mayoralty candidate—twice.

When Mayor Gill tendered the chieftaincy to Griffiths he turned the proposition down. But the next day the telephone bore to him such an overhelming demand on the part of the people to accept that he changed his decision.

It is unsual for police chiefs to sit in deliberation on proposed city charter revisions, but that is what Chief Griffiths has been doing recently, and what is probably more important and significant, he was strongly against the plan submitted by the charter revision committee, calling for 30 councilmen who could be empowered to appoint a city manager.

In addition to this, under the proposed plan, the city would have a mayor to look after the social functions of the city.

That's a bit too flossy for studious and terribly-in-earnest Griffiths, whose attitude is "social functions be hanged until better social conditions for All of Seattle's people have been secured." He says the 30-ward plan is a step backward—an encroachment upon direct government by the people. Substantial things first, for Chief of Police Griffiths, and ornamental matters afterward.

And the people are inclined to agree with him meanwhile holding him up to other cities as a model sort of man to have as police executive.

Fantastic Twists in Fall Sashes

There's no end to the fantastic twists Dame Fashion gives the sash which invariably trims the new fall gowns. Some of them are long, most of them are wide, some are adjustable, and a few of them form a drapery for the gown—and not all of them are either becoming or graceful.

One of the very latest models is shown in the illustration. It is of the same material as the gown and it is drawn from the bust line in the front diagonally over the hips and fastened in the back with a large white velvet buckle.

The short waisted coat is another of the season's novelties which offer a welcome break in the monotony of long-coated costumes.

THE SENTINEL'S DAILY SCRIPTURE READING.

11 Chronicles 6:1,11.

1 Then said Solomon, The Lord hath said that he would dwell in the thick darkness.

2 But I have built an hourse of habitation for thee, and a place for thy dwelling for ever.

3 And the king turned his face, and blessed the whole congregation of Israel: and all the congregation of Israel stood.

4 And he said, Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, who hath with his hands fulfilled that which he spake with his mouth to my father David, saying,

5 Since the day that I brought forth my people out of the land of Egypt I chose no city among all the tribes of Israel to build an house in, that my name might be there; neither chose I any man to be a ruler over my people Israel:

6 But I have chosen Jerusalem, that my name might be there; and have chosen David to be over my people Israel.

7 Now it was in the heart of David my father to build an house for the name of the Lord God of Israel.

8 But the Lord said to David my father, Forasmuch as it was in thine heart to build an house for my name, thou didst well in that it was in thine heart:

9 Notwithstanding thou shalt not build the house; but thy son which shall come forth out of thy loins, he shall build the house for my name.

10 The Lord therefore hath performed his word that he hath spoken: for I am risen up in the room of David my father, and am set on the throne of Israel, as the Lord promised, and have built the house for the name of the Lord God of Israel.

11 And in it have I put the ark, wherein is the covenant of the Lord, that he made with the children of Israel.

Report on Flood Prevention

The Sentinel's telegraph columns on Saturday carried the story of the filing of a preliminary report on state-wide flood prevention by the engineer of the Indiana flood commission that is of especial interest in Fort Wayne. It discloses that while the engineers have done a great deal of work, very much more of study and examination and planning is going to be required before a physical start at flood prevention can be attempted on any considerable scale.

The report contains a summary of recommendations regarding the engineer's part of the work of the commission in which the following are advocated: The employment of a publicity agent; the publication of a resume of the information obtained by the investigation; field trips to determine the status of county bridge openings and other local flood problems; that the legislature be asked to co-operate with the United States geological survey for a topgraphical map and stream gaugings; that the service of the commission be offered to communities in flood protection plans; that legislation be recommended providing control of bridge openings by some state authority.

It is apparent that further definite action in the matter of flood prevention is going to depend largely on the new legislature which will convene in January next. Chairman Shirk, of the flood commission, will formulate the findings for presentation to the legislature with recommendations as to how he believes the commission can be of assistance to that body in dealing with the problem. It is now highly important to secure the election of a legislature which will take up the question in a broad-gauge way and in deep earnestness.

Edison is reported to have demonstrated to the Portland Cement Co., and other manufacturers in the United States that it would be a gain and not a loss to give their 30,000 workmen a free Sunday. He argued that the workmen would be more effective on six days for rest on the seventh, and that the kilns could be more advantageously handled with a six-day week than a seven-day week. In case of his own cement works he proved the argument by actual practice, finding that by discontinuing Sunday operations he materially increased the daily output, while the men's health improved.

However splendid they may be as fighters, it must be admitted that judged by the reports we get from the present war in Europe, nothing can approach the achievements of some of the contestants as claimers. On almost any good day for war news one can find any particular shade, tint and hue of war information for which he may chance to be looking—except the peace kind.

Now it is declared that many Indiana real estate men are strongly in favor of requiring all men engaged in the business to pay a state license for the privilege. With nearly everybody else protesting against the payment of licenses and taxes of one sort and another, the attitude of the real estate men has some of the earmarks of the dawn of the millenium.

More power to that Indianapolis grand jury which is taking up the investigation of bill-juggling in the last legislature. The public is entitled to know just who is responsible, to the end that the guilty may be punished and the guiltless freed from the tinge of unjust charge and despicable innuendo. And it is highly important that these facts come out without delay.

What? You haven't registered yet? Well, the registration polls do not close until 9 o'clock this evening. There may yet be time—if you hurry.

Crisis Indicated.

Washington Post: "The shutting down of news from the front is universally regarded as indicating that the crisis of the battle of the Aisne has been reached. Clearly, the end can not be far off."

The Result.

Philadelphia Press: "Any hour may bring news which will definitely determine the result of this appallingly bloody battle. On that result hangs the fate of Germany's first campaign in France."

Losses Tremendous.

Syracuse Post-Standard: "The losses in this greatest of battles have been tremendous. In proportion to the number of men involved, however, they are not so great as in the battles of recent wars."

Continued Slaughter.

Pittsburg Dispatch: "A cool observer will probably begin to entertain the suspicion that the combat in this quarter has reached the stage of continued slaughter without any decisive results, one way or the other."

Test of Endurance.

Boston Advertiser: "Whether or not it prove the sixteenth decisive battle of the world, the three weeks battle is the most stupendous test of human endurance in recorded history."

Direful Possibilities.

Syracuse Journal: "The situation is full of the most direful possbilities for the vanquished in this particular engagement that has known no abatement night or day. It is a titanic struggle."

Early Conclusion.

Pittsburg Sun: "There is a promise of early conclusion from the London official press bureau, which may be based on knowledge of heavy reinforcements to General French. Otherwise the prediction is of no value."

Still Indecisive.

Syracuse Herald: "If we balance the contradictory statements, we must reach the general conclusion that the continuous engagement is still indecisive. The desperateness of the fighting is commensurate with the gravity of the military issues immediately at stake."

MIND MALADIES.

(Ohio State Journal.)

When one gets sick, especially in the digestive and sympathetic region of his being, and doesn't know whether it was stale food, or too much of it, or scant chewing, or bad cooking, that brought calamity to his door, let him go behind the returns and ask himself if he has been angry and impatient or in any way mentally excited, and he may then come close to the cause of his malady. One must not think that all disease can be traced back to some sort of substance or some physical disturbance. He is as likely to find it in his mind, in the form of anger, fear, hatred, or meanness of any sort. Ill treatment of a wife, a child or a friend is very often the cause of indigestion or kidney trouble. Men have been known to have lost their appetite when they lost their temper.

So it is one of the most pressing of hygienic suggestions that a person keep his temper and not rush into a mad spell if he would stay well. It is most always the case that a person who is calm, gentle, kindly and courteous to others is not afflicted with indigestion.

BOTH PRISONER AND PATIENT.

Trousers as Death Rope Prove Failure for New York Man.

New York, Oct. 5.—Charged with having tried to kill himself, John Borgi, 23 years old, of 60 Scammel street, was both prisoner and patient in Bellevue the other night.

Borgi was arrested in the restaurant of Benjamin Goldman, at 597 Water street, on the complaint of the owner of the place, who said Borgi had become violent and had broken dishes and furniture. Soon after he had been put in a cell in the Madison street police station Borgi was found hanging. He had taken off his trousers, made a noose of one leg and fastened the other to the top of the cell door. Patrolman Dugan and a doorman took him down. Then Borgi butted the cell door with great force.

NOT DRUGS,

Food Did It.

After using laxative and cathartic medicines from childhood a case of chronic constipation yielded to the scientific food, Grape-Nuts, in a few days.

"From early childhood I suffered with such terrible constipation that I had to use laxatives continuously, going from one drug to another and suffering more or less all the time.

A prominent physician whom I consulted told me the muscles of the digestive organs were weakened and could not perform their work without help of some kind, so I have tried at different times about every laxative and cathartic known, but found no help that was at all permanent. I had finally become discouraged and had given my case up as hopeless when I began to use the predigested food, Grape-Nuts.

"Although I had not expected this food to help my trouble, to my great surprise Grape-Nuts digested easily from the first and in a few days I was convinced that this was just what my system needed.

"The bowels performed their functions regularly and I am now completely and permanently cured of this awful trouble.

"Truly the power of scientific food must be unlimited." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Trial 10 days of Grape-Nuts, when regular food does not seem to sustain the body, works wonders. "There's a Reason."

City Distinguished for Its Historic Atmosphere and Community Spirit, Says Mrs. Hester Alverson Moffet.

(Note.—Following the recent convention of the Northern Indiana Editorial association in Fort Wayne, the newspapers of the northern half of the state have printed uncounted columns of complimentary reference to Fort Wayne. Among the number is the Elwood Record, which contained the following, written by the wife of the publisher. Mrs. Moffett is a gifted Indiana woman who was a speaker at the banquet of the editorial association.)

By Hester Alverson Moffett.

The Northern Indiana Editorial association was entertained in Fort Wayne last week by the Commercial club of that beautifully located, handsomely built, wealthy and commercially enterprising city of happy homes and cultured, industrious public-spirited citizens, and it is with appreciation of an abounding hospitality and the good things we saw that we offer to the readers of the Record a brief summary of the striking evidences of fine citizenship observed while there.

Fort Wayne has an historic atmosphere and a community spirit. And this is to say much more than that it is the third city in the state and one of the oldest and most progressive centers of populaton n Hoosierdom.

Before Gen. Anthony Wayne raised the Stars and Stripes over that rude stockade in 1794, the fleur de lis of France and the lion of St. George had floated over the site of what is now this beautiful, populous city, and many historic spots are marked and made a part of the systematic adornment of the city and its environs. Age is not a necessary concomitant to community spirit, but a happy combination of the two gives to Fort Wayne a character that distinguishes it among the older cities of the state.

An elaborate park and connecting boulevard system, to which the conjunction of the Maumee, St. Mary's and St. Joseph rivers near the heart of the city gives a pleasing touch of the picturesque, is, perhaps, the most striking evidence of the wisdom and public spirit in Fort Wayne that recognizes the utility of beauty and amusement in the life of the people.

Handsome municipal buildings, modern in design, construction and equipment, including a city hall, market house, municipally owned water and electric light plants, asphalt repair plant and garbage crematory, are other evidences of municipal wisdom and thrift, and great financial institutions, housed in buildings typifying their soundness, age and strength, bear witness to that individual success and financial sagacity which is one of the foundations of community activity and development.

These financial institutions include seven banks, four trust companies, a building, loan and savings association and a clearing house, and they have a certain distinction and added strength in the fact that there has never been a bank failure in Fort Wayne.

Many schools with fine buildings and modern equipment provide for the training of youth and tell their own story of the recognition of the importance of education. Two hundred and forty-eight teachers are employed in the public schools. There are 22 parochial schools, 14 Catholic and 8 Lutheran. There is also one college and 17 professional schools. It is to be regretted that so progressive a city as Fort Wayne has not yet adopted the fine system of all-year schools.

Twenty denominations with fifty-six places of worship testify to the moral and spiritual ideals of Fort Wayne and many magnificent church edifices give dignity to the aspect of the city.

Other buildings that add architectural distinction are the public library, the Scottish Rite cathedral, the Young Women's Christian association building, the government building and the county court house, which is one of the most magnificent buildings of the kind in the country. Among the notable buildings also are the six hospitals and eighteen benevolent institutions.

Excellent hotels furnish entertainment to the wayfarer within the gates of the city and many theatres and three privately owned amusement parks offer diversion to those who wish some other recreation than that afforded by the simple beauty and wholesome sports provided in the four large and fourteen smaller city parks, the public playgrounds and swimming pools.

Fort Wayne is surrounded by a rich farming community and is the center of a large trade in grain, vegetables, live stock, dairying and related industries. It also has many "Made-in-Fort-Wayne" products other than these that are known throughout the world. The value of its factories products for 1913 was $28,000,000.

14,225 of its 78,000 population are employed in its factories, yet labor troubles are practically unknown, which is strong evidence of the wisdom of its citizens who have invested their capital and labor together.

Shipping and receiving facilities in Fort Wayne are all that can be desired by reason of the five electric interurban lines that have their terminal there and and the seven railway trunk lines that connect it with every part of the country. Six of these lines have their division points in the city.

Eight wide-awake newspapers furnish the news to the people and afford an advertising medium for business enterprises.

The character and extent of the public improvements completed and in progress in Fort Wayne considered in relation to the unusually low tax rate, is a testimonial to the honesty and efficiency of its city government, and a sufficient commentary upon it.

The city tax rate is $1.16 on each $100, which in itself is a ringing call for "Fort Wayne With Might and Main."

Impressed by the evidences of real community spirit, in Fort Wayne's civic life, I instituted a quest for the nurseries of this rather rare flower of civilization, and found them, without much seeking, in two organizations known as the Commercial club of Fort Wayne and the the Woman's league of Fort Wayne.

In these two organizations the tender plants of community interest germinated in the various culture beds of the city—the homes, churches, schools and clubs of all kinds—are gathered together, and in the rich soil of co-operative effort, fructified by their fellowship and enthusiasm, is produced that unanimity of mind that has flowered into a genuine community spirit.

The Fort Commercial club was organized by the consolidation of the Anthony Wayne club, a social organization, and the old Fort Wayne Commercial club. It occupies a handsome three-story brick building adequately equipped for every service demanded of a modern club house.

Its officers are chosen from the leading public spirited citizens of the city. It has a membership of more than 1,000 and the roll is open to "any male person of good character." A secretary, competent to manage the important work in which the club is engaged, gives to it his entire time.

This club has been the means of bringing valuable manufacturing and other commercial interests to the city but its greater service is rendered by taking the lead in creating conditions in the city which will attract business enterprises to ti.

In conversation the secretary, Charles L. Biederwolf, said: "Industries change their location for one or more of four reasons: To have better shipping facilities; to be nearer the centers of trade; to be in a community where sufficient capital is available to carry on or enlarge the enterprise; or to find better labor conditions."

Under labor conditions he emphasized moral, religious and educational conditions, good housing, public parks, playgrounds, sports, and clean amusements saying that these things in a community have great drawing power for the investment of capital in local industries.

The Woman's league of Fort Wayne is composed of affiliated clubs and organizations of women for other than social purposes. It is itself affiliated with the State and General Federation of Women's clubs, and is active in promoting the fordward movements for which these organizations stand. It is recognized as one of the leading factors in the upbuilding of Fort Wayne and there is a hearty co-operation between it and the Commercial club.

The League devotes itself especially to the finer side of life, fostering art and the art spirit by exhibtions and the beautifying of the home and the city. It strives to make home and civic life a fine art by giving instructions on subjects pertaining to domestic and social hygiene, by leading in the movement for larger use of the school buildings and supporting important municipal enterprises.

Both these organizations are doing fine things, but the finest thing common to them is the culture of the unanimity of mind which expresses itself in the rare community spirit that it making Fort Wayne big and beautiful, and her citizens happy and prosperous.

EVEN CROSS, SICK CHILDREN LOVE SYRUP OF FIGS

If feverish, bilious, constipated, give fruit laxative at once.

Don't scold your fretful, peevish child. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with sour waste.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomachache, indigestion, diarrhœa, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul waste, the sour bile and fermenting food passes out of the bowels and you have a well and playful child again. Children love this harmless "fruit laxative," and mothers can rest easy after giving it, because it never fails to make their little "insides" clean and sweet.

Keep it handy, Mother! A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Remember there are counterfeits sold here, so surely look and see that yours is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.

NOT A NATURE FAKE.

Long Beach, Cal., Oct. 5.—An unusual rescue from drowning was enacted in the ocean at the end of the pier recently. "Ted," a Scotch collie belonging to Captain Walton, and "King," an Angora cat, being the actors. The cat has made its home at the end of the pier, and while defending itself from the dog fell overboard.

The dog watched the struggles of the cat in the water until its master ordered "Teddy" to "go get him." Immediately the dog jumped into the water from the gangplank under the pier, and in further obedience to his master, grasped by the neck the frightened cat, which had been clinging to a piling. "King" was brought to safety in the mouth of the faithful collie.

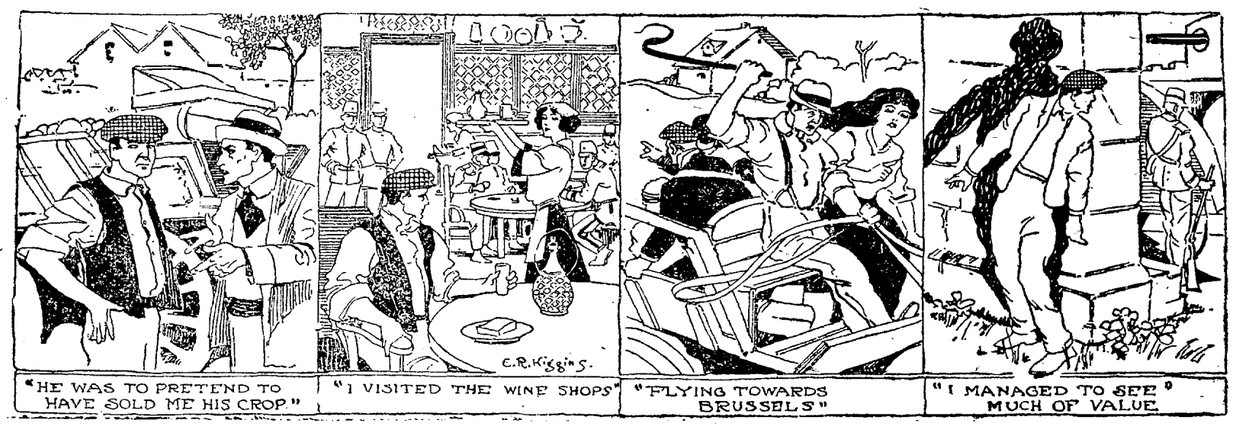
"Shoot the Spy!"---Amazing Narrative of a German Spy---How He Penetrated Hostile Belgium as Tourist!



Part I.

(Copyright, 1914, by the Newspaper Enterprise Association.)

I was born at Insterberg, in East Prussia. My father had served in the Franco-Prussian war and received a medal of the second class for bravery. He was wounded twice.

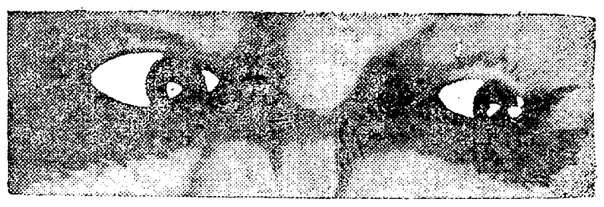
Although very proud of his own military record he opposed militarism and I believe held strong socialistic tendencies before his death. Mother hated warfare and desired when I was a child that we go to the United States that I and my older brother might not have to serve.

Until I was fifteen we lived at Insterberg, which is a small city with a large trade, and is located in Eastern Prussia, on the Pregel river. I was educated there. I suppose the location of the city had much to do with my life. It is near the Russian border, and in what we call "The Land of All Tongues."

Most of the merchants speak German, Russian, Polish, Bohemian and many speak French.

Being a border city we heard much of the "terror of the Russ," which nation we hated as children. The fear of Russia always was with us and from our cribs we were taught that some day we must fight them. Each rumor of intrigue and plotting was brought home to us strongly. I was interested in intrigue from the time I can remember and we children played "Russian spy" or "English spy" for our games.

At the death of my father we went to make our home near Dusseldorf, with my mother's brother, and there mother died while I was away in school at Paris.



This spy fled to America to escape the governments of two nations. He knows that secret agents are watching him still. This story was secured from him in a village in Pennsylvania. His story lacks literary qualities, but it is filled with interesting and first hand information regarding the early developments of the European war.

My uncle was a man of some wealth, dealing in laces, and for two summers I went through the country in Holland and Belgium and twice into France, trading in laces and knit work. I received, in due time, the order to serve my time in the army. By great good fortune, as then I thought, the oberlieutenant to whom I reported considered me undersized, although I was of military height, but light.

He was impatient, and spoke sharply. My replies to his questions and my knowledge of French, also France, suddenly seemed to interest him. Instead of speaking sharply to me he took me aside and asked me as to my travels, what parts of the country I had seen. He asked me of the country around Insterberg, questioned me as to the country about Dusseldorf, and seemed pleased that I remembered well what I had seen.

Then he asked me would I prefer that I should serve my time in the secret service rather than with the colors. I told him yes, because it was that which had been in my mind since a boy. So I was sent to Berlin to learn.

It was thus that I became a spy.

High Officials Involved.

Of the fourteen years I have served I say nothing save that after five years more or less important missions were intrusted to me. Of the war with the Russ we heard constantly until it seemed as far off as when I was a boy at Insterberg. Yet, Germany always was ready. Several times we have been near war, but it passed. Once, a year ago, we were very near.

I was then in Belgrade and in Vienna. It was a plot of Servians against Austria. Our reports were that at least three Russian high officials were in it. Twice I have been in England on service duty—each time to learn what preparations the English were making against us.

We were ready during all the war in the Balkan states—expecting to be forced into war with Russians. Some day the story of Russia's part of the last two years in the Balkans shall be told.

Of the murder plot that finally brought on the present war I know nothing. But it was only the last straw. Had it not been that, then something else, for Russia and Germany were ready. England, I think, was duped by false representations of Russia. France, I think, was too trustful, and suffers for it.

All of the nations save France expected war. This war has been fought move for move, on the checker boards of the strategists for ten years. What difference makes it what was the immediate cause—or excuse?

But to my personal knowledge, like all others, I knew war must come some time, but not until last February did I see that it was to be soon. One mission of mine was in America. I came to learn how many Swedes and Norwegians were returning to their colors. We knew Sweden thought Russia's blow was to be at her—and had summoned home all reserves. Even then Russia was concentrating troops under various excuses.

On my return to Berlin in April, I again was in Belgrade—on a matter entirely foreign to war and in Paris, where I examined their reported defenses against air attacks, finding little new.

In May the activity of our department indicated that the war feeling was growing, although there was little of tangible cause for the feeling. Both the military and secret officers were extremely busy and very much worried.

On the 19th of May I was sent to get a report on the alleged strengthening of the defenses at Namur. This was a surprise, as we possessed detail maps of Namur's forts and works and knew the exact strength of its defenses and defenders even to the ranges for our field guns at certain positions. We possessed the same information concerning practically all the border defenses of France, Belgium, Holland and Russia and knew through our system that no considerable change or addition could be made without our knowledge.

I went to Paris, where I was handed a passport made out to one of our agents at Rochester, N. Y., and proceeded as an American tourist northward to Namur. There was no evidence of increased activity of the French, although an army corps was engaged in some work at Amiens, where I stopped.

Meets Russian Spy.

At Namur I found little change. Some minor changes had been made in the concrete work on the defenses on the Sambre side of the town, I learned. The one thing of importance to report was that both British and French engineers had inspected the works within the fortnight. What this portended I left my chiefs to discover.

Returning after ten days at Namur, I reached Cologne, and forwarded my report, waited and received a brief command to repeat the moves at Mons, Antwerp and Liege. I found little change or activity either at Mons or Antwerp. The people were not talking of war and the officers of the Belgian army were not concerned, or did not seem to be.

My own fears were lulled. One Belgian officer with whom I held conversation shrugged his shoulders when I broached the subject of the murder of the Austrian prince and said the powers would find a way to avoid trouble; that they did not want it.

At Antwerp I encountered a member of the Russian secret service who recognized me.

Seeing I was known I quickly saluted him and we spent the evening together discussing the chances of war. He pretended he was merely loitering after completing an errand in France and I growled that I was always being dispatched on wild goose chases. Neither of us deceived the other.

This encounter made it necessary for me to drop my pose as an American tourist. The night I left Antwerp a code massage informed me that the situation was critical. That was the evening of July 25. I reached Liege the next afternoon, showed my American passports, secured a room at the Hotel del Suede, carefully concealed my American passports and my money.

The following morning I rode into Liege on a cart filled with vegetables, and dressed as a truck farmer, went to the market. I had purchased the cart from a German who was fleeing with his family to escape the coming storm.

Even then I could not believe that that which we had expected so long was at hand. I recalled that my Russian friend of the secret service had, when we parted at Antwerp, drunk "to the great war." It had been a jest with us of the service on the continent for many years. I am wondering whether he knew or whether he, like myself, thought the war cloud would blow over.

GOVERNOR FACES A NEW PROBLEM

Chicago, Oct. 5.—Why any one should "feel fine" after getting a kick in the ribs was a question puzzling Gov. Edward F. Dunne, of Illinois, today.

The governor, whose son, Maurice, plays end on the University of Michigan foot ball eleven, became alarmed when he read in Sunday papers that Maurice had been injured in the Michigan-Case game on Saturday. So he telegraphed Ann Arbor for news of the boy's condition.

"Kicked in the ribs. Feel fine. Nothing serious at all," read the message sent back by the younger Dunne.

"What I fail to understand, even now," the governor said, "is how a kick in the ribs should make a boy 'feel fine.'"

INDICTED MAN ENDS OWN LIFE

Chicago, Oct. 5.—Simon J. Cechowicz, former secretary of the Polish National alliance, and under indictment for the alleged embezzlement of $7,000 funds of the organization, committed suicide by asphyxiation here today.

The alleged shortage was disclosed at the convention of the alliance at Detroit fourteen months ago and caused a sensation among the 100,000 members. Cechowicz was dismissed from office. Worry over his predicament is assigned as the reason for his suicide.

E. S. Richardson, age 80, of Elizabeth, N. J., wishes to dig in a local park for a pot of gold he believes to be buried there.

DARING COTTON PLUNGER DIES

New Orleans, Oct. 5.—Wm. P. Brown, widely known in the cotton business, died here today at the age of 53. Mr. Brown had been connected with some of the most spectacular operations in the history of the New York and New Orleans cotton exchanges. He was at one time connected with Eugene Scales, James Patten and Frank B. Hayne, whose activities in the 1910 crop were taken up by the government with the result that the four "Bull" operators were indicted. Patten pleaded guilty to the charge of conspiring to monopolize the commodity that year and paid a fine of $4,000. The pleas of nolle contender of the others were accepted some time later. Mr. Brown had been ill for some time.

WHAT IS LOVE; LUCY WANTS TO KNOW

Alice Brady

Alice Brady, who plays the leading role in George Scarborough's new play, and has set all Gotham agog by asking everybody on the stage from judge to servant girl the start-ling question, "What is love?"

(By Nixola Greeley-Smith.)

New York, Oct. 3.—What is love?

That is what everybody in New York is asking everybody else, as the result of the production of George Scarborough's play bearing that title.

A young girl hesitating in her choice between the cold, correct handsome lawyer to whom she is engaged and the schoolboy chum who returns suddenly from abroad and sweeps her into mid-stream of romance with an awakening kiss, calls upon everybody in the play to answer the great question which life has asked for her:

What is love?

Suppose somebody should ask you that question all of a sudden, wouldn't you flounder and stutter and perhaps say as the girl's fiance did, "why love is love—that's all. What a silly question!" and change the subject? Well that's what people in the play do at first, but when they see how much in earnest their little Lucy is they try to tell her.

This is what her sister-in-law says:

"It's just a sort of magnetic thrill that goes through youlike—like an apple toddy starts at your finger tips and goes on till it makes your toes tingle—and then starts on the return trip gathering volume as it travels till it envelopes your whole world in a sunburst of joy!"

Next Lucy confers with Cora, the little nursemaid who takes care of her sister's baby. Cora, who appears to be not more than 17, and confesses that she "has never loved the limit—yet," describing the feeling of kissing by saying: "I was scared to death but afraid to run! I was ashamed—sort of glad-ashamed!"

Then Lucy remembering the kiss from the man to whom she is not engaged, interrupted: 'And your face grew hot and your heart beat suffocating-ly, and your hand ached to grip his hand, tight, didn't it?"

In the very charming second act of the play which has set us all to asking what love is, Lucy, at bay between the two men who seek possession of her heart, turns on them both and calls upon their assembled families to tell her what they know of love.

When she asks her eternal question, "what do you mean by love?" of the choleric old judge, whose son she is engaged to marry, he replies, "why I mean—what people generally—when they are—matrimonially inclined—um—um—when they exchange views and experiences about the—um—matter—passion—the divine afflatus—what do you ask me such a question for anyhow? I'm not in love—I'm married."

The father of Bobby Hoyt, the young fellow Lucy really loves, has no better luck with his definition.

"Love," he stammered, "love used to impress me as something—as somehting which made a fellow feel funny and act foolish. How's that?"

Of course that description of a man's feelings doesn't help the bewildered Lucy very much and she turns to his wife, who says:

"Love is a miracle beyond words, its thrill is beyond analysis. I know that this great instinct, love partakes of human qualities as well as spiritual—of intellectual comradeship and physical attraction—one with its pride, the other with its subtle spell. Love is reverence balancing desire."

"Love," interrupts the judge's wife, "is but the perfume, the flower of a man's life, but it is the dynamo of a woman's soul—and when love goes wrong the light goes out of her life—not to return!"

What is love? Do any of these definitions satisfy you?

AT THE MAJESTIC.

A Riot of Laughter in "The Missouri Girl" Tonight.

Comedy applied to "The Missouri Girl" is more or less a misnomer. A tragic-comedy is more descriptive of the play than the former. There are heaps of clean comedy in it, but it is not altogether free from tragedy, and when the two are blended, the product is bound to be a success.

That is why "The Missouri Girl" has been so popular all over the United States for several years.

There is just sufficient of serious matter in it to afford a pleasing contrast to the farcical side.

Really funny incidents are numerous and perhaps it is as well that the audience is offorded a breathing spell at times for the crisis and counter sentiment of the play.

To the play's success the great characters of "Zeke" and "Daisy" contribute much of the comedy. They carry most of the burden of the production, but while these two are outstanding, other characters of the play are equally excellent and on the whole the cast is well balanced and sustained.

Two Good Recipes For Waffles

WAFFLES are the choicest food ever baked on a griddle. But most housewives seem to think they are difficult to make. It isn't so.

Take—
2 cups of flour.
2 cups of milk.
2 teaspoonfuls of baking powder.
2 eggs, with whites and yolks beaten separately.

Stir well. If you have a Griswold Waffle Iron, the result will delight every member of the family. Have the iron hot and well greased.

FOR CREAM WAFERS

Take—
3 tablespoonfuls of corn starch.
1 cup of flour.

Stir corn starch and flour smoothly together and add a teaspoonful of salt. Gradually mix a pint of sour milk, one beaten egg and a small teaspoonful of soda dissolved in water. Pour into a Griswold Waffle Iron, hot.

Sousa Day at the Majestic Wednesday.

If Sousa was asked to go around the world with his band playing marches only, even though he has been hailed as the "March King" in every land, he asserts that he would prefer to step out and retire. He has built up his famous instrumental body until Sousa's band compares with the finest symphony orchestra in existence and he would never agree to confine himself to one kind of music or to one composer, even though that composer be himself. Sousa and his band are heard here on Wednesday afternoon and evening at the Majestic theater. He will be assisted by Miss Virginia Root, soprano, and Miss Margel Gluck, violiniste, and Herbert Clark.

Cook Stock Company.

Fort Wayne is again to have a stock company. The Oscar F. Cook troupe will tomorrow afternoon open at the Majestic theater with a number of the old favorite stock stars and a galaxy of new ones included in the cast. The opening bill to be presented by this company is "The Working Girl's Honor," a thrilling story told in four intense acts, with never an idle minute in the action of any of them. Mr. Cook, in bringing this company back to Fort Wayne, is answering a demand among local amusement seekers for this character of theatrical endeavor.

The old favories still with the company are Oscar F. Cook, Edmund Moses, Claude Allen Lewis, Adelaide Melnotte and Mame Sprau. Miss Clara Lewis is the new lead. This clever stock actress has achieved considerable fame in this character of work and Mr. Cook in presenting her to Fort Wayne's critical theater goers is confident that she will register before she shall have been here many days. Some of the newcomers are Lawrence Finch, Harry Royale, Guy Renick, Victor Ratliff and Pearl Sterns.

New Military Cape Coat Has Many Uses

The military coat of navy blue with short scarlet lined cape is no longer a novelty, but even so it's losing none of its popularity.

As a coat for general use the broadcloth "soldier cloak" is unequaled—it's heavy enough to make a comfortable storm coat, and it's handsome enough to be worn on formal occasions over an afternoon dress

AT THE TEMPLE.

The Temple's current bill is exceptional from top to bottom with a layout of acts that are a source of constant delight to the thousands of Temple addicts. Here's a bill that offers an unique opportunity of acquiring the Temple habit. As funny a farce comedy sketch as you will see in a long time is "A Double's Troubles," the vehicle of Potts Brothers and company. Hildegrade Mason's infectious style and the rich comedy lines the author of her talking and singing sketch has supplied her and Jack Mason, make the act a rare delight. Karlton and Klifford's act is to say the least unique. These clever young men produce some paintings while-you-wait, working on transparent screens so that every stroke of the brush is always visible.

Beginners' Dancing class forms Wednesday, 8 p. m. Trier's, Minuet. 3-4t

AT THE EMPRESS.

The Empress has another crackerjack bill for the first half of the week which this afternoon met with the decided approbation of a large and enthusiastic audience. The bill will be seen again tonight and Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons and evenings.

Marcena and De Long Brothers in a striking series of athletic poses form the headline act and the things that they do are new in the way of gymnastics.

The bill opens with the showing of the Hearst-Selig news weekly in which motion pictures are presented of all the newest and most interesting events at home and abroad. The opening vaudeville number of the bill is the high trapeze act of John Lavier. Mr. Lavier is a comedian of sterling worth and an acrobat who presents some of the most wonderful feats ever seen by local audiences. Second on the bill come O'Niel and Dixon, the New York favorites, in a song review that is snappy and right up to the minute.

Then Jack Princeton and Agnes Vale present a comedy skit that has the punch to make it go great with the audiences. Ronair and Ward in a comedy skit, "Ocean Breezes," have a delightful little skit that has an interesting plot and is full of entertaining bits. Johnny Morris and Eddie Banks have a comedy sketch in which they do some great dancing and put across a line of conversation that has no equal.

THE ORPHEUM.

KING BAGGOT AT ORPHEUM

Appears Today in Remarkable One-Man Play.

At the new Orpheum theater today there is being shown a two-reel special feature, entitled "Shadows," which is a distinct innovation in picture production. In this play King Baggot enacts the roles of ten characters—a banker and his son, an Italian, a jailer, a detective and his wife, a Chinaman and his sweetheart, a policeman and an innkeeper. This means that Baggot must be one of the most versatile and brilliant actors on or off the screen. There have been several plays produced in which three roles were enacted by one person, but never before has anything so complex as this feature been attempted by a single actor. This play is not only unique, but it is a drama full of thrills, tears and laughter, which make it appeal to everyone who sees it.

An Eclair drama, entitled "The Man Who Came Back," is the story of a Bainsman who grows tired of life in the city and goes back to the ranch and makes good with a rush, which will also be shown.

Tomorrow will be seen the fourth installment of "The Trey o' Hearts" serial, entitled "Dead Reckoning," and a Victor drama, "The Proof of a Man," featuring J. Warren Kerrigan.

The orchestra and Miss Lyons, soprano, are pleasing large audiences with their splendid music.

WANTS HIS DEATH TO BE ARGUMENT

Man Who is to Hang Hopes It Will Put End to Death Penalty.

San Quentin, Prison, Calif., Oct5—Louis A. Larsen is giving a "necktie party," under the auspices of California.

On Nov. 6, unless the Governor shall intervenue, he will die on the gallows here for the murder of his wife in the Verdugo hills near Los Angeles in June, 1913.

Larson wants to make his taking off quite a function. He is issuing invtations to specially invited guests, most of them clergymen. He hopes these ministers of life and mercy will be so revolted by witnessing his death that they will go forth in hot determination to stop capital punishment.

"If I must go I want my death to do some good," he explained in the condemned cell here. And substantially that has been the declaration made by every one of the recently executed felons in the two California pentiteniaries.

Larson has however, supplemented it by his invitation to the clergy.

"Heretofore," he says, "the parsons who have fought against capital punishment have had only a theoretical knowledge of the subject. I want to instruct them in the practical side I want to give them first-hand knowledge. It will gird them better for the fight to abate murder by the State.

"No one but a condemned man," explains the man who must hang, "understands capital punishment.

LOUIS A. LARSEN.

"There is a fraternity among us who are about to die that does not extend to anyone outside the doomed circle. Brothers were never born who were as close to each other as we are.

"Three days before a man is to be hanged they take him to the death house. When his name is called he rises to his feet. We look into one another's faces then, and a certainty that our circle is bound by the broadest human sympathy God ever created arises in each of us. We give our condemned brother an affection no other man can know.

"Then this doomed one, who is more human than any other whose soul has not been purged in the fire the doomed alone can know, is placed in the little cell with the death watch over him. And when the fatal day arrives we count the minutes, exclaiming finally, 'Another good man has gone.'

"For 90 men out of 100 who are snatched away by the noose or the chair have become the best men the state has.

"The death cell is a peculiar place—peculiar in its influence," and here again Larson's experience tallies with that of most of the men California has executed within the past few years. "It was not until I reached here that I learned I was by nature a student. The impluse to learn all I could came over me powerfully. I am 42, but I am getting old fast. The other day I happened to get a glance in a mirror and found my black hair had turned white. It is not worry, but just plain, hard study that has altered it.

"I am making a study of the commandment, 'Thou Shalt Not Kill.'

"It says plainly to everybody, to the state as well as the individual, 'Thou shalt not kill!'"

Then the man who is to die because he killed, his wife took up his pacing again, counting the keeping days left of Allen county.

still intervenue between life and the noose.

MEET NEXT YEAR AT HUNTINGTON

Fine Christian Endeavor District Convention Completes Work.

At the closing session Sunday evening of the twenty-eighth annual convention of the Christian Endeavor societies of Fort Wayne district, embracing five counties, Allen, Adams, Wells, Huntington and Whitley, Huntington was chosen as the meeting place for the 1915 convention to be held October 1, 2 and 3.

In the election of officers Miss Ina Maxwell, of this city, was chosen to head the district societies as secretary and treasurer for the coming year, succeeding O. F. Gilliom, of Berne. Other officers are as follows:

May Lansdown, Fort Wayne, junior and intermediate superintendent.

Maud Clark, Fort Wayne, missionary superintendent.

Elisabeth Beitler, of Berne, secretary of Adams county.

Erma Williams, Fort Wayne, secretary of Allen county.

Ella Clugston, Columbia City, secretary of Whitley county.

MISS INA MAXWELL.

Ida Walters, of Huntington, secretary of Huntington county.

The last session was the banner session of the entire convention in regard to attendance and enthusiasm. It was estimated that over 1,500 people were present. Rev. A. R. Evans, of the Westminster Presbyterian church, led in the devotional exercises, which were followed by the rendition of a musical program.

A. F. Reiss, field secretary of the state of Illinois, then gave an address on the subject, "Trust Plus Strive Equals Do." His address was exceedingly interesting and he closed with the words, "Put your entire trust in God and his angels and then get busy and strive to do what you are trying to accomplish and success will surely be your goal, or in other words, trust plus strive equals do."

In certain cities of Russia street whistling by civilians is a penal offense, the privilege being reserved for the police. They exercise it to send signal blasts to each other.

NEED OF BETTER TEAM INDICATED

Friars Look Good But Did Not Extend Themselves to Beat Huntington.

Until the Friar football eleven of 1914 has some stronger opposition than that supplied in the opening game by Huntington, local followers of the game will not be able to get a good line on the strength of the home talent as from the kickoff to the call of time in the Sunday fray the visitors were on the defensive and never had an opportunity to score.

In winning 46 to 0 the Friars looked good and in better condition than they were at the start in 1913, but the Huntington club was too light and did not possess speed enough to offset this disdavantage and it was simply a matter from the start how many times the locals could cross the goal line.

Upon the arrival of the club at the grounds Prof. Ward and Capt. Byroade took the men in charge and ran over the plays and received instructions and as soon as it was determined that the Huntington team was not strong enough to give more than a good practice game the tactics were changed and all of the styles of football that will be relied on the balance of the season were put on exhibition.

That the advance in prices will not materially affect the attendance was demonstrated by the size of the crowd, which was as large as the usual run of a year ago. Seating arrangements are excellent this year and the crowd was handled without any trouble or discomfort.

An auto parade that started from the uptown districts and that was continued by the players and the Elks' band around the playing field and an excellent musical program that was rendered during the game served to make the afternoon more enjoyable.

The new blankets and uniforms, the excellent ground arrangements and the other improvements that have been made for the opening of the season indicate the fact that the Friars are alive to the needs of their patrons and determined to give them accommodation in keeping with the prices charged. In future bookings stronger teams than Huntington will be sought as it is proposed to try for the best of the independents.

Opportunity was afforded to try out all of the new men in the game, and among them was Crow, the big center of the Zanesville basket ball team. He was on the field only a short time so the coaches could get a line on him in action.

Ample policing arrangements kept the crowd off the field and the whole affair indicated that the Friars are in the game to show the possibilities of independent football. The line-up:

BATTING POWERS HELP ATHLETICS

Joe Tinker Believes the Mackmen Will Win the Pennant.

(By Joseph B. Tinker.)

Philadelphia has the better team in the world's series. Mind you I am not saying the Athletics are the best team in the country. But, compared with the Boston Braves, the Athletics are much stronger.

I am saying this, admitting that there are several players on the Boston team I never have seen play, and that I have had only a few opportunities to watch either the Athletics or Braves play. But I am confident, from what I know of the men, that the Athletics are better.

Further comparing the two teams man for man in every position the Chicago Federal league team classes well with them and if we could get into the series I would prefer our end of the chances to win to that of the Athletics. Admitting them a better formed, better seasoned team I think our pitching and hitting strength would carry us through.

However, this is a comparison of the two teams. I know the Athletics well. It is a great team; it is a smart team. In fact, since leaving the National league and studying the American, National and Federal leagues I am convinced that the American league has far smarter ball clubs than the National has. The smartest ball club, the one that played the brainiest, cleverest game won the pennant in each league. I have been astonished to learn from players who have joined us the inside of some things in the older leagues—and this aids me in forming my opinions.

Boston undoubtedly is the smartest ball club in the National. The Athletics won more games by thinking than they did by superior pitching or hitting.

Let us then admit them even in the brainy part of the game; figure that Stallings and Mack are equally wise and that their players play the smart kind of baseball.

Study them mechanically.

The Athletics can outhit Boston almost 35 points to the man around the field. The Athletics are a good base running team—not a great one, as Mack's plan of generalship does not include too much running and that cuts down the stealing averages.

But they can run; and they can take extra bases when they are needed. Boston has not a base runner on its club—not one save Whitted, who runs wild and hard. Evers, while he is a quick, speedy man, is not a base stealer. He will go the extra base whenever there is a chance but is not the base running type. In fact, the club does not run bases. This is partly because Stallings uses the most varied style of attack any manager in the country and partly because the team lacks the speed.

In defensive work the Athletics have a shade on the infield and it is about an even thing on the outfield, neither outfield being great in defense.

In fact, my Chicago outfield classes either of them in spite of its youth. That may sound strong but we would like an opportunity to prove the statement.

Look them over, man for man. McInnis is a highly press agented first baseman. He is a great, shifty brilliant first baseman but he has a lot of faults, due to over anxiousness to make plays and to his lack of heighth and reach.

Schmidt I know. He is slow moving and rather awkward around the bag. At second they have two of the greatest stars in the position. It is very hard to compare Evers and Collins because they do the same things in such different ways. Collins' great speed and his batting power make him the favorite.

This isn't belittling Johnny, whom I consider one of the greatest ball players that ever lived. Collins has it on him too, in better control of temper but that is not likely to affect any of the coming games.

Excuse me for butting in with the Chicago Federal team again—but isn't that my best basis of comparison? There is not much to choose between Beck, our first baseman, and either of those who are in the world's series. Beck is a marvel this year, no matter what he has been. I have only thrown one ball all season that he could not get—and I think he saved me a dozen or more errors. His hitting is up to theirs. I have a coming Evers or Collins in Farrell.

At short Boston has a shade. This Rabbit Maranville is a marvel to me—as he is to all. Barry I consider one of the greatest shortstops that ever played around there. He is the brains of the infield work and never has had credit for all he can do. He is good enough for the Federal league right now. At third Philadelphia has a big margain, due to hitting. Baker covers up a lot of faults by his hitting. He isn't brilliant as a fielder but he is steady and often that is a better thing than brilliancy. I always liked Smith's work, and am glad he finally got going. He is a hustler and a great fielder; but neither he nor Baker is as good a fielder as is Deal, who is on the bench.

If you want to continue comparing those two championship clubs with the Chicago Federals, Zeider is a bit better ball player than Smith in attack, running and defense, and better than Baker in all departments of the game excepting hitting. That's what I think of it.

Mack has only a fair fielding outfield, but it is great in attack. Stallings has six outfielders, and there is only one that the Federal league considered worth going after. Stallings has to keep switching all the time to get some hitting strength against certain pitchers. I have a better outfield than either of them. (Somehow I can't help comparing our team with them).

As for playing the game—team work you call it—the Athletics do more of it than any club in their league and Boston simply made a joke of the other teams of the National by advanced team work. Mack's machine is better trained, less liable to make breaks. Boston is new. He has drilled it well—he and Evers taught it the team game, but in such a series it is likely to forget.

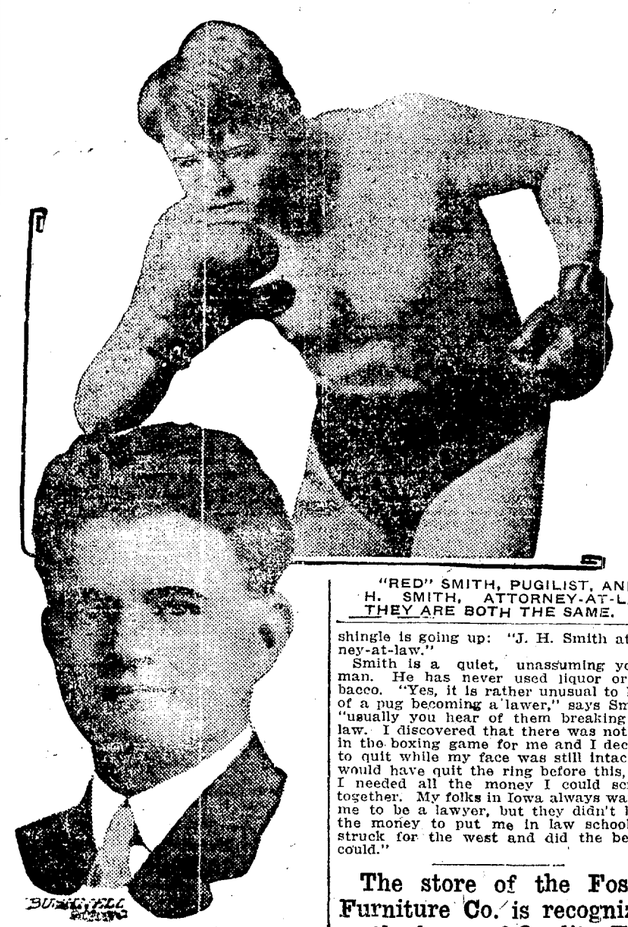
QUIT THE PRIZE RING AND BECAME AN ATTORNEY AT LAW.



"RED" SMITH, PUGILIST, AND J. H. SMITH, ATTORNEY-AT-LAW. THEY ARE BOTH THE SAME.

"Red" Smith, pugilist.
J. H. Smith, attorney-at-law.
They are one and the same person.

Several years ago "Red" Smith, of Sacrameto, Cal., was an ambitious preliminary fighter. In fact, he was considered a white hope. Many an aspiring heavyweight was handed a knockout potion by the sturdy auburn-haired youth. About a year ago he told his pugilistic friends he was going to make something of himself besides a fighter.

"Watcha goin' to do?" they inquired.

"I'm going to be a lawyer," Smith answered quietly.

Of course he was given the merry ha-ha but it didn't discourage him. "I'll just show you fellows up," he said with an air of determination.

"Red" worked as a lineman during the day, signing up for fights now and then, and battled with Blackburn at Salt Lake recently he was admitted to the bar and his shingle is going up: "J. H. Smith attorney-at-law."

Smith is a quiet, unassuming young man. He has never used liquor or tobacco. "Yes, it is rather unusual to hear of a pug becoming a lawer," says Smith; "usually you hear of them breaking the law. I discovered that there was nothing in the boxing game for me and I decided to quit while my face was still intact. I would have quit the ring before this, but I needed all the money I could scrape together. My folks in Iowa always wanted me to be a lawyer, but they didn't have the money to put me in law school. I struck for the west and did the best I could."

COLFAX MEMORIAL SOUGHT.

South Bend Proposes Monument to Former Vice President.

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 5.—A monument to the memory of the late Vice President Schuyler Colfax, of South Bend, probably will be erected in South Bend soon, a movement being in progress to bring about the establishment of such a memorial. The movement was started fifteen years ago, when a series of entertainments obtained several hundred dollars, Gen. Lew Wallace being one of the contributors. It is the plan to place the memorial in a niche on the north side of the St. Joseph court house. In two other niches on either side of that reserved for the Colfax will be placed life-size memorials of Lathrop M. Taylor and Horatio Chapin, two of the first men to settle on the site of South Bend. The former was a merchant and the latter a banker.

INTEREST GROWS IN TITLE GAMES

Increased Interest is Reflected in the Gate Receipts.

New York, Oct. 5.—No clearer or more positive illustration of the extrardinary interest taken by the public in the annual world's championship series of baseball games can be desired than is that furnished by a glance at the financial results, a statement of which is officially announced at the end of each post-season competition for the coveted title and flag. Through the box office its popularity can easily be measured. Compared with the meager returns at the initial series in 1884 the enormous crowds registered by the clicking turnstiles show that by leaps and bounds the attendance in recent years has assumed such gigantic proportions that there is no telling what it may amount to in years to come.

The first championship games between the Providence Grays and the Metropolitans may have been only lightly attended and there is nothing on record to show what the receipts amounted to for the three games then played, as Providence won three straight. The following year, however, when seven games were played in four different cities, Chicago, St. Louis, Pittsburg and Cincinnati, the financial result was about $2,000. That year the fight was a hot one between the Chicago Nationals and the American association club of St. Louis, and one can hardly imagine what would be the yield just now if such a series were possible over a similiar circuit.

Of course in those days seats in the bleachers could be had for "two-bits" and the best seats in the grandstand brought the top price of half a dollar. Even at those rates there could not have been much enthusiasm judging from the results. Today, however, prices have soared so that a single admission costs a dollar, or rather that is the face value of the little cardboard and the holder of one of these is considered lucky if it has not cost him more than thrice that amount.

In the early days of the world's series tickets were easily obtained at the regular prices and no one had to worry as to whether he would get to his favorite seat for one or all of the games. This easy method of satisfying one's baseball appetite disappeared years ago and fabulous prices are offered for ordinary seats in the stands not to speak of the immense prices demanded for the exclusive coupons which entile the possessor to view the games from a comfortably upholstered chair in one of the boxes, of which there are several rows in the newly built stands.

From the moment that the pennant in each of the major leagues appears to be heading for a certain club or city, the would-be spectator begins to worry as to how he is going to secure a vantage point to see one or more of the contests and the fight for tickets begins. For weeks before the end of the regular season requests are sent for reservations, but it is safe to say that 50 per cent. of these result in disappointments. Long lines form in the vicinity of the playing grounds the night before each battle and fancy prices are given to the persons who await their turn in these files for the result of their long vigil. The big prices that are paid for tickets in this way do not increase the receipts so far as the players or clubs are concerned as the box office returns are not influenced by the exorbitant amounts asked, in fact demanded, by the holder of the choice coupons.

In 1887, when Detroit and St. Louis played fourteen games in nearly a dozen cities, the receipts amounted to $42,000, about $3,000 a game, which was then considered a large amount. The following year $24,362 was taken in for the ten games played by New York and St. Louis. The first year of the Temple cup series, 1894, four games were played and average per game was $4,500 at Baltimore and New York. There was a falling off a year later when the Cleveland-Baltimore series of five games realized only $14,750.

In 1903, when the first series was played between the pennant-winning teams of the National and American leagues, eight games brought a little over $50,000. There was no contest in 1904 but a year later there was an advance in the prices of admission and $68,405 was taken in for five games at Philadelphia and New York, but the attendance fell to 91,723 as compared with over 100,000 two years previously. The attendance dropped to 63,000 in 1906 for the Chicago-Detroit series, but the receipts jumped to nearly $95,000.

A marked increase in attendance and receipts was registered in 1909 when 145,295 persons paid $188,302 to see the seven-game series between Pittsburg and Detroit. Philadelphia and Chicago played five games in 1910 before 124,222 persons with gate receipts of $173,980, and this amount was almost doubled the following year when 179,851 persons contributed $342,164 to see the Philadelphia and New York series of six games. This was a mighty jump but it was eclipsed in 1912, the banner year for attendance and financial results. The Boston Americans and New York Nationals played eight games, one of them resulting in a tie, that year, and it was estimated that a quarter of a million spectators saw the protracted series, which drew $490,449. This enormous increase was, of course, due to the extra games that were required but last year when only five games were needed to settle the questioning supremacy between the Giants and Athletics $325,980 was paid in, with an attendance of 151,000. The average receipts per game in 1902 was $61,306, while the average last year was increased to $65,196.

Each of the winning players on the winning side in 1908, the first year that the series was played under the conditions which now prevail, received $1,316.25 and each of the losing players got $1,182. In 1912 the Boston winners received $4,022 each and the New York losers were handed $2,566 each. Last year each player of the Athletics got a winning portion of $3,246.36 and the losing share for each New York player was $2,164.22.

The basis upon which the world's series receipts are divided is as follows: The national commission receives 10% of the receipts of each and every game. The players of the two competing clubs receive 60% of the remaining 90% of the first four games played. The sum is divided 60% to the winners and 40% to the losers. The remaining 40% of the 90% of the first four games goes to the club owners: 90% of the receipts of every game after the first four becomes the property of the stockholders of the two contesting clubs.

WORKING TO GET THE VOTERS OUT

All Political Parties in the Field to Secure Registration.

Workers in the democratic, republican and progressive parties began early Monday morning the task of getting the voters to the places of registration and returns received at the headquarters of each indicate that very few votes will be lost by failure to register.

In the city it was hard work during the morning hours to get the unregistered to the booths, but at noon there was a rush and the turnout for the afternoon was better and there was every reason to believe that the heavest work of the day will be between 6 and 9 o'clock this evening.

Every means that the party workers could think of was used to call to the mind of the voters of Allen county that unless they registered Monday they would lose the opportunity to vote at the election in November and apparently the warnings were heeded.

Returns from the registration on September 5 show that less than 10,000 voters registered and as many more failed to take advantage of this opportunity and these are the men that are being sought out.

Volunteers supplied automobiles for each of the parties and they were used both in the city and in the county. Farmers were a little bit inclined to take advantage of the good weather to finish up their work for the fall and this probably will show in the returns when they are made, as many of them considered the duties at home equally as important as taking advantage of the chance to register.

Each party had a list of the voters who failed to turn out at the early registration and these were being checked up in the various precincts in the city and county. The real work began in the afternoon for the reason that the parties during the forenoon sought out only those who were lukewarm and a number whose business allowed them but a few minutes for going to the polling places.

All began to get out the infirm and the aged in the hope that this portion of the work might be closed at noon so attention could be given to those who had not attached as much importance to the duty as it demands.

Democratic Meetings Held.

In closing up the campaign of last week the democrats held two meetings and reports are that both were well attended. At Hoagland Hon. James M. Robinson and William Fruechtenicht were the speakers and both were well received.

Judge Samuel M. Hench and Attorney Guy Colerick were on the program at Huntertown and both were heard with interest by the voters.

A meeting has been arranged for St. Joe township on Thursday, October 15, and Prosecutor Harry Hilgeman will be the principal speaker of the occasion.

Hon. J. M. Robinson and Mr. Hilgeman will speak at Center schoolhouse in Eel River township on October 16 and other dates will be arranged during the present week.

HAVE PLANNED LAKESIDE DIKE

Barriers Will Be Carried from Columbia Street to State Street.

Following an inspection of the east bank of the St. Joe river along the Lakeside boundary from the Columbia street bridge to the State street bridge, by Mayor Hosey, Messrs. Singrey, Kelly and Hilgeman of the board of works, City Engineer Randall, Councilman Jacob Agne, of the First ward, and members of the Lakeside and Forest Park Improvement association, it was tentatively decided to construct a stone dike from Columbia street to Forest avenue and to build a dirt dike from a point midway between Delaware and McDougal avenues, following the river course to the state street bridge. The city engineering department is expected to prepare plans at once so that the work may be advertised, the bids awarded and work begun and if possible completed this fall. All the property east of the stone wall will be assessed. The stone wall goes to high ground and will protect Lakeside while the dirt dike will afford protection to property lying between the wall and the river.

WILL RESOD THE RESERVOIR.

Repairs to Embankment Are Almost Completed.

After an inspection of the work of repairing the embankments of the big waterworks reservoir on Lafayette street, Monday morning, the board decided to let a contract at once to have the refilled places sodded and this will be done during the present week. The big earth slides that had so badly disfigured and to some extent weakened the embankments have been filled with clay that has been firmly tamped and it is believed that with the establishment of the drainage and the proper sodding of the banks future slides can be averted. There may be adopted a plan to thickly plant the embankment with dwarf shrubs that take root rapidly and extensively. The work of filling up the slides will be completed this week.

MAY DEFER SEWER MATTER.

Board of Works Wants to Be Sure of Legal Phases.

The board of works had fixed Monday afternoon for final determination of the Wayne Heights sewer matter, which has been held up several weeks on account of a remonstrance filed by property owners assessed and because of the contractor's failure to comply in all respects with specifications, but owing to some uncertainty of legal questions involved action may be deferred until the city attorney returns to the city from Decatur, where he is engaged in the courts. It is believed that the proposal of the Moellering Construction company to give additional bond for guarantee of the work will be satisfactory. When the points at issue have been settled the work will be accepted and the assessment rolls approved.

WED 35 YEARS IS SEEKING DIVORCE

Ida M. Shaffer Says Spouse Packed Up and Left Her Without Cause

Married to John H. Shaffer thirty-five years ago and with no minor children, Ida M. Shaffer has commenced suit in the superior court for divorce, complaining that two years ago last August her husband, without cause and wholly without reason, packed up and left her and since that time has not contributed anything to her support. She says since he left she has neither seen nor heard anything of him, does not know his present whereabouts and believes he is a non-resident of the state. She says she has lost all love and affection for him and can never again live with him.

Wants Her Children Back.

Hattie Shondell has petitioned the circuit court for a change of order entered when her husband, George Shondell, was granted a divorce last May, under which he was given the custody of two children. The petition recites that he husband represented to the court that he would place the children in the Sacred Heart academy and as a matter of fact did so, but took them from the academy after two weeks and placed them with his mother, Matilda Shondell. Mrs. Shondell says the children are not being properly clothed, cared for or educated and that George Shondell is preparting to leave the court's jurisdiction. She wants the children taken from him and put in a proper institution.

Receiver for Cigar Store.

In the superior court Monday, in the suit of the Wayne Tobacco company against Davenport Thomas to foreclose a mortgage and recover $1,000, Alfred Foellinger was appointed receiver for the defendant. Thomas owns the Bungalow cigar store at 113 East Main street and the concern has been taken charge of by the receiver.

Notes of the Courts.

The following suits have been set down for trial in the superior court: Lumber Products company vs. Lewis W. Scattergood, December 28; Frederick C. Grossart vs. James R. Sturgeon, December 5; Maurice Hartman vs. Keller Haymond company, November 5.

By action taken in the superior court the R. E. Tobias Millinery company has been dissolved. The firm became insolvent and its affairs were closed up.

The will of the late Eliza Leuenberger, wife of Gottlieb Leuenberger and formerly widow of Frederick Koerber, has been filed for probate. The estate is left for division among her children by her first husband.

The will of the late John George Relber has been filed for probate. All his property, real and personal, is left to the widow.

OPTION ELECTION NOVEMBER 4.

It is probable that when the board of county commissioners meets Tuesday to fix a date for holding the local option election in Washington township, as petitioned for by a large number of voters, Wednesday, November 4, will be the date chosen. The reason assigned for choosing this particular date is that it falls on the day following the general electing and the voting places can be utilized without additional trouble for the option election. Unless some good reason for choosing another date is presented to the commissioners, November 4 will be set down.

SALOON LICENSES TRANSFERRED.

Monday morning the board of county commissioners authorized the following transfers of saloon licenses by purchase: Edward G. Korn, to purchase of Kinnerk & Scherer, 1416 Broadway; John H. Miller, to purchase of the Citizens' Trust company, administrator of the estate of Joseph Pedary, corner Beadell avenue and Second street; Joseph Bogenschuetz, to purchase of Henry Brake, 124 East Berry street.

A woman giving the name of Goldie Smith, aged 33 years, is in jail and will be prosecuted on some sort of disorderly charge for her conduct in the vicinity of Harlan. She was arrested Sunday evening by Sheriff Gladieux after the woman had been coralled by Constable Clint Kinsey, of Springfield township.

She claims her home to be in the state of Washington, but has been loitering in the vicinity of Harlan for several days. Men who were with her escaped.

"The American relief commission advised us to leave, because it was believed that if the war continues Germany will have all she can take care of and while we would never have become charges, we had to eat and every bit will count if things become scarce."

Visited His Mother.

Mr. Borkenstein left early in the summer to go to Potchappel, a small town about eighteen miles from Dresden, and was too far removed from the scene of war to know directly much of what was going on. He said that Germany had been no advance in prices on account of the war and that in the portion of Germany in which he was located everything went along just like there was no war with the exception that a few industries were closed down because the men were called to arms.

"There was a rush for flour when the war broke out," he said, "but in a short time notice was served that there must be no advance under penalty of seizure by the government of the business house in which advances were made and the same prices were held that were asked in times of peace.

"In the town in which I visited, horses were called in from the farms and examined and taken over by the government. It was required that they must have a day's provision, must be shod, over four years old and possessed of good eyesight.

"Those unfit for service were sent back and each man was left enough to carry on his farming. Those accepted were tagged and a duplicate given the owner and he got his money next day. We had no trouble reaching Rotterdam after we went to Berlin and had our passports stamped and the only delay was in transferring our transportation to the Nordam from the Holland-American line. We were told we could not sail until October 17, then the date was changed to the tenth but we finally arranged to get away on Sept. 23.

"In the town near where I was visiting, two Russian spies were taken and killed. I saw deatchments of from 500 to 1,000 men being mustered in and I saw some French prisoners who were being nicely treated but that is all the war I saw. When I left China [illegible]

CASCARETS FOR COSTIVE BOWELS, HEADACHE, COLDS

Tonight! Clean your bowels and stop headache, colds, sour stomach.

Get a 10-cent box now.

Turn the rascals out—the headache, biliousness, indigestion, the sick, sour stomach and bad colds—turn them out tonight and keep them out with Cascarets.

Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never know the misery caused by a lazy liver, clogged bowels, or an upset stomach.

Don't put in another day of distress. Let Cascarets cleanse your stomach; remove the sour, fermenting food; take the excess bile from your liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels. Then you will feel great.

A Cascaret tonight straightens you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from any drug store means a clear head, sweet stomach and clean, healthy liver and bowel action for months. Children love Cascarets because they never gripe or sicken.—Adv.

INVENTORS

GERMAN AMERICAN NATIONAL BANK

A party of men were discussing the world's great inventors and inventions. Each had his favorite. Morse and the telegraph, Marconi and the wireless, Whitney and the cotton gin, Bell and the telephone, Wright and the aeroplane, Edison and the electric light—each had his own vociferous champion. When a lull came in the conversation a little man who had previously kept quiet piped up and said: "Yes, those men were all great men, but let me tell you that the man who invented interest was no slouch."

The little man was right. Interest has filled the world with peace and comfort, even if it has bankrupted some fellows that din't know its uses. Four per cent. on savings in our savings department.

MONTPELIER MUDDLE ENDS.

Council and Mayor Agree on Man for City Clerk.

Hartford City, Ind., Oct. 5.—The city of Montpelier is once again able to transact business, the tangle in municipal affairs, growing out of the wrangle between the council and mayor over the selection of a city clerk having been straightened out by the selection of D. A. Bryson, banker and prominent citizen, to succeed the late Nun McCullick.

Soon after the death of the city clerk, Mayor Neal, progressive, recommended the name of a man of his own political belief for the office. The council, being in a majority democratic, refused to ratify the appointment, holding that the office should rightfully go to a member of the dead clerk's family. In turn Mayor Neal suggested other citizens, but all of them were rejected by the council. In the meantime the city's business suffered.

No warrants were paid and none of the city's creditors or employes have been able to draw their money for several months. Finally, the three democratic members of the council, being in the majority, voted to install Pliny McCullick, son of the late clerk and a democrat, in the office pending an agreement with the mayor and two progressive members of the council. This action, however, did not remedy the situation.

Mayor Neal refused to recognize any of McCullick's acts as official, claiming that he was not legally holding office. Council met regularly and adjourned, the mayor and the progressive members refusing to participate until a regularly elected clerk was installed. Here matters dragged for several weeks.

CITY "DRY" LIST IS VALID.

Huntington, Ind., Oct. 5.—Judge S. E. Cook in circuit court has sustained a demurrer in the case of James Shively against A. J. Rosebrough, city judge, in which Shively sought to prove that Judge Rosebrough had no authority to place his name on the "dry" list. Judge Cook held that the complaint was not good.

Judge Rosebrough will now bring suit against Shively and has already issued a warrant charging him with carrying concealed weapons. Shively is also said to have been obtaining liquor, although his name is on the "dry" list, and Judge Rosebrough says that he has learned how the liquor is obtained and that action in this regard may follow.

The dedicatory exercises were held at the morning service and the evening was given to services celebrating the fiftieth anniversary.

WHAT WOULD YOU DO?

There are many times when one man questions another's actions and motives. Men act differently under different circumstances. The question is, what would you do right now if you had a severe cold? Could you do better than to take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy? It is highly recommended by people who have used it for years and know its value. Mrs. O. E. Sargent, Peru, Ind., says: "Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is worth its weight in gold and I take pleasure in recommending it." For sale by all dealers.—Adv.

ORDERS JUDGE TO FINE SELF.

Lewiston, Pa., Oct. 5.—Joseph Kalbfus, state game commissioner, notified Justice J. E. Van Natta to fine himself $10, with whatever costs might accrue, for having a barn or monkey-faced owl in his possession. One of the judge's friends captured the bird and the justice amused himself by showing his friends how the bird "eat 'em alive" when the mice were thrown into the cage.

WHY NOT PUBLISH IT?

When you want a fact to become generally known, the right way is to publish it. Mrs. Joseph Kallans, Peru, Ind., was troubled with belching, sour stomach and frequent headaches. She writes: "I feel it my duty to tell others what Chamberlain's Tablets have done for me. They have helped my digestion and regulated my bowels. Since using them I have been entirely well." For sale by all dealers.—Adv.

Easy to Darken Your Gray Hair

You can Bring Back Color and Lustre with Sage Tea and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. For 50 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use tonic called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant. You will also discover dandruff is gone and hair has stopped falling.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and look years younger.—Adv.

War Brings on the World That Worst Scourge of Mankind, Aciatic Cholera

Has a Greater Disaster Than War Been Brought Upon Us by Conflict?—What Cholera Means—How It Travels and Kills.

Have the war lords brought disaster to the wohle world?

Look to the east! There comes Asiatic cholera, brought to the threshold of civilization by this last deadly act of militarism.

It is not a danger alone to the armies. It is a danger to whole nations. To the whole earth.

In the Austrian and Russian armies dozens of cases have been reported and the ravages of the disease have begun to take on the proportions of an epidemic.

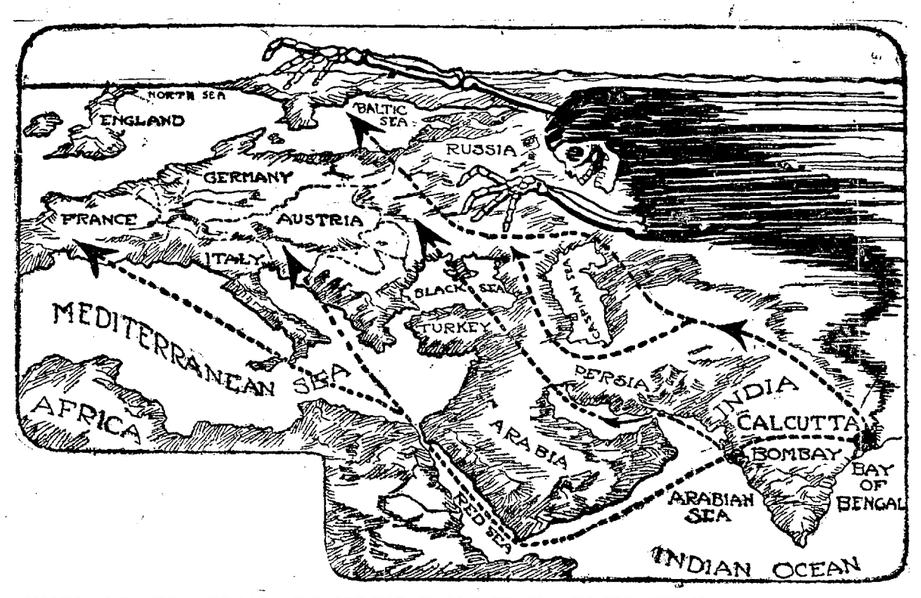
What is cholera?

It is one of the deadliest scourges of mankind. It is worse than smallpox and as bad as bubonic plague. In the seventeenth century—as Black Death—it swept over Europe and killed one quarter of the population, 25,000,000 people.

Seven times in the past century it appeared in the west and in each visit the mortality was frightful. On its appearance in the south of Europe in 1883, 250,000 people died. Before it could be checked in the north 10 years later 378,000 people succumbed. Of these victims over 8,000 lost their lives in Hamburg alone where the disease found new sacrifices at the rate of 1,000 a day.

Cholera is an intestinal disease and its first symptoms are its victims' death warrant for there is no cure. Complete recovery is rare for the convalescent often contracts diphtheria, typhoid and lesser disease. In mild cases and with hospital treatment 50 per cent of the victims recover, but lacking nursing 90 percent of the patients die.

As a rule the patient lingers for several days. At its worst cholera kills its victims two hours after the first symptoms appear.



CHOLERA LEAVES A BROAD AN D UNMISTAKABLE TRAIL. IN ITS SEVEN SUCCESSIVE INVASIONS OF EUROPE IN THE PAST CENTUR Y IT ALWAYS FOLLOWED THE PATHE SHOWN IN THE DIAGRAM. IT IS TRAVELLING THE SAME ROUTE TODAY.

For 20 years Europe has been kept free from the disease owing to the work of Robert Koch, the famous German bacteriologist. Koch, you know, is the man who found the germ of tuberculosis He followed up that important discovery by isolating the cholera bacillus.

He showed that the comma-shaped organism was transmitted largely through water and food and in the clothes of people from infected regions. As soon as the truth of his discovery was demonstrated, barriers against the scourge were put up in all ports of the world and it has been kept in the Orient for two decades.

Now the bars are down on account of the war. The disease has again appeared and is especially dangerous to armies as the unhealthful lives of soldiers in the field makes them easy victims. In the Crimean war, for example, cholera killed more men than wounds or bullets. In the Balkan war the disease did as much as the allies in conquering the Turks. It is utterly demoralizing for its insidious attack spares no one. The healthy man in the morning may be dead at night and before dying may infect hundreds of his comrades.

The only way of combatting the disease successfully is to isolate its victims, but one patient in escaping quarantine may expose, although indirectly, the whole of Europe.

While the European doctors are working to prevent a panic which will mean the spread of the disease over the entire fighting zone, neutral nations are taking steps to prevent cholera within their boundaries. Italy was first to put up the bars and a day or so ago was followed by America which remembering the 50,000 lives lost in the United States in 1873, is making a rigorous inspection of all ships from the Black Sea and the Orient.

America may, by strong measures, prevent the landing of cholera. And again it may fail. In that connection, it is interesting to note that an American city was hardest hit, in proportion to its population, of any city in the world during one of the cholera epidemics of the last century.

The city was Sandusky, O. The epidemic spread with lightning rapidity through the town and soon caused a panic. The people left their homes in droves and took to the country roads. Bodies lay thick for miles in every direction.

BREAKS SEA RULE TO DANCE TANGO

Miss Playfair Sets Aside Social Barrier While Aboard Liner.

San Francisco, Oct. 5.—In order that she might tango with the man who could match her accomplished dancing,

MISS DAHLIA PLAYFAIR.

Miss Dahlia Playfair, society girl and heiress of Australia, succeeded in shattering all the rules of the sea aboard the Union Steamship company's liner Tahiti.

On a recent voyage to this port Miss Playfair, daughter of J. B. Playfair, known as the Armour of the antipodes, indulged her passion for the tango every evening with Bert Graham, a dancing instructor.

Graham was a second cabin passenger. Up in the first cabin Miss Playfair accompanied by her mother, was separated from him by all the rules and caste of the sea. But through effective cajolery of Capt. F. P. Evans, the girl was able to have the barrier set aside, and Graham was given entree to the first cabin.

Exhibitions were given by the couple in both cabins, and by the time the Tahiti reached this port most of the passengers had been converted to the tango.

SEEM TO BE THE ONLY SAFE SPOTS

England and Belgium Only Ones With Naturalization Treaties.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 5.—American citizens of foreign birth, who have obtained their citizenship by means of naturalization, must be on their guard if they leave America and go back home while the war is in progress.

There is only one nation of the seven now at war with which the United States has a naturalization treaty, and that one is England. A naturalized Englishman may return to Great Britain without danger of being seized for military service.

As to the naturalized German-American, he is very likely to be forced into military service should he return to his home country during the war.

As to an Austrian or Hungarian returning to his home: If he was accepted and enrolled as a recruit in the army before the date of emigration; if he was a soldier when he emigrated; if he was summoned before his emigration to serve in the reserve or militia and failed to obey the call; if he emigrated after war was declared, he must serve. Aside from these exceptions, a naturalized native of these countries is treated upon his return to the fatherland as a citizen of the United States.

The French laws on the subject of military service are almost as strict as those of Germany.

The Russian government does not recognize any right in its citizens to throw off their allegiance to Russia by emigrating and becoming naturalized in another country

Servians returning to their home may be compelled to do military service, even if naturalized as Americans, if such action was without the consent of the Servian government.

The Belgian law is more liberal than any except Great Britain. A former Belgian who becomes a naturalized American is not liable to military service.

Of course, naturalized American citizens are perfectly safe so long as they remain within the jurisdiction of the United States.

TONED UP WHOLE SYSTEM.

"Chamberlain's Tablets have done more for me than I ever dared hope for," writes Mrs. Esther Mae Baker, Spencerport, N. Y. "I used several bottles of these tablets a few months ago. They not only cured me of bilious attacks, sick headaches and that tired out feeling, but toned up my whole system." For sale by all dealers.—Adv.

DARING PLUNGER IS DOWN AND OUT

Once Worth $250,000, Now He Steals to Escape Starving.

New York, Oct. 5.—The famous Frank England, a man who has made as much as $30,000 in one day, who a few years ago was the owner of a beautiful mansion and a number of fine race horses, has been brought into court here, down and out, and starving, with $1,000 worth of loot on his person which he confessed he obtained by smashing in the door of Mrs. William Howard, of Flatbush, an American woman swimming champion, and robbing the house.

Frank England started his career as a street car conductor in Brooklyn. One day in 1905 he was given an afternoon off, and he decided to go to the races. He had 75 cents in his pocket, and he decided to do something he had never done before—to bet the money! He won! He placed all his winnings on the next race, and won. He continued to win and when he went home, he had a huge bank roll in his pocket! No more conductor job for him!

He became the most phenomenal plunger in racing history, and his invariable luck simply dumbfounded the most hardened followers of the horses. In 1906 at Saratoga he made three bets on "Carey," owned by a St. Louis sportsman. On the first bet alone he won $10,000. England's biggest "killing" soon followed, when he won $30,000 on Schoolmaster, at Syracuse. Soon the former conductor had piled up a fortune of $250,000, had moved his family into a beautiful mansion, and had wealthy friends all around him.

But a few years later he played "Toots Mooks" for a winner—and found that his luck had changed! On that one race, he dropped $60,000; he never has picked a winner since.

Today England's fortune is gone back into the betting maelstrom whence he drew it; his friends, too, are gone. Starving, homeless, and in desperation, he broke into the home of Mrs. Howard, was arrested while making off with his loot, and now is enjoying for the first time in weeks, a warm bed and a square meal—in jail!

Farmers Reluctant to Bring Products to Municipal Market.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—Reasons for the reluctance of farmers to bring their produce to the new municipal market, a situation which seriously threatens the success of the experiment, were made public today by members of the market commission, who spent yesterday interviewing farmers.

Some farmers said it was too late in the season to change from former practices; others declared that they couldn't afford to spend the day in the market disposing of their products at retail when commission merchants would buy by the wagon load. Still others said that housewives were too particular and would buy only the best, while commission merchants take good and inferior alike.

BEAUTY WHO IS TO WED NAVAL OFFICER.

Mr. and Mrs. Dave Hennen Caruthers, formerly of New York and New Orleans, now living in Chicago, have anounced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Frances Isabel Caruthers, to Assistant Paymaster Frederick C. Bowerfind, U. S. N., who was graduated from Annapolis in the class of 1908. The wedding will take place in March at the expiration of Mr. Bowerfind's service in Pacific waters. Miss Caruthers has been passing the summer in the East with relatives. She is a niece of Mrs. John A. Morris, of New York and New Orleans, and a cousin of Mrs. Edson Bradley, of Washington.

Caroline Coe's Canning Recipes

CANNED QUINCES.

Pare, and cut into quarters, dropping into cold water as you do this, to preserve the color. Weigh the fruit and allow three-fourths as much sugar. Cook the quinces gently in boiling water until soft. Skim out the fruit, add the sugar to this water. Skim water well and boil the syrup ten minutes longer. Strain it into jars. Fill to overflowing and seal as usual.

SWEET APPLES.

Core the apple and drop into water. When all are ready pack in heated glass jars. Have at hand a syrup made by mixing a cupful of sugar with a cupful of water, allowing this quantity to every two-quart can. Boil hard fifteen minutes, adding the juice of half a lemon for every two cups of sugar. Roll the cans in hot water before putting in the apples. Fill at once with the boiling syrup. Set in a bake pan of hot water and then in a hot oven when the syrup is again at the boiling point, seal immediately. If larger apples are used it is possible to can them the same way only quarter them first.

TART APPLES.

Peel and quarter firm apples, throwing them into cold water as you do so. Weigh the fruit and allow two pounds of granulated sugar to eight pounds of apples. Put the apples into a preserving kettle. Pour over them barely enough cold water to cover them, and let them cook gently until tender. While these are cooking make a syrup by mixing the sugar with water (allowing a cupful of water to each pound of sugar) and bringing to a boil. Cook for four minutes, then lift the tender apples from the water. Lay them gently in the syrup, simmer for a minute and while very hot put into jars. Seal immediately.

PRESERVED CITRON RIND.

Peel and cut the rind into pieces of uniform size, rejecting all the seeds. Lay the rind in salted water for two hours, then drain and lay in cold fresh water for six or seven hours, changing the water three times during that period. Drain, put the citron on to boil in a gallon of water, to which you have added two teaspoonfuls of alum. Stew until tender, drain, and lay in cold water.

Make a thick syrup of sugar and water, and when it boils cook the rind for fifteen minutes. Remove the rinds, pack in jars. Add to the syrup in the kettle enough lemon juice and ginger root to flavor it. When very thick, fill the jars with the boiling syrup and seal.

HAMMOND DISTRICT NO MORE.

Northwest Indiana M. E. Conference Reduces Number.

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 5.—The announcement was made at the closing session of the Northern Indiana Methodist Episcopal conference yesterday that the number of districts was reduced from five to four. The changes in the Hammond district, which was eliminated, were distributed equally among the remaining districts. The financial report showed a large increase in receipts for the year.

GERMANS CAPTURE 3 ANTWERP FORTS

Berlin, Oct. 5.—(by wireless to Sayville)—An official report from the German army headquarters says that in the siege of Antwerp the forts of Lierre, Waelhem and Koenigshoyckt and the intermediate redoubts, with 30 guns, have been taken.

"Thus a breach has been made in the outer circle of forts," the report adds, "rendering an attack on the inner circle of forts and the town itself possible."

BY WAY OF LONDON.

London, Oct. 5.—(10:26 a. m.)—A dispatch to Reuters Telegraph company via Amsterdam, gives an official statement issued at the German headquarters on the evening of Oct 4. It says:

"In the western theater the battle on the right wing and in the Argonne district is proceeding successfully.

"The operations off Antwerp and in the eastern theater have been carried out according to plan and without fighting."

The Antwerp correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, telegraphing regarding the fighting around Antwerp, under date of Saturday, says:

"The Germans continue their desperate efforts to capture Antwerp. They are in a desperate hurry to accomplish it, pounding away unceasingly with their artillery at Forts Waelhem and Wavre St. Catherines and flinging their infantry forward in frantic efforts to break through.

"Their losses have been enormous and the number killed are estimated as high as 8,000 during the present movement.

"The Belgians adopted a clever ruse at Waelhem. After the bombardment had lasted several hours the fort ceased to reply, whereupon the German staff, thinking the fort out of action, ordered the infantry to advance in close formation. The Belgian gunners waited until they could see the whites of their eyes and then opened a murderous fire.

"Thus far the forts in the outer ring of the Antwerp defenses have suffered little harm from the German bombardment. The German big guns are not being worked by regular soldiers, but by men in citizens' clothing, who wear only an armlet to indicate their military occupation. Undoubtedly these men are employes of the Krupp factory, hastily summoned to replace the losses among the regular gun layers. The heaviest German guns are located north of Vilvorde, where foundations of reinforced concrete have been prepared.

"The German shells have practically wiped out most of the little villages and hamlets in the outer circles of the Antwerp defences. The Germans still hold Malines, although at a heavy cost, the town is subject to a constant bombardment from the other forts.

ARE YOU MAKING THE MOST OF VEGETABLES?

"Search every cook book for the best ways of preparing vegetables. All vegetables have possibilities, and can be made most savory by the woman who really knows how to cook," is the advice Mrs. Katherine Hoenlein, member of the mayor's committee of food investigations in New York, gives to housekeepers who economize on food cost.

Peas, beans and lentils are all equal to meat in nutrition, and can be made into many appetizing dishes—purees, stews, soups, etc. And in planning your menu don't forget rice, especially the natural brown rice, which contains more nutriment than the polished rice. In a curry with salmon or shrimp, or as a border with warmed-over meat and gravy, or as a vegetable with butter sauce, rice is a valuable article of food.

Soups should be made from the liquor of every vegetable cooked, with a little milk, oleomargarine or butter added. The water from the vegetables, which the American cooks throw down the drain, contains the mineral salts or the vital element of the vegetable, and should never be wasted. Rice water also, which is usually discarded, forms a valuable base for soup.

BIG DEVELOPMENTS THOUGHT IMMINENT

Paris, Oct. 5.—(7:20 a. m.)—When the long drawn out battle in the north was resumed today there was a feeling in many quarters that decisive developments were imminent. Consequently this afternoon's statement of the war office on the battle of the Aisne, unique in the history of battles, was awaited with the greatest interest.

While the French realize that the battle has not yet been won, it does not seem to many of them that it can now be lost. If the allies win no doubt is felt that they will pay for it, the sacrifice on both sides already being great.

The tone of the official communications has furnished the best reasons for the hope on the part of the French, although the announcement of the visit of President Poincaire to the front was an additional factor for the confidence and optimism felt in regard to the intense struggle. His action is generally commented on as indicating that success is at hand.

Despite the hope of the French, the military critic, Lieut.-Col. Rousset, declares that the battle still can last for some time, pointing out that modern encounters last as long as certain campaigns formerly did. In 1859 the situation was settled in two months, while in 1870 it took thirteen weeks, the fighting after Sedan and Metz being merely a contest for honor.

In the furious fighting now going on, Lieut.-Col. Rousset says, neither adversary can claim what Napoleon called the result.

With the shifting of the battle scenes the railroads are resuming traffic through a number of cities which had been occupied by Germans. From Epernay the news comes that the Germans resected the lines of Epernay in the important champagne district.

Col. Du Paty Clam, a celebrity of the Dreyfus case, is among the wounded in Paris.

CHICAGO GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—Wheat advanced today, influenced by a rise in prices at Liverpool. After opening ⅛c to 1⅛c higher, the market here made a slight additional gain.

The close was firm, ⅝c to ¾c above Saturday night.

Corn showed some firmness with wheat and as a result of unsettled weather, the opening, which was ⅛c to ⅛c higher, was followed by a moderate reaction.

The close was steady at ¾@⅞c to ½@⅝c net decline.

Profit taking on the part of longs tended to restrain buying of oats.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

Since Saturday a western storm has been spreading slowly eastward, and during the last twenty-four hours rains have been quite general from Montana, Wyoming and Utah eastward to the Mississippi. In the extreme northwest the rain has turned to snow, which is reported from western Montana, northwestern Wyoming, and portions of the British northwest. While cloudy weather has prevailed over much of the central and eastern states, the rainfall east of the Mississippi has been confined to the east gulf and south Atlantic coast districts, where rains have been of daily occurrence for the last week.
Moderately warm weather has continued over the central and eastern states, but much cooler weather has appeared in the northwest. Freezing temperatures have occurred in the extreme northwest and frosts are reported as far southeastward as South Dakota and Nebraska.
Fair and warm weather will continue in this section tonight, but it is probable that showers will overspread this section by Tuesday, accompanied by cooler weather.

PROMINENT MEN OPEN NEW ADDITION LATTER PART OF WEEK

John B. Franke, of the Perfection Biscuit company; Walton H. Ingham and Eugene M. Fitch, of the Fitch & Sons agency, owners of "Fairfield View Place," make the following announcement:

Many people within the past three weeks called or phoned Monroe W. Fitch & Sons relative to improvements to be put in at "Fairfield View Place," located just east of Fairfield avenue on Pontiac street. This agency has been unable to give the public much information about improvements or prices of lots to date. This they regret, but promise, however, a plat of the addition in not later than next Sunday's Journal-Gazette, and the prices of the lots will be very low, considering location and the many improvements to be put in on the drive.

Within a few days, comparatively speaking, we will be able to show you what we believe will be the most beautiful six-room house in the city, which is now being built on the addition at the north end of the court. Don't buy a home until you see this property. Telephone Monroe W. Fitch & Sons' office or residence any time during the day or night and they will give you all the information possible. We are sure that you will be interested if you desire to buy a lot or a home at a low figure in the best location in Fort Wayne. Phones—Residence, 371 Bell; office, 373; residence, 1746 Home; office, 1360 and 1361.

HUNTER SLAIN BY ACCIDENT

R. H. Bauer, of Garrett, is Killed While on Shooting Trip.

(Special to The Sentinel.)

Garrett, Ind., Oct. 5.—R. H. Bauer, an engineer on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, residing in this city, met an almost instant accidental death while on a hunting trip southeast of this city this morning.

Bauer, with C. O. Rectenwald, were on a squirrel hunting trip in the "big woods" two and one-half miles southeast of Garrett, and were starting for home when in some manner Rectenwald's gun was accidentally discharged, the load striking his companion.

Bauer lived but two minutes after the shot.

RIOTERS GIVEN CASH PENALTY

Decatur Bunch Who Fought Police Told to Keep Away from City

Leo Bogner and William Hamilton were fined $50 and costs and given fifty days in jail each and Charles S. Strob and Walter Wilkinson or Wilson were fined $25 and given fifteen days in jail each, all of them being charged with disorderly conduct. The quartet came from Decatur on a joy ride Saturday night. At the Hotel Edwin Bogner and Hamilton started a row with Carl Herford, the bartender, who tried to get the men out of the saloon and take Wilkinson, who was helplessly drunk, with them. The pair wanted trouble and allowed they could clean up all the saloonkeepers and bartenders in town, and when Officers Charles Westerman and Michael Laughlin tried to put a quietus on the brewing trouble further allowed that a Fort Wayne policeman didn't look any bigger than anybody else. The men had clubs handy and they walloped Herford over the head, cutting a bad gash above his right eye. Then the coppers cut loose and had to mace the drunken and infuriated pair into submission. Bogner was badly used up and as an exhibit in police court was interesting. Wilkinson got away during the fight and went to the Pennsylvania station, where he committed an indecedent offense and was arrested for drunkenness. It was not known at the time that he was a participant in the affair at the hotel. Bogner was taken to the hospital, where it was found his injuries were not dangerous. The fellows all promised not to come back to Fort Wayne to look for trouble in consideration of which the jail sentences were suspended.

Another Saloon Fight.

Perry Carpenter, charged with disorderly conduct, looked as though he had been used as a buffer for a head-on collision. His head was split, both eyes were blacked and his face was highly ornate with various cuts and bruises. He said a man named Walter Scott tried to put on a wrestling match in Sam Sloman's saloon, Harrison and Pearl streets, Saturday, over the protest of the proprietor. They prevented Sloman from calling the police over his own telephone, and while he was turning in an alarm from a nearby drug store the two went at it and put on a vicious rough and tumble fight. Scott got away before the officers arrived. Carpenter was told to go and sin no more.

Just by Way of Contrast.

Tony Boneman, a simple-minded, hard-working man who resides with his sisters on St. Joe boulevard, got drunk at home Sunday from a neighbor's bottle and became noisy. His sister telephoned for the police and he was arrested. Judge Kerr fined him $1 and costs. The arresting officer testified that Tony was harmless and was always industrious. Then came Charles Davis, a police character and confirmed thief, who a few months ago completed seventy days in jail for robbing a man, and who had done jail time previously. Davis once stole the bell of a church that had burned at Huntertown, and sold it in Fort Wayne, for which he served time. Davis has been detained by the police for investigation in connection with the murder of Harry Shaw, whose body was found in the St. Mary's river nearly four years ago. This time Davis was drunk when arrested. He was admonished to continue along paths of rectitude and turned loose.

Paroled Convict Mildly Dealt With.

John Campbell, a convict paroled from Michigan City prison several months ago for assault with intent to kill at Elkhart, Ind., tried to pull a hold-up on Main street at 1:30 Sunday morning when, with a companion who is unknown, he assaulted George Young, 2630 Nelson street, and was prevented from robbing him by Detective Sergeant Walter Immel, who heard the men plan the job, and got on the scene just after Young had been knocked down at the alley between Calhoun and Harrison streets. Campbell ran and Detective Immel pursued him to Columbia street, where Campbell gave the officer a fierce battle, striking, biting and kicking with terrible fury. For this Campbell got $10 and costs and ten days. The court shut off Detective Immel in peremptory fashion when the officer sought to testify as to Campbell's criminal record, but Prosecutor Frank Dulin insisted on having it and it went in.

Bound Over to Circuit Court.

Louis Beaver and Roy Smith, charged with petit larceny, were sent over to the circuit court under $1,000 bond each. They were toting a forty-pound roll of copper, stolen from the Frank Gruber boiler works on Barr street, when Detectives Brennan and Rundell picked them up Saturday night. Recently, it is said by the police, Beaver stole forty pounds of tin foil from Abe Fields, a junker.

Grabbed Money and Ran.

Last July Cy Cross, a negro, was employed to help Robert Dickert, another negro, get his luggage to the interurban station. At Main street and Maiden lane Cross demanded his pay and while Dickert was dishing a quarter from a handful of money Cross grabbed a $20 gold piece and fled. He disappeared from the city and upon his return a few days ago was arrested on a warrant issued shortly after the theft. Cross admitted grabbing the money, but offered as extenuating circumstances that he and Dickert had stopped to shoot craps on the sidewalk and that he was cleaned up for $15 and wanted his money back. He got $15 and costs and fifteen days in jail. The crap-shooting story was an interesting myth, evidently invented for the occasion.

Other City Court Cases.

George Stanton and "Beans" Crawford, charged with drunkenness, were held under bonds of $100 each until Oct. 9, while the police investigate their possession of some merchandise they had been peddling.

Al Ott and William Voelker, drunks, were turned loose, and Howard Frazier, another drunk, was fined $1 and costs.

Florence Young, a feeble minded youth held for several weeks on a loitering charge, was again continued under bond.

Custro Trio, charged with loitering, was released after Officer Pattee had testified that the foreigner had been persistently following women on the street.

Queenie Gaines, charged with adultery, had consented to live until Monday morning, and was in court as she had contingently promised to be. She was continued until Tuesday and allowed to go.

FINDS STOLEN MOTORCYCLE.

FIND STOLEN CLOTHING.

Detective Sergeants Pappert and Junk found a part of the clothing stolen from the Barker-Rose show windows a week ago on the roof of the rear part of a Chinese restaurant on West Main street. The roof is next to the Palace hotel, where Earl Helmer, one of the trio of young thieves now under arrest, was lodging.

BLUES TAKE EIGHTH STRAIGHT.

Monroeville, Ind., Oct. 5.—The Monroeville Blues won their eighth straight by defeating the Decatur Stags in an interesting game by the score of 5 to 4. Distel of Fort Wayne, pitching for Decatur, might have won had it not been for bad support. This was his first defeat in fourteen games. Grimes, for the locals, was in good form, having twenty-one strikeouts to his credit. Score by innings:

NATION BOWS IN PEACE PRAYER

Observance of Peace Sunday at Washington is Notable.

Washington, Oct. 5.—The American nation on its knees praying to Almighty God to end the great world struggle was the spectacle presented to the belligerents yesterday.

President Wilson and the members of his cabinet, senators and members of congress, the chief justice and associate justices of the United States supreme court—all officialdom, in fact, was in the churches of the national capital yesterday leading the American people in this united prayer.

With them were the representatives of other neutral nations. A number of the agents of belligerent countries also attended church. They did not officially participate, however, in this unique ceremony. The president attended the Central Presbyterian church.

The ambassadors of Great Britain, France, Russia, Germany, Austria and Japan and the minister of Belgium will make full reports to their governments on the sublime response to the proclamation of President Wilson.

Prayer to Facilitate Peace.

In this way there will be brought home to the fighting states the deep religious feeling of America and the method of its expression in behalf of peace. That it will exert a real influence upon European thought and facilitate the mediation of the president there is not the slightest doubt.

Further to emphasize this day of prayer the state department advised all the American representatives accredited to the belligerent nations of the president's proclamation. In accordance with the appeal therein set forth these representatives attended services in churches of Europe and uttered their prayers for the early cessation of the struggle. So from various parts of the world, including the United States, rose the fervent hope that Almighty God would intervene to terminate the terrible war.

Paris, Oct. 5.—(3:02 p. m.)—The following official statement was given out in Paris this afternoon:

"On our left wing, to the north of Oise, the battle continues with great violence. The result remains indecisive. We have been obliged, at certain points, to yield ground.

"Along the remainder of the front there has been no change.

"In Russia, after a battle which lasted ten days, the German army which was operating between the Eastern Prussian front and the Nieman river has been driven back along the entire line and made its retreat abandoning a considerable quantity of war material.

"This army has evacuated completely the territory of the Russian provinces of Suwalki and Loaja."

The Figaro says that France has protested to Holland that German merchants are using their flag to carry contraband and that Holland, after investigating, announced that the complaints were justified. It is believed, says the Figaro, that a state of siege will be proclaimed in Rotterdam to end the trade in contraband.

The Servian Claims.

A Havas agency dispatch from Nish brings the following official statement from the Servian war office:

"Servian troops in Bosnia have approached the fortifications protecting Sarajevo (the capital). The Austrians, who occupy the heights on the right bank of the Drina, are suffering from lack of provisions.

Today's War News Given in Summary.

The allies have been obliged to give ground at certain points on the western side of the battle line. This was announced in a statement issued by the French war office at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The announcement is brief, containing only the additional information that the battle continues with great violence to the north of the Oise without decisive results and that there is no change on the remainder of the front.

A wireless dispatch from Berlin today brings a long German official statement in which, however, there is no reference whatever to the great engagement in which the allies are attempting to turn the German right wing in northern France and reach the German line of communication to Belgium.

The German war office declares that in the siege of Antwerp forts Lierre, Waelhem and Konigshoyckt have been taken, opening the way for an attack on the inner circle of fortifications and the city proper.

Belgian's denials that any of their forts had fallen came from Antwerp, by way of London, yesterday and again today an official Belgian announcement, which passed through the hands of the British censor, declares that the situation of the fortified positions around Antwerp remains unchanged today.

The German war office says the Russian left wing was defeated after a furious battle of two days on the Niemen river.

There has been nothing official from Petrograd, but the most recent reports, official and unofficial, from the Russian capital, set forth that the German and Austrian forces all along the fighting area from the Baltic to Hungaria were being checked, driven back or routed.

The returns of the German imperial bank last week are described in a Beroin dispatch as showing an increase in specie of $10,250,000 over the last previous report.

The German infantry have appeared in the fighting in the territory of Kiao Chow, China. Tokio announces a surprise night attack by infantry from Tsing Tau, but says that attack was repulsed. Fighting between the land and naval forces at Kiao Chow continues.

The Servians still claim to be about to capture Sarajevo, the capital of the Austrian province of Bosnia. War headquarters at Nish announce that Servian troops have approached the fortifications of the city.

An official report from Vienna says that the Austrians are driving the Servian and Montenegrin invaders from East Bosnia and that two Montenegrin brigades were repulsed after a severe engagement lasting two days.

BIG LOT OF WORK AHEAD

Wilson Outlining Program for Congress Far in Advance.

But Does Not Believe Extra Sessions Will Be Necessary.

Washington, Oct. 5.—Outlining the legislative program for the remainder of the session of congress, President Wilson told callers today that no extra session in November was contemplated. He added that only some extraordinary emergency would necessitate an extra session following adjournment of the short session in March.

The president said the war tax bill, the Clayton anti-trust bill and the Alaska coal leasing bill would complete the important work for the present session and that when these bills were disposed of he saw no reason why an adjournment should not be taken. October 15 is the date tentatively agreed upon.

Asked about the threat of Representative Henry of Texas, to fight against an adjournment until cotton relief measures were passed, the president said that the membership of the house other than Mr. Henry would decide when to adjourn.

Next Session's Program.

For the next session the program as outlined by the president include the Alexander ship purchase bill, the Philippine bill, the General leasing bill, the general land bill, the general dam bill and the usual appropriation bills. Regarding the presidential primary bill, which he advocates, the president said today that he had held several conferences on the subject and had found there would be great complexity in framing the details in order not to conflict with state election laws. He declared it would be difficult to complete the legislation this congress but that he was still at work on the subject.

WILL ENDORSE THEM ALL FOR RE-ELECTION.

Washington, Oct. 5.—President Wilson was understood today to be preparing a letter endorsing for re-election all democratic members of the house, urging the necessity of retaining the democratic majority in congress to carry out the policies of the administration.

RUSH AMERICAN HORSES FOR WAR

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 5.—J. S. McFayden, general manager of the Herr's Island stockyards, today was notified by the Pennsylvania railroad to prepare to handle 1,000 horses tomorrow, feeding and watering and unloading them for a rest of five hours. They are being brought from East St. Louis and are on their way to New York where they will be shipped to Europe by the British government. Nine thousand more are to follow as rapidly as they can be handled. The horses are traveling in special trains, fifty cars to the train.

STILL BUYING MORE.

East St. Louis, Ill., Oct. 5.—British agents resumed the buying of horses today. They have orders to buy 10,000 head and have placed an order with one local firm for seven hundred a week. The French are buying horses at the rate of 350 a day.

RICHMOND BANK READY.

Federal Reserve in Virginia City Fully Organized.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 5.—The Federal reserve bank for the Richmond district was organized today by the election of George J. Zay as governor. James A. Monsure was appointed secretary. The bank with temporary quarters rented, is now ready to open for business at the order of the federal reserve board.

More than 100,000 votes were cast in the "Votes for Little Women" contest that was held before the award was made and the affair was highly successful. The nearest competitors in the contest were Misses Clara Sherbondy, Lillian Fraunfelder, Helen Luley, Mildred Baals, Alma Haffner and Blanche Pion, who were awarded secondary prizes. Other contestants who came within the prize winning circle were the Misses Helen Fleming, Ruby McGuire, Opal Baker, Emma Beyerlein, Phlis Madara, Dorothy Schiefer, Margaret Kennerk, Magdalen Wagner, Ruth Bucker, Thelma Hill, Gladys Bisson and Juanita Tieman.

WEAVE NET OF STEEL ABOUT GEN. VON KLUCK

London, Oct. 5.—(1:15 p. m.)—The fact that fighting is in progress in and around the town of Douai, midway between Arras and Valenciennes on the railroad to Mons, is taken in London to show how surely the allies in northern France have pushed the forward movement they hope will envelop Gen. von Kluck, the commander of the German right wing, in a net of steel.

For the past week the Germans, so far as can be ascertained from the few facts known in London, have been vainly hurling themselves against different points in the allied line in an effort to discover a weak mesh in the net. At the present time, in the view of Gen. Joffre, commander in chief of the French forces, the process of attrition has gone far enough to justify the resumption of offensive movements on the part of the allies as is announced in the last communication from French headquarters.

Apparently the intention now is to attempt something decisive against the German right wing and if possible bring to an end this contest which for magnitude and stubbornness is without precedent in history.

The series of high lands stretching north and south along the allied left are the master keys of the battle, and a considerable force from over-seas and elsewhere has been pushed up to secure control of them.

At Soissons the German trenches already have been captured, but the Germans continue to fight fiercely and are still attacking at this point as elsewhere along the entire line of battle which their latest official report asserts is going on in their favor just as confidently as Gen. Joffre maintains the contrary.

In the western theater of the war the Germans would appear, according to English observers, to be contemplating a period of defense before undertaking the offensive. They are busily engaged between Thorn, in Eastern Prussia, and Galicia in entrenching themselves against the Russian hosts gathering on the other side of the frontier. It is calculated that there is no fewer than four million fighting men in this eastern arena and a repetiton of the long and arduous siege battles which have been such a feature of the struggle in France seems a certainty.

The Russian plans to push eastward on Cracow evidently with the hope of getting thence to Breslau, and they go on stretching their tenacles out southward toward Budapest. The Cossacks are well in on the plains of Hungary. Even Budapest admits that they have crossed the river Theiss, which was regarded as one of the main obstacles to their progress.

The Austrians claim further victories against their smaller enemy invading Bosnia, but they are silent on the subject of Sarajevo, which, according to Servian and Montenegrin statements, is surrounded by their allied armies.

APPROVED BY WILSON.

Commends McCombs for Declining New York State Chairmanship.

Washington, Oct. 5.—The action of Wm. F. McCombs, chairman of the democratic national committee in declining the offer of the chairmanship of the New York state democratic state committe was approved today by President Wilson. The president gave out this formal statement: "In my judgment Mr. McCombs has done the right thing. It would not be wise for the national chairman to withdraw his attention from the national campaign to conduct the campaign in a single state."

Mr. and Mrs. Barney Borkenstein Arrive from Germany.

Fort Wayne Man Denies Rumored Detention by Military Authorities.

Barney Borkenstein, 2532 John street, former member of the Fort Wayne city council and a well known contractor, is back from war-stricken Europe, accompanied by Mrs. Borkenstein, and the two enjoy an unusual distinction in the fact that although they were in Germany from the time hostilities were commenced until Sept. 23, they suffered no hardships.

They were not questioned, nor detained, had no trouble getting all the money they needed and just when they needed it, had plenty to eat, a good place to sleep every night and the couple would have remained longer but for the fact that the good wife became uneasy and homesick and wanted to get back to Fort Wayne.

Mr. Borkenstein entered a laughing denial to the fact that he was detained by the military authorities. A report to this effect had attained circulation in Fort Wayne. "Why, I talked to the police every day, ate with them and I would have been over there yet but my wife got homesick and I had to come with her as she could not come alone. It was so interesting over there that I wanted to stay and see it out.

SAYS ENGLAND WILL FORCE PORTUGAL IN

Berlin, Oct. 5.—(By Wireless to Sayville, L. I.)—British ships have arrived at Lisbon and are probably destined to transport Portuguese troops, says an official report from the German army headquarters today. It continues:

"Portugal's co-operation in the war is imminent, the mobilization of the Portuguese forces, it is said, having been ordered on the demand of the British government.

"According to a statement made by his eminence, Cardinal Beldinger, the highest Roman Catholic authority in Bavaria, the statement appearing in English and American newspapers that priests have been shot and bayonetted by German soldiers, while attending the wounded in Belgium, are to be considered as absolutely without foundation. This also declared that English newspaper correspondents overlook the fact that a large portion of the Germany army is Roman Catholic.

"A manifesto signed by Harnack, Rode, Behring, Hauptmann, Klinger, Sudermann, Roentgen, Fulda, Deissmann, Humperdinck, Liebermann, Mansel, Liesst, Thoma and Wund and other prominent savants and artists indignantly protests against what is termed unceasing lies about the pretended barbarous warfare of the Germans.

"The American commission has addressed a letter to Franz Mendelsohn and the German American relief committee highly praising the German nation in arms and thanking them for innumerable proofs of kindness."

"The force of native troops from British India, which recently landed at Marseilles, has left that port for the northward.

DEAD BESTREW BATTLE FIELD

New York, Oct. 5.—Lieutenant A. Ellicott Brown, U. S. A., who visited the battlefield of the Meuse after the fighting, reached New York today aboard the steamship Minnetonka with a vivid description of the battlefield. So great had been the carnage, he said, that within a radius of 600 yards he saw 1,000 dead Germans.

The bayonet charges of the allies, he said, were responsible for the great slaughter as the German soldiers were so strongly entrenched that they could be dislodged in no other way.

"I saw Captain Parker of the United States army while I was in France," Lieut. Brown said, "and he told me that the German army's retreat from its near approach to Paris had been a perfect military movement and that he had seen but one dead German left behind."

The German soldiers are friendly to the French peasants, he said, and he found no trace of atrocities although he had heard much about them.

JACK'S $50,000 BOND FORFEITED

Chicago, Oct. 5.—The $50,000 bail bonds of Jack Johnson, the prize fighter, were forfeited in the United States district court, but the government is said to have a poor chance of collecting.

The bonds were provded by the late Matthew Baldwin, whose estate is insolvent, and Johnson's mother, also said to be unable to pay.

The bonds were furnished to guarantee Johnson's appearance today for retrial on charges that he violated the Mann act in transporting Belle Schreiber from Pittsburg to Chicago. He was convicted on the first trial, but error was discovered by the court of appeals.

CABINET MEMBERS BACK.

Washington, Oct. 5.—Secretary Garrison returned today from Rouses Point, N. Y., where he inspected a manuever camp of troops of the eastern department and camped several days with Major General Leonard Wood.

LAST-MINUTE NEWS

SUPERIOR NICHOLAS AT THE FRONT.

Petrograd, Oct. 5.—Emperor Nicholas, commander-in-chief of the Russian armies, has arrived at the headquarters of the active force of the army. This information was given out today from general headquarters.

TWELVE MINERS DIE IN EXPLOSION.

Birmingham, Ala., Oct. 5.—Twelve men are known to be dead and twelve injured as a result of an explosion today in the Mulga mines of the Woodward Iron company, 18 miles northwest of Birmingham. Four of the miners killed were white and the remainder were negroes. Rescue gangs were organized immediately after the explosion but not all of the bodies have yet been recovered.

NO CHANGE ABOUT ANTWERP.

Antwerp, Belgium, Oct. 5.—(Via London, 4:03 p. m.)—According to official announcement made here today the situation of the forts around Antwerp remains today without change.

THOUGHT SERMON NOTES WERE CODED

London, Oct. 5.—Albert Williams, pastor of the Maverick Congregational church at Boston, has reached London after arrest and imprisonment in Brussels at the hands of the German military authorities on the charge of being an English spy and with trying to buy information concerning the movement of German troops. Notes made by Mr. Williams in a French dictionary for a sermon on the horrors of war fell into the hands of the Germans when he was arrested. A German lieutenant thought they constituted code messages because of the abbreviated form in which they had been set down.

He was not permitted to communicate wth Brand Whitlock, the American minister in Brussels. Finally he persuaded a German student that he was not a spy and he managed to get a letter to Mr. Whitlock, who brought about his release.

LOSS OF LIFE IS ENORMOUS

Centers of Smyrnan Carpet Industry Suffer Very Heavily.

Smyrna, Asiatic Turkey, Sunday, Oct. 4.—(Via London, Oct. 5.)—1:13 p. m.—The towns of Isbarta (population about 25,000) and Burdur (population about 12,000) in the province of Konia, were severely damaged by an earthquake last night at midnight.

The loss of life was very heavy. These two towns are centers of the carpet industry.

A dispatch from Fort de France, island of Martinique, received in New York last Saturday, said that shortly after 1 o'clock that day a severe earthquake shock was felt at Fort de France. The direction was from north to south. No damage was done locally.

The same shock was recorded also through the Windward and Leeward islands.

THEY AGREE TO BURY HATCHET

Wilson and Harvey Hold a Peace Conference at White House.

Washington, Oct. 6.—President Wilson and George Harvey, former editor of Harper's Weekly, but now of the North American Review, whose controversy over the support of Harper's Weekly furnished one of the chief incidents of Mr. Wilson's campaign for the presidency, celebrated "peace Sunday" yesterday by a harmony meeting at the white house. It was their first meeting since their talk in 1911 in the presence of Henry Watterson, editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal whose attacks on Mr. Wilson caused Mr. Harvey to withdraw his support from Mr. Wilson for the presidential nomination.

Mr. Harvey called at the white house at the invitation of Mr. Wilson to discuss the European situation and the fall campaign. In the last issue of his magazine, Mr. Harvey praised the president's attitude since the outbreak of war in Europe and suggested that he wait patiently for the psychological moment to urge peace. He also advocated the election of a democratic senate and house in November.

The president and Mr. Harvey remained in conference for more than an hour in the president's study. It was said at the white house later that the meeting was most friendly and that the past difference was not referred to.

Mr. Harvey said he had called at Mr. Wilson's request "to discuss public questions, principally the European situation," and that "as a matter of course," the talk was friendly.

The white house meeting followed a conference between Mr. Harvey, Mr. Tumulty, the president's secretary; Frederick Lynch, democratic national committeeman from Minnesota, and Thomas Pence, of the National committee's publicity bureau. The fall campaign was discussed.

INDIANS DISPERSE MOB.

Braves in Feathers and Blankets Put I. W. W. Itinerants to Flight.

Glasgow, Mont., Oct. 5.—Indians in feathers and blankets fell upon and dispersed Industrial Workers of the World itinerants, whose clashes Saturday cost four lives. The Indians' work was bloodless so far as could be learned. The Indian police from a reservation near Poplar, Mont., were called upon and responded, with a number of braves who had been hastily deputized. Action was in progress and all were gaudy with paint and decorations.

It was learned that Saturday's troubles arose from internal dissentions and that one bullet which killed A. J. Giantvalley, a civil engineer of St. Paul, Minn., was a stray one. The three other men killed were members of the band.

SLAIN IN STREET DUEL.

Man Who Shot Indian Attorney at Durant, Okla., Makes Escape.

Durant, Okla., Oct. 5.—S. J. Homer, an attorney, was shot and instantly killed here today in a revolver duel on a main street. The man who is said to have done the shooting escaped.

Homer was one of the leading Indians of the state, having been formerly national secretary of the tribal government of the Choctaw nation.

The Store That Does Things

GERMANS ROUTED, RUSSIANS CLAIM

London, Oct. 5.—(10:10 a. m.)—Russian reports indicate that the German offensive towards the Nieman river from the East Prussian frontier has ended in a German rout after the battle of Augustowo, which has been under way since Sept. 25.

If these reports are true it means that not only has Gen. Rennenkampff been given an opportunity to resume offensive, but the important fortress of Ossowetz has been relieved from investment.

An official message from the commandant of the German fortresses at Koenigsberg, however, directly contradicts the Russian report and the Berlin version of the fighting, while it does not localize it as particularly as the Russian report, maintains that the Germans along the East Prussian frontier have generally been victorious.

As was expected, subsequent reports have discredited the rumor that the Russians were investing Cracow. It was hardly possible for Muscovite forces to have reached there such a short time, but a report that Cossacks have reached the neighborhood of Cracow is distinctly credible and the famous Russian cavalry is showing an ability to cover the same wide field of operations as the Uhlans in the western war area.

While the allies in the west are congratulating themselves upon the excellence of the railway service which enabled them to bring up all the necessary transports and reinforcements, the Russians in East Prussia are suffering from a lack of such facilities. No matter how great the Russian invading host proves to be, physical conditions alone would prevent any duplication of the wonderful march of the German forces through Belgium and northern France. Fighting is reported around Doubai, fifteen miles east-northeast of Arras, and if this is true Gen. von Kluck is in a dangerous predicament as he has been since the allies began their determined movement to turn the German right in northern France.

A lull befitting the day apparently prevailed Sunday along most of the great battle front. The anxiety over the French situation at St. Mihiel evidently has been greatly relieved, probably by the movement which threatens the rear of the crown prince's army.

It now seems certain that the forts in the outer rim of the Antwerp defense are still occupied by the defenders, but these must have suffered greatly. The desperate efforts on the part of the Germans to cross the river Nethe, where their advance lines rest, have been repulsed. Along this line one of the great German siege guns is said to have been lost in a swamp. If this is true it is a serious disaster to the Germans for the huge weapons are not easy to replace. The latest reports from the besieged city indicate that two attempts of the Germans to cross the river Nethe have been smothered by the defenders' artillery.

Veteran Soldiers to Hold Meeting at Lagrange on Thursday.

Joseph Kickley, of Fort Wayne, has issued a call for a meeting of all veteran soldiers to be held at Lagrange on Thursday, October 8, for the purpose of forming a district organization.

"We veterans are dropping off rapidly," said Mr. Kickley to The Sentinel. "It will soon be impossible to hold regimental or company reunions, because too few of the old boys will be left. The plan is to form a district organization of old soldiers, whether they be members of the G. A. R. and kindred soldier organizations or not, in order that we may maintain an organization longer. Every veteran in the Twelfth congressional district is urged to attend and members of his family are also invited."

EATON WILL LIVE TO FACE A TRIAL

New York, Oct. 5.—Physicians at the hospital where he was taken on Wednesday night, after he had been shot by detectives from whom he was trying to escape, said last night that Herbert Eaton, the young clerk who, thinking he was on his death bed, confessed, according to the police, to thefts involving about $20,000, of which jewelry valued at $15,000 was taken from Miss Mariah Kohn, will live to stand trial. On Saturday it was thought that Eaton had only a few days to live.

Eaton began to show signs of recovery, the physicians say, after his wife had visited him and promised to make a new start with him as soon as his troubles are over.

ADDS $200 TO RED CROSS FUND.

Entertainment by Allied German Societies Big Success.

The benefit entertainment given Sunday evening at Turner hall under the auspices of the allied German societies of the city, was a decided success. About $200 was realized from the event and this sum will be added to the Red Cross fund now being raised.

The musical program which was appropriate for the occasion, was excellent. The Moose band made the hall ring with martial and patriotic airs of the Germans, and young Herbert Frankenstein played upon his violin.

Following the music, Henry Meyer introduced Attorney Otto Fuelber, the first speaker of the evening. Mr. Fuelber spoke about the titanic struggle now in progress on the continent of Europe, and urged his audience to aid the German cause in every manner permissible to citizens of a neutral nation. He pointed out the many ties of kinship and friendship which binds the German-Americans to the fatherland.

Attorney William Fruechtenicht followed with an eloquent address in which he referred to the one-sided reports which the American newspapers receive, due to the fact that the German cable was cut by the allies.

The gymnastic exercises of the active Turners, the tableau "Germania," exhibitions by members of the Landwehr and the Concordia, Saxonia and Kreis Stolzenau singing societies were exceedingly good.

Sweet potatoes may be said to be the staple crop of China. There is no section which does not raise them, and they are a substantial part of the diet of a greater part of the Chinese people.

In the home of an old German who died in Davenport, Wash., there has been found a Bible 219 years old and a set of silver dating back to 1733. Both of them will be sold at auction.

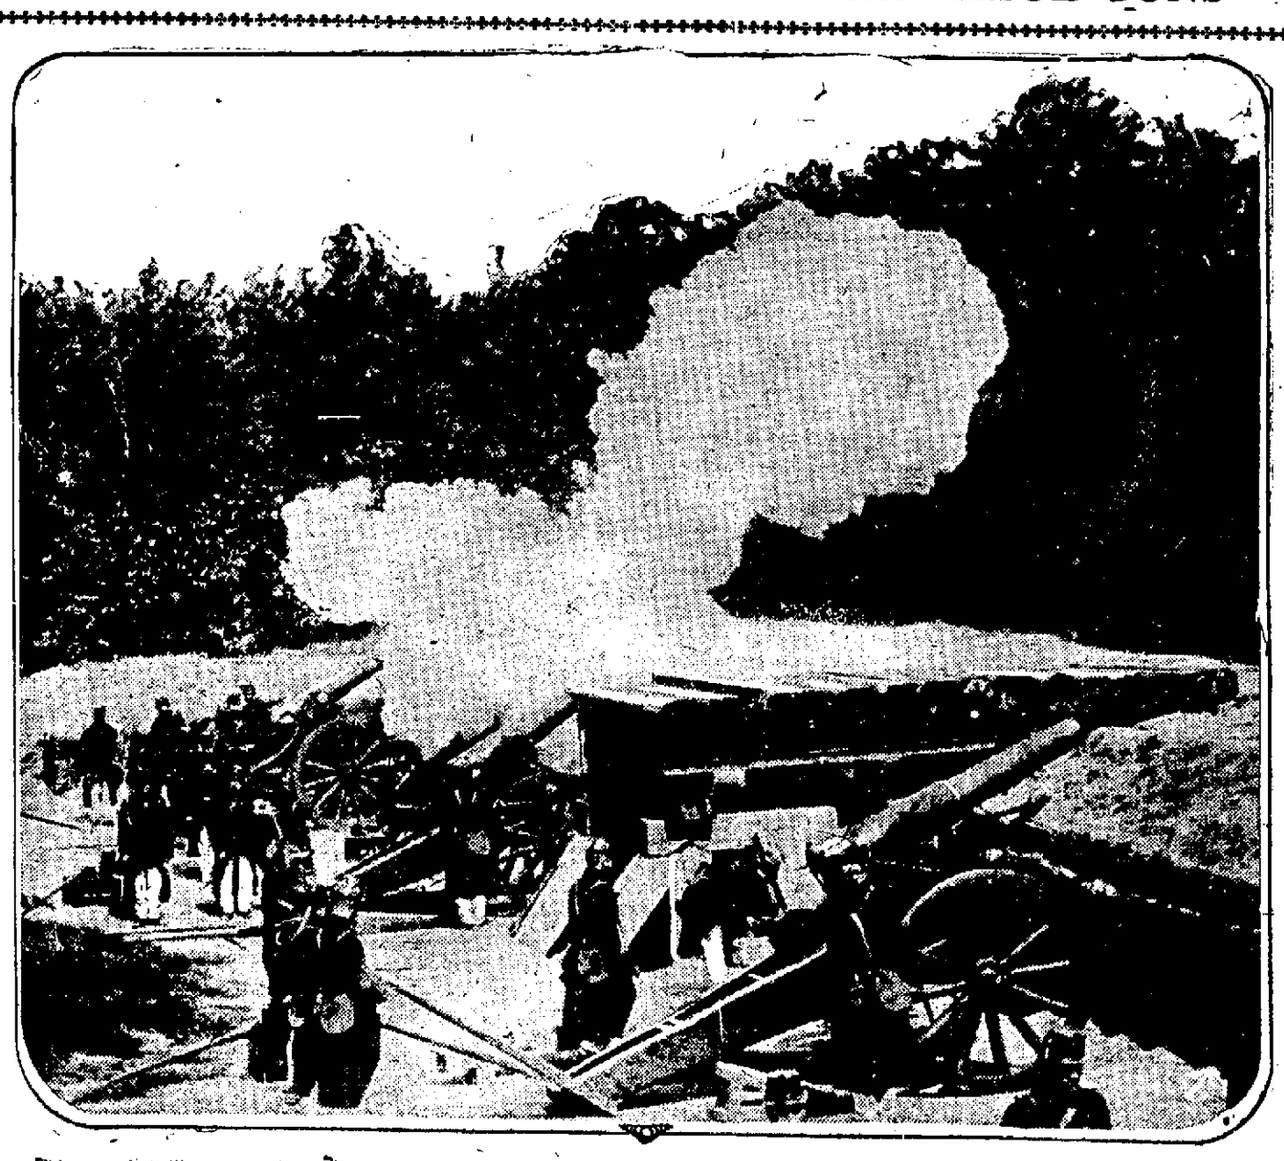
BELGIAN FORT REPLIES TO GERMAN SIEGE GUNS



This snapshot illustrates what is undoubtedly happening today at Antwerp. The Germans have terrific siege guns, but the Belgians are said to have the latest patterns also. The Antwerp siege will decide if the latter are as deadly as the German cannon.

DOESN'T KNOW HOW TO SLEUTH

But Seattle Police Chief is Big Success as a Peace-Keeper.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 5—Chief of Police Austin F. Griffiths of this city is probably the most learned police executive in America today.

He doesn't know a great deal about the fine art of sleuthing, the best make of handcuffs or any of the old-time qualifications thought essential for the head of a police department.

But Griffiths, a lawyer incidentally, knows a lot about playground movements, social conditions in his city, is an expert on forms of city government, espousing the commission form, and on what the average man ought to have in the charter to give him a square deal.

Twice a member of the city council, Chief Griffiths was the most surprised man in town when he was made head of police by Mayor Hiram Gill, who "came back" after being recalled, and whom he had opposed as mayoralty candidate twice.

When Mayor Gill tendered the chieftaincy to Griffiths he turned the proposition down. But the next day the telephone bore to him such an overhelming demand on the part of the people to accept that he changed his decision.

It is unsual for police chiefs to sit in deliberation on proposed city charter revisions, but that is what Chief Griffiths has been doing recently, and what is probably more important and significant, he was strongly against the plan submitted by the charter revision committee, calling for 30 councilmen who could be empowered to appoint a city manager.

In addition to this, under the proposed plan, the city would have a mayor to look after the social functions of the city.

That's a bit too flossy for studious and terribly-in-earnest Griffiths, whose attitude is "social functions be hanged until better social conditions for All of Seattle's people have been secured." He says the 30-ward plan is a step backward an encroachment upon direct government by the people. Substantial things first, for Chief of Police Griffiths, and ornamental matters afterward.

And the people are inclined to agree with him meanwhile holding him up to other cities as a model sort of man to have as police executive.

There's no end to the fantastic twists Dame Fashion gives the sash which invariably trims the new fall gowns. Some of them are long, most of them are wide, some are adjustable, and a few of them form a drapery for the gown—and not all of them are either becoming or graceful.

One of the very latest models is shown in the illustration. It is of the same material as the gown and it is drawn from the bust line in the front diagonally over the hips and fastened in the back with a large white velvet buckle.

THE SENTINEL'S DAILY SCRIPTURE READING.

II Chronicles 6:1-11.

1 Then said Solomon, The Lord hath said that he would dwell in the thick darkness.

2 But I have built an house of habitation for thee, and a place for thy dwelling for ever.

3 And the king turned his face, and blessed the whole congregation of Israel: and all the congregation of Israel stood.

4 And he said, Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, who hath with his hands fulfilled that which he spake with his mouth to my father David, saying,

5 Since the day that I brought forth my people out of the land of Egypt I chose no city among all the tribes of Israel to build an house in, that my name might be there; neither chose I any man to be a ruler over my people Israel:

6 But I have chosen Jerusalem, that my name might be there; and have chosen David to be over my people Israel.

7 Now it was in the heart of David my father to build an house for the name of the Lord God of Israel.

8 But the Lord said to David my father, Forasmuch as it was in thine heart to build an house for my name, thou didst well in that it was in thine heart:

9 Notwithstanding thou shalt not build the house; but thy son which shall come forth out of thy loins, he shall build the house for my name.

10 The Lord therefore hath performed his word that he hath spoken: for I am risen up in the room of David my father, and am set on the throne of Israel, as the Lord promised, and have built the house for the name of the Lord God of Israel.

11 And in it have I put the ark, wherein is the covenant of the Lord, that he made with the children of Israel.

The Sentinel's telegraph columns on Saturday carried the story of the filing of a preliminary report on state-wide flood prevention by the engineer of the Indiana flood commission that is of especial interest in Fort Wayne. It discloses that while the engineers have done a great deal of work, very much more of study and examination and planning is going to be required before a physical start at flood prevention can be attempted on any considerable scale.

The report contains a summary of recommendations regarding the engineer's part of the work of the commission in which the following are advocated: The employment of a publicity agent; the publication of a resume of the information obtained by the investigation; field trips to determine the status of county bridge openings and other local flood problems; that the legislature be asked to co-operate with the United States geological survey for a topgraphical map and stream gaugings; that the service of the commission be offered to communities in flood protection plans; that legislation be recommended providing control of bridge openings by some state authority.

It is apparent that further definite action in the matter of flood prevention is going to depend largely on the new legislature which will convene in January next. Chairman Shirk, of the flood commission, will formulate the findings for presentation to the legislature with recommendations as to how he believes the commission can be of assistance to that body in dealing with the problem. It is now highly important to secure the election of a legislature which will take up the question in a broad-gauge way and in deep earnestness.

Edison is reported to have demonstrated to the Portland Cement Co., and other manufacturers in the United States that it would be a gain and not a loss to give their 80,000 workmen a free Sunday. He argued that the workmen would be more effective on six days for rest on the seventh, and that the kilns could be more advantageously handled with a six-day week than a seven-day week. In case of his own cement works he proved the argument by actual practice, finding that by discontinuing Sunday operations he materially increased the daily output, while the men's health improved.

However splendid they may be as fighters, it must be admitted that judged by the reports we get from the present war in Europe, nothing can approach the achievements of some of the contestants as claimers. On almost any good day for war news one can find any particular shade, tint and hue of war information for which he may chance to be looking—except the peace kind.

Now it is declared that many Indiana real estate men are strongly in favor of requiring all men engaged in the business to pay a state license for the privilege. With nearly everybody else protesting against the payment of licenses and taxes of one sort and another, the attitude of the real estate men has some of the earmarks of the dawn of the millenium.

More power to that Indianapolis grand jury which is taking up the investigation of bill-juggling in the last legislature. The public is entitled to know just who is responsible, to the end that the guilty may be punished and the guiltless freed from the tinge of unjust charge and despicable innuendo. And it is highly important that these facts come out without delay.

What? You haven't registered yet? Well, the registration polls do not close until 9 o'clock this evening. There may yet be time—if you hurry.

Crisis Indicated.

Washington Post: "The shutting down of news from the front is universally regarded as indicating that the crisis of the battle of the Aisne has been reached. Clearly, the end can not be far off."

The Result.

Philadelphia Press: "Any hour may bring news which will definitely determine the result of this appallingly bloody battle. On that result hangs the fate of Germany's first campaign in France."

Losses Tremendous.

Syracuse Post-Standard: "The losses in this greatest of battles have been tremendous. In proportion to the number of men involved, however, they are not so great as in the battles of recent wars."

Continued Slaughter.

Pittsburg Dispatch: "A cool observer will probably begin to entertain the suspicion that the combat in this quarter has reached the stage of continued slaughter without any decisive results, one way or the other."

Test of Endurance.

Boston Advertiser: "Whether or not it prove the sixteenth decisive battle of the world, the three weeks battle is the most stupendous test of human endurance in recorded history."

Direful Possibilities.

Syracuse Journal: "The situation is full of the most direful possibilities for the vanquished in this particular engagement that has known no abatement night and day. It is a titanic struggle."

Early Conclusion.

Pittsburg Sun: "There is a promise of early conclusion from the London official press bureau, which may be based on knowledge of heavy reinforcements to General French. Otherwise the prediction is of no value."

Still Indecisive.

Syracuse Herald: "If we balance the contradictory statements, we must reach the general conclusion that the continuous engagement is still indecisive. The desperateness of the fighting is commensurate with the gravity of the military issues immediately at stake."

MIND MALADIES.

(Ohio State Journal.)

When one gets sick, especially in the digestive and sympathetic region of his being, and doesn't know whether it was stale food, or too much of it, or scant chewing, or bad cooking, that brought calumity to his door, let him go behind the returns and ask himself if he has been angry and impatient or in any way mentally excited, and he may then come close to the cause of his malady. One must not think that all disease can be traced back to some sort of substance or some physical disturbance. He is as likely to find it in his mind, in the form of anger, fear, hatred, or meanness of any sort. Ill treatment of a wife, a child or a friend is very often the cause of indigestion or kidney trouble. Men have been known to have lost their appetite when they lost their temper.

So it is one of the most pressing of hygienic suggestions that a person keep his temper and not rush into a mad spell if he would stay well. It is most always the case that a person who is calm, gentle, kindly and courteous to others is not afflicted with indigestion.

BOTH PRISONER AND PATIENT.

Trousers as Death Rope Prove Failure for New York Man.

New York, Oct. 5.—Charged with having tried to kill himself, John Borgi, 23 years old, of 60 Seammel street, was both prisoner and patient in Bellevue the other night.

Borgi was arrested in the restaurant of Benjamin Goldman, at 597 Water street, on the complaint of the owner of the place, who said Borgi had become violent and had broken dishes and furniture. Soon after he had been put in a cell in the Madison street police station Borgi was found hanging. He had taken off his trousers, made a noose of one leg and fastened the other to the top of the cell door. Patrolman Dugan and a doorman took him down. Then Borgi butted the cell door with great force.

NOT DRUGS.

Food Did It.

After using laxative and cathartic medicines from childhood a case of chronic constipation yielded to the scientific food, Grape-Nuts, in a few days.

"From early childhood I suffered with such terrible constipation that I had to use laxatives continuously, going from one drug to another and suffering more or less all the time.

A prominent physician whom I consulted told me the muscles of the digestive organs were weakened and could not perform their work without help of some kind, so I have tried at different times about every laxative and cathartic known, but found no help that was at all permanent. I had finally become discouraged and had given my case up as hopeless when I began to use the predigested food, Grape-Nuts.

"Although I had not expected this food to help my trouble, to my great surprise Grape-Nuts digested easily from the first and in a few days I was convinced that this was just what my system needed.

"The bowels performed their functions regularly and I am now completely and permanently cured of this awful trouble.

"Truly the power of scientific food must be unlimited." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Trial 10 days of Grape-Nuts, when regular food does not seem to sustain the body, works wonders. "There's a Reason."

(Note.—Following the recent convention of the Northern Indiana Editorial association in Fort Wayne, the newspapers of the northern half of the state have printed uncounted columns of complimentary reference to Fort Wayne. Among the number is the Elwood Record, which contained the following, written by the wife of the publisher. Mrs. Moffett is a gifted Indiana woman who was a speaker at the banquet of the editorial association.)

By Hester Alverson Moffett.

The Northern Indiana Editorial association was entertained in Fort Wayne last week by the Commercial club of that beautifully located, handsomely built, wealthy and commercially enterprising city of happy homes and cultured, industrious public-spirited citizens, and it is with appreciation of an abounding hospitality and the good things we saw that we offer to the readers of the Record a brief summary of the striking evidences of fine citizenship observed while there.

Fort Wayne has an historic atmosphere and a community spirit. And this is to say much more than that it is the third city in the state and one of the oldest and most progressive centers of populaton n Hoosierdom.

Before Gen. Anthony Wayne raised the Stars and Stripes over that rude stockade in 1794, the fleur de lis of France and the lion of St. George had floated over the site of what is now this beautiful, populous city, and many historic spots are marked and made a part of the systematic adornment of the city and its environs. Age is not a necessary concomitant to community spirit, but a happy combination of the two gives to Fort Wayne a character that distinguishes it among the older cities of the state.

An elaborate park and connecting boulevard system, to which the conjunction of the Maumee, St. Mary's and St. Joseph rivers near the heart of the city gives a pleasing touch of the picturesque, is, perhaps, the most striking evidence of the wisdom and public spirit in Fort Wayne that recognizes the utility of beauty and amusement in the life of the people.

Handsome municipal buildings, modern in design, construction and equipment, including a city hall, market house, municipally owned water and electric light plants, asphalt repair plant and garbage crematory, are other evidences of municipal wisdom and thrift, and great financial institutions, housed in buildings typifying their soundness, age and strength, bear witness to that individual success and financial sagacity which is one of the foundations of community activity and development.

These financial institutions include seven banks, four trust companies, a building, loan and savings association and a clearing house, and they have a certain distinction and added strength in the fact that there has never been a bank failure in Fort Wayne.

Many schools with fine buildings and modern equipment provide for the training of youth and tell their own story of the recognition of the importance of education. Two hundred and forty-eight teachers are employed in the public schools. There are 22 parochial schools, 14 Catholic and 8 Lutheran. There is also one college and 17 professional schools. It is to be regretted that so progressive a city as Fort Wayne has not yet adopted the fine system of all-year schools.

Twenty denominations with fifty-six places of worship testify to the moral and spiritual ideals of Fort Wayne and many magnificent church edifices give dignity to the aspect of the city.

Other buildings that add architectural distinction are the public library, the Scottish Rite cathedral, the Young Women's Christian association building, the government building and the county court house, which is one of the most magnificent buildings of the kind in the country. Among the notable buildings also are the six hospitals and eighteen benevolent institutions.

Excellent hotels furnish entertainment to the wayfarer within the gates of the city and many theatres and three privately owned amusement parks offer diversion to those who wish some other recreation than that afforded by the simple beauty and wholesome sports provided in the four large and fourteen smaller city parks, the public playgrounds and swimming pools.

Fort Wayne is surrounded by a rich farming community and is the center of a large trade in grain, vegetables, live stock, dairying and related industries. It also has many "Made-in-Fort-Wayne" products other than these that are known throughout the world. The value of its factories products for 1913 was $28,000,000.

14,226 of its 78,000 population are employed in its factories, yet labor troubles are practically unknown, which is strong evidence of the wisdom of its citizens who have invested their capital and labor together.

Shipping and receiving facilities in Fort Wayne are all that can be desired by reason of the five electric interurban lines that have their terminal there and and the seven railway trunk lines that connect it with every part of the country. Six of these lines have their division points in the city.

Eight wide-awake newspapers furnish the news to the people and afford an advertising medium for business enterprises.

The character and extent of the public improvements completed and in progress in Fort Wayne considered in relation to the unusually low tax rate, is a testimonial to the honesty and efficiency of its city government, and a sufficient commentary upon it.

The city tax rate is $1.16 on each $100, which in itself is a ringing call for "Fort Wayne With Might and Main."

Impressed by the evidence of real community spirit in Fort Wayne's civic life, I instituted a quest for the nurseries of this rather rare flower of civilization, and found them, without much seeking, in two organizations known as the Commercial club of Fort Wayne and the Woman's league of Fort Wayne.

In these two organizations the tender plants of community interest germinated in the various culture beds of the city—the homes, churches, schools and clubs of all kinds—are gathered together, and in the rich soil of co-operative effort, fructified by their fellowship and enthusiasm, is produced that unanimity of mind that has flowered into a genuine community spirit.

The Fort Commercial club was organized by the consolidation of the Anthony Wayne club, a social organization, and the old Fort Wayne Commercial club. It occupies a handsome three-story brick building adequately equipped for every service demanded of a modern club house.

Its officers are chosen from the leading public spirited citizens of the city. It has a membership of more than 1,000 and the roll is open to "any male person of good character." A secretary, competent to manage the important work in which the club is engaged, gives to it his entire time.

This club has been the means of bringing valuable manufacturing and other commercial interests to the city but its greater service is rendered by taking the lead in creating conditions in the city which will attract business enterprises to it.

In conversation the secretary, Charles L. Biederwolf, said: "Industries change their location for one or more of four reasons: To have better shipping facilities; to be nearer the centers of trade; to be in a community where sufficient capital is available to carry on or enlarge the enterprise; or to find better labor conditions."

Under labor conditions he emphasized moral, religious and educational conditions, good housing, public parks, playgrounds, sports, and clean amusements saying that these things in a community have great drawing power for the investment of capital in local industries.

The Woman's league of Fort Wayne is composed of affiliated clubs and organizations of women for other than social purposes. It is itself affiliated with the State and General Federation of Women's clubs, and is active in promoting the forward movements for which these organizations stand. It is recognized as one of the leading factors in the upbuilding of Fort Wayne and there is a hearty co-operation between it and the Commercial club.

The League devotes itself especially to the finer side of life, fostering art and the art spirit by exhibitions and the beautifying of the home and the city. It strives to make home and civic life a fine art by giving instructions on subjects pertaining to domestic and social hygiene, by leading in the movement for larger use of the school buildings and supporting important municipal enterprises.

Both these organizations are doing fine things, but the finest thing common to them is the culture of the unanimity of mind which expresses itself in the rare community spirit that it making Fort Wayne big and beautiful, and her citizens happy and prosperous.

EVEN CROSS, SICK CHILDREN LOVE SYRUP OF FIGS

If feverish, bilious, constipated, give fruit laxative at once.

Don't scold your fretful, peevish child. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with sour waste.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomachache, indigestion, diarrhoea, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul waste, the sour bile and fermenting food passes out of the bowels and you have a well and playful child again. Children love this harmless "fruit laxative," and mothers can rest easy after giving it, because it never fails to make their little "insides" clean and sweet.

Keep it handy, Mother! A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Remember there are counterfeits sold here, so surely look and see that yours is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.

NOT A NATURE FAKE.

Long Beach, Cal., Oct. 5.—An unusual rescue from drowning was enacted in the ocean at the end of the pier recently. "Ted," a Scotch collie belonging to Captain Walton, and "King," an Angora cat, being the actors. The cat has made its home at the end of the pier, and while defending itself from the dog fell overboard.

The dog watched the struggles of the cat in the water until its master ordered "Teddy" to "go get him." Immediately the dog jumped into the water from the gangplank under the pier, and in further obedience to his master, grasped by the neck the frightened cat, which had been clinging to a piling. "King" was brought to safety in the mouth of the faithful collie.

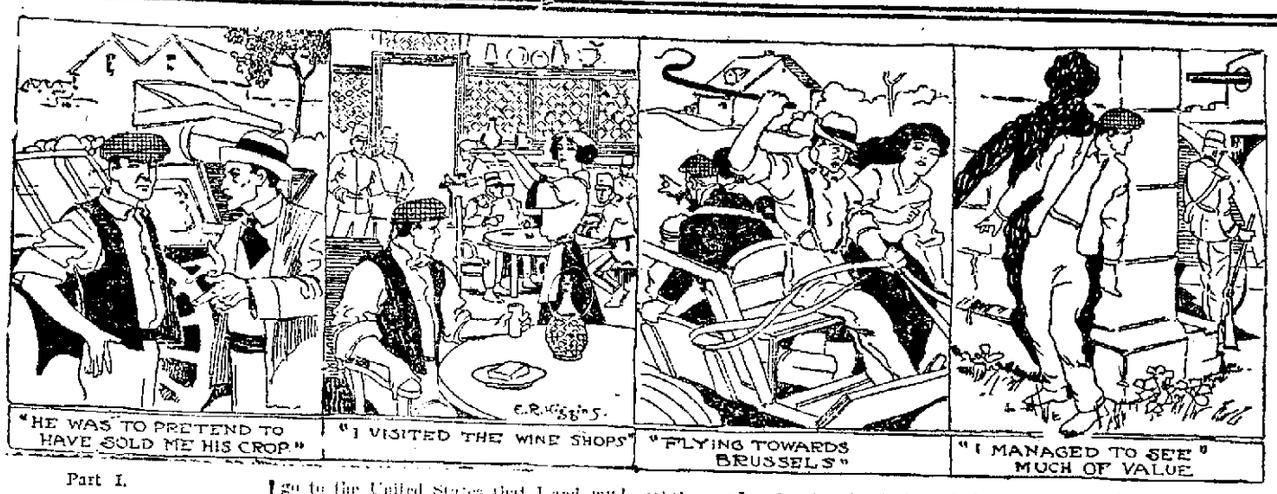
"Shoot the Spy!"---Amazing Narrative of a German Spy---How He Penetrated Hostile Belgium as Tourist!



Part I.

(Copyright, 1914, by the Newspaper Enterprise Association.)

I was born at Insterberg, in East Prussia. My father had served in the Franco-Prussian war and received a medal of the second class for bravery. He was wounded twice.

Although very proud of his own military record he opposed militarism and I believe held strong socialistic tendencies before his death. Mother hated warfare and desired when I was a child that we go to the United States that I and my older brother might not have to serve.

Until I was fifteen we lived at Insterberg, which is a small city with a large trade, and is located in Eastern Prussia, on the Pregel river. I was educated there. I suppose the location of the city had much to do with my life. It is near the Russian border, and in what we call "The Land of All Tongues."

Most of the merchants speak German, Russian, Polish, Bohemian and many speak French.

Being a border city we heard much of the "terror of the Russ," which nation we hated as children. The fear of Russia always was with us and from our cribs we were taught that some day we must fight them. Each rumor of intrigue and plotting was brought home to us strongly. I was interested in intrigue from the time I can remember and we children played "Russian spy" or "English spy" for our games.

At the death of my father we went to make our home near Dusseldorf, with my mother's brother, and there mother died while I was away in school at Paris.

This spy fled to America to escape the governments of two nations. He knows that secret agents are watching him still. This story was secured from him in a village in Pennsylvania. His story lacks literary qualities, but it is filled with interesting and first hand information regarding the early developments of the European war.

My uncle was a man of some wealth, dealing in laces, and for two summers I went through the country, in Holland and Belgium and twice into France, trading in laces and knit work. I received, in due time, the order to serve my time in the army. By great good fortune, as then I thought, the oberleutenant to whom I reported considered me undersized, although I was of military height, but, light.

He was impatient, and spoke sharply. My replies to his questions and my knowledge of French, also France, suddenly seemed to interest him. Instead of speaking sharply to me he took me aside and asked me as to my travels, what parts of the country I had seen. He asked me of the country around Insterberg, questioned me as to the country about Dusseldorf, and seemed pleased that I remembered well what I had seen.

Then he asked me would I prefer that I should serve my time in the secret service rather than with the colors. I told him yes, because it was that which had been in my mind since a boy. So I was sent to Berlin to learn.

It was thus that I became a spy.

High Officials Involved.

Of the fourteen years I have served I say nothing save that after five years more or less important missions were intrusted to me. Of the war with the Russ we heard constantly until it seemed as far off as when I was a boy at Insterberg. Yet, Germany always was ready. Several times we have been near war, but it passed. Once, a year ago, we were very near.

I was then in Belgrade and in Vienna. It was a plot of Servians against Austria. Our reports were that at least three Russian high officials were in it. Twice I have been in England on service duty—each time to learn what preparations the English were making against us.

We were ready during all the war in the Balkan states—expecting to be forced into war with Russians. Some day the story of Russia's part of the last two years in the Balkans shall be told.

Of the murder plot that finally brought on the present war I know nothing. But it was only the last straw. Had it not been that, then something else, for Russia and Germany were ready. England, I think, was duped by false representations of Russia. France, I think, was too trustful, and suffers for it.

All of the nations save France expected war. This war has been fought move for move, on the checker boards of the strategists for ten years. What difference makes it what was the immediate cause—or excuse?

But to my personal knowledge, like all others, I knew war must come some time, but not until last February did I see that it was to be soon. One mission of mine was in America. I came to learn how many Swedes and Norwegians were returning to their colors. We knew Sweden thought Russia's blow was to be at her—and had summoned home all reserves. Even then Russia was concentrating troops under various excuses.

On my return to Berlin in April, I again was in Belgrade on a matter entirely foreign to war and in Paris, where I examined their reported defenses against air attacks, finding little new.

In May the activity of our department indicated that the war feeling was growing, although there was little of tangible cause for the feeling. Both the military and secret officers were extremely busy and very much worried.

On the 19th of May I was sent to get a report on the alleged strengthening of the defenses at Namur. This was a surprise, as we possessed detail maps of Namur's forts and works and knew the exact strength of its defenses and defenders even to the ranges for our field guns at certain positions. We possessed the same information concerning practically all the border defenses of France, Belgium, Holland and Russia and knew through our system that no considerable change or addition could be made without our knowledge.

I went to Paris, where I was handed a passport made out to one of our agents at Rochester, N. Y., and proceeded as an American tourist northward to Namur. There was no evidence of increased activity of the French, although an army corps was engaged in some work at Amiens, where I stopped.

Meets Russian Spy.

At Namur I found little change. Some minor changes had been made in the concrete work on the defenses on the Sambre side of the town. I learned. The one thing of importance to report was that both British and French engineers had inspected the works within the fortnight. What this portended I left my chiefs to discover.

Returning after ten days at Namur, I reached Cologne, and forwarded my report, waited and received a brief command to repeat the moves at Mons, Antwerp and Liege. I found little change or activity either at Mons or Antwerp. The people were not talking of war and the officers of the Belgian army were not concerned, or did not seem to be.

My own fears were lulled. One Belgian officer with whom I held conversation shrugged his shoulders when I broached the subject of the murder of the Austrian prince and said the powers would find a way to avoid trouble; that they did not want it.

At Antwerp I encountered a member of the Russian secret service who recognized me.

Seeing I was known I quickly saluted him and we spent the evening together discussing the chances of war. He pretended he was merely loitering after completing an errand in France and I growled that I was always being dispatched on wild goose chases. Neither of us deceived the other.

This encounter made it necessary for me to drop my pose as an American tourist. The night I left Antwerp a code massage informed me that the situation was critical. That was the evening of July 25. I reached Liege the next afternoon, showed my American passports, secured a room at the Hotel del Suede, carefully concealed my American passports and my money.

The following morning I rode into Liege on a cart filled with vegetables, and dressed as a truck farmer, went to the market. I had purchased the cart from a German who was fleeing with his family to escape the coming storm.

Even then I could not believe that that which we had expected so long was at hand. I recalled that my Russian friend of the secret service had, when we parted at Antwerp, drunk "to the great war." It had been a jest with us of the service on the continent for many years. I am wondering whether he knew or whether he, like myself, thought the war cloud would blow over.

Chicago, Oct. 5. Why any one should "feel fine" after getting a kick in the ribs was a question puzzling Gov. Edward F. Dunne, of Illinois, today.

The governor, whose son, Maurice, plays end on the University of Michigan foot ball eleven, became alarmed when he read in Sunday papers that Maurice had been injured in the Michigan-Case game on Saturday. So he telegraphed Ann Arbor for news of the boy's condition.

"Kicked in the ribs. Feel fine. Nothing serious at all," read the message sent back by the younger Dunne.

"What I fail to understand, even now," the governor said, "is how a kick in the ribs should make a boy 'feel fine.'"

INDICTED MAN ENDS OWN LIFE

The alleged shortage was disclosed at the convention of the alliance at Detroit fourteen months ago and caused a sensation among the 100,000 members. Cechowicz was dismissed from office. Worry over his predicament is assigned as the reason for his suicide.

E. S. Richardson, age 80, of Elizabeth, N. J., wishes to dig in a local park for a pot of gold he believes to be buried there.

DARING COTTON PLUNGER DIES

New Orleans, Oct. 5.—Wm. P. Brown, widely known in the cotton business, died here today at the age of 53. Mr. Brown had been connected with some of the most spectacular operations in the history of the New York and New Orleans cotton exchanges. He was at one time connected with Eugene Scales, James Patten and Frank R. Hayne, whose activities in the 1910 crop were taken up by the government with the result that the four "Bull" operators were indicted. Patten pleaded guilty to the charge of conspiring to monopolize the commodity that year and paid a fine of $4,000. The pleas of nolle contender of the others were accepted some time later. Mr. Brown had been ill for some time.

A German soldier fighting before Liege couldn't understand why he suddenly fell until a surgeon found he had been shot in the shoulder, upper arm, lower arm, and twice in the thigh. The modern rifle wound is so painless and heals so rapidly he will be on the firing line again soon.

Nazaire Lacrotte, Paris, France, has patented a pneumatic suit for aviators, motorists and the like, having helmet, breastplate, thigh protector and shin guards of special construction, and suitably connected so they will be maintained in proper position upon the wearer.

Certain agriculturists in the Bulandshahr district of Northern India have began experiments with oil engines for pumping. A school is being started in the town of Pali to teach them to run simple engines of this kind.

Tolson-Welty.

The marriage of Miss Magdalena Welty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joel Welty, to Mr. Norman Tolson, of Chicago, took place in that city very quietly on Wednesday, September 30, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon at the Fourth Presbyterian church. In the absence from the city of Rev. Dr. Stone, pastor of the church and of which both bride and groom are members, the marriage service was read by Rev. Mr. Ralston. The bride and groom are now at home at 6511 Minerva avenue, Woodlawn, a suburb of Chicago. Mrs. Welty went to Chicago to see her daughter married. Both Mr. and Mrs. Tolson are artists and they have a big line of work in hand in drawing and painting prize cattle and horses in the interest of the coming annual stock show held in Chicago. Both Mr. and Mrs. Tolson are graduates of the Chicago Art institute and Mr. Tolson, especially, has been unusually successful as a young man.

WHAT IS LOVE; LUCY WANTS TO KNOW

Alice Brady, who plays the leading role in George Scarborough's new play, and has set all Gotham agog by asking everybody on the stage from judge to servant girl the start-ling question, "What is love?"

That is what everybody in New York is asking everybody else, as the result of the production of George Scarborough's play bearing that title.

A young girl hesitating in her choice between the cold, correct handsome lawyer to whom she is engaged and the schoolboy chum who returns suddenly from abroad and sweeps her into mid-stream of romance with an awakening kiss, calls upon everybody in the play to answer the great question which life has asked for her:

What is love?

Suppose somebody should ask you that question all of a sudden, wouldn't you flounder and stutter and perhaps say as the girl's fiance did, "why love is love—that's all. What a silly question!" and change the subject? Well that's what people in the play do at first, but when they see how much in earnest their little Lucy is they try to tell her.

This is what her sister-in-law says:

"It's just a sort of magnetic thrill that goes through youlike—like an apple toddy starts at your finger tips and goes on till it makes your toes tingle—and then starts on the return trip gathering volume as it travels till it envelopes your whole world in a sunburst of joy!"

Next Lucy confers with Cora, the little nursemaid who takes care of her sister's baby. Cora, who appears to be not more than 17, and confesses that she "has never loved the limit—yet," describing the feeling of kissing by saying: "I was scared to death but afraid to run! I was ashamed—sort of glad-ashamed!"

Then Lucy remembering the kiss from the man to whom she is not engaged, interrupted: 'And your face grew hot and your heart beat suffocatingly, and your hand ached to grip his hand, tight, didn't it?"

In the very charming second act of the play which has set us all to asking what love is, Lucy, at bay between the two men who seek possession of her heart, turns on them both and calls upon their assembled families to tell her what they know of love.

When she asks her eternal question, "what do you mean by love?" of the choleric old judge, whose son she is engaged to marry, he replies, "why I mean—what people generally—when they are—matrimonially inclined—um—um—when they exchange views and experiences about the—um—matter—passion—the divine afflatus—what do you ask me such a question for anyhow? I'm not in love—I'm married."

The father of Bobby Hoyt, the young fellow Lucy really loves, has no better luck with his definition.

"Love," he stammered, "love used to impress me as something—as something which made a fellow feel funny and act foolish. How's that?"

Of course that description of a man's feelings doesn't help the bewildered Lucy very much and she turns to his wife, who says:

"Love is a miracle beyond words, its thrill is beyond analysis. I know that this great instinct, love partakes of human qualities as well as spiritual—of intellectual comradeship and physical attraction—one with its pride, the other with its subtle spell. Love is reverence balancing desire."

"Love," interrupts the judge's wife, "is but the perfume, the flower of a man's life, but it is the dynamo of a woman's soul—and when love goes wrong the light goes out of her life—not to return!"

What is love? Do any of these definitions satisfy you?

Two Good Recipes For Waffles

WAFFLES are the choicest food ever baked on a griddle. But most housewives seem to think they are difficult to make. It isn't so.

Take—

AT THE TEMPLE.

The Temple's current bill is exceptional from top to bottom with a layout of acts that are a source of constant delight to the thousands of Temple addicts. Here's a bill that offers an unique opportunity of acquiring the Temple habit. As funny a farce comedy sketch as you will see in a long time is "A Double's Troubles," the vehicle of Potts Brothers and company. Hildegrade Mason's infectious style and the rich comedy lines the author of her talking and singing sketch has supplied her and Jack Mason, make the act a rare delight. Karlton and Kifford's act is to say the least unique. These clever young men produce some paintings while-you-wait, working on transparent screens so that every stroke of the brush is always visible.

AT THE EMPRESS.

The Empress has another crackerjack bill for the first half of the week which this afternoon met with the decided approbation of a large and enthusiastic audience. The bill will be seen again tonight and Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons and evenings.

Marcena and De Long Brothers in a striking series of athletic poses form the headline act and the things that they do are new in the way of gymnastics.

The bill opens with the showing of the Hearst-Selig news weekly in which motion pictures are presented of all the newest and most interesting events at home and abroad. The opening vaudeville number of the bill is the high trapeze act of John Lavier. Mr. Lavier is a comedian of sterling worth and an acrobat who presents some of the most wonderful feats ever seen by local audiences. Second on the bill come O'Neil and Dixon, the New York favorites, in a song review that is snappy and right up to the minute.

Then Jack Princeton and Agnes Vale present a comedy skit that has the punch to make it go great with the audiences. Ronair and Ward in a comedy skit, "Ocean Breezes," have a delightful little skit that has an interesting plot and is full of entertaining bits. Johnny Morris and Eddie Banks have a comedy sketch in which they do some great dancing and put across a line of conversation that has no equal.

KING BAGGOT AT ORPHEUM

Appears Today in Remarkable One-Man Play.

At the new Orpheum theater today there is being shown a two-reel special feature, entitled "Shadows," which is a distinct innovation in picture production. In this play King Baggot enacts the roles of ten characters—a banker and his son, an Italian, a jailer, a detective and his wife, a Chinaman and his sweetheart, a policeman and an innkeeper. This means that Baggot must be one of the most versatile and brilliant actors on or off the screen. There have been several plays produced in which three roles were enacted by one person, but never before has anything so complex as this feature been attempted by a single actor. This play is not only unique, but it is a drama full of thrills, tears and laughter, which make it appeal to everyone who sees it.

An Eblair drama, entitled "The Man Who Came Back," is the story of a lumberman who grows tired of life in the city and goes back to the ranch and makes good with a rush, which will also be shown.

The orchestra and Miss Lyons, soprano, are pleasing large audiences with their splendid music.

AT THE MAJESTIC.

A Riot of Laughter in "The Missouri Girl" Tonight.

Comedy applied to "The Missouri Girl" is more or less a misnomer. A tragic-comedy is more descriptive of the play than the former. There are heaps of clean comedy in it, but it is not altogether free from tragedy, and when the two are blended, the product is bound to be a success.

That is why "The Missouri Girl" has been so popular all over the United States for several years.

There is just sufficient of serious matter in it to afford a pleasing contrast to the farcical side.

Really funny incidents are numerous and perhaps it is as well that the audience is afforded a breathing spell at times for the crisis and counter sentiment of the play.

To the play's success the great characters of "Zeke" and "Daisy" contribute much of the comedy. They carry most of the burden of the production, but while these two are outstanding, other characters of the play are equally excellent and on the whole the cast is well balanced and sustained.

New Military Cape Coat Has Many Uses

The military coat of navy blue with short scarlet lined cape is no longer a novelty, but even so it's losing none of its popularity.

As a coat for general use the broadcloth "soldier cloak" is unequaled—it's heavy enough to make a comfortable storm coat, and it's handsome enough to be worn on formal occasions over an afternoon dress

WANTS HIS DEATH TO BE ARGUMENT

San Quentin, Prison, Calif., Oct5—Louis A. Larsen is giving a "necktie party," under the auspices of California.

On Nov. 6, unless the Governor shall intervenue, he will die on the gallows here for the murder of his wife in the Verdugo hills near Los Angeles in June, 1913.

Larson wants to make his taking off quite a function. He is issuing invitations to specially invited guests, most of them clergymen. He hopes these ministers of life and mercy will be so revolted by witnessing his death that they will go forth in hot determination to stop capital punishment.

"If I must go I want my death to do some good," he explained in the condemned cell here. And substantially that has been the declaration made by every one of the recently executed felons in the two California pentiteniaries.

Larson has however, supplemented it by his invitation to the clergy.

"Heretofore," he says, "the parsons who have fought against capital punishment have had only a theoretical knowledge of the subject. I want to instruct them in the practical side I want to give them first-hand knowledge. It will gird them better for the fight to abate murder by the State.

LOUIS A. LARSEN.

"There is a fraternity among us who are about to die that does not extend to anyone outside the doomed circle. Brothers were never born who were as close to each other as we are.

"Three days before a man is to be hanged they take him to the death house. When his name is called he rises to his feet. We look into one another's faces then, and a certainty that our circle is bound by the broadest human sympathy God ever created arises in each of us. We give our condemned brother an affection no other man can know.

"Then this doomed one, who is more human than any other whose soul has not been purged in the fire the doomed alone can know, is placed in the little cell with the death watch over him. And when the fatal day arrives we count the minutes, exclaiming finally, 'Another good man has gone.'

"For 90 men out of 100 who are snatched away by the noose or the chair have become the best men the state has.

"The death cell is a peculiar place—peculiar in its influence," and here again Larson's experience tallies with that of most of the men California has executed within the past few years. "It was not until I reached here that I learned I was by nature a student. The impluse to learn all I could came over me powerfully. I am 42, but I am getting old fast. The other day I happened to get a glance in a mirror and found my black hair had turned white. It is not worry, but just plain, hard study that has altered it.

"I am making a study of the commandment, 'Thou Shalt Not Kill.'

"It says plainly to everybody, to the state as well as the individual, 'Thou shalt not kill!'"

Then the man who is to die because he killed his wife took up his pacing again, counting the leaping days that still intervenue between life and the noose.

MEET NEXT YEAR AT HUNTINGTON

Fine Christian Endeavor District Convention Completes Work.

At the closing session Sunday evening of the twenty-eighth annual convention of the Christian Endeavor societies of Fort Wayne district, embracing five counties, Allen, Adams, Wells, Huntington and Whitley, Huntington was chosen as the meeting place for the 1915 convention to be held October 1, 2 and 3.

In the election of officers Miss Ina Maxwell, of this city, was chosen to head the district societies as secretary and treasurer for the coming year, succeeding O. F. Gilliom, of Berne. Other officers are as follows:

May Lansdown, Fort Wayne, junior and intermediate superintendent.

Maud Clark, Fort Wayne, missionary superintendent.

Evan Williams, Fort Wayne, secretary of Allen county.

Ella Clugston, Columbia City, secretary of Whitley county.

MISS INA MAXWELL.

Ida Walters, of Huntington, secretary of Huntington county.

The last session was the banner session of the entire convention in regard to attendance and enthusiasm. It was estimated that over 1,500 people were present. Rev. A. R. Evans, of the Westminster Presbyterian church, led in the devotional exercises, which were followed by the rendition of a musical program.

E. P. Gates, field secretary of the state of Illinois, then gave an address on the subject, "Trust Plus Strive Equals Do." His address was exceedingly interesting and he closed with the words, "Put your entire trust in God and his angels and then get busy and strive to do what you are trying to accomplish and success will surely be your goal, or in other words, trust plus strive equals do."

In certain cities of Russia street whistling by civilians is a penal offense, the privilege being reserved for the police. They exercise it to send signal blasts to each other.

Friars Look Good But Did Not Extend Themselves to Beat Huntington.

Until the Friar football eleven of 1914 has some stronger opposition than that supplied in the opening game by Huntington, local followers of the game will not be able to get a good line on the strength of the home talent as from the kickoff to the call of time in the Sunday fray the visitors were on the defensive and never had an opportunity to score.

In winning 46 to 0 the Friars looked good and in better condition than they were at the start in 1913, but the Huntington club was too light and did not possess speed enough to offset this disdvantage and it was simply a matter from the start how many times the locals could cross the goal line.

Upon the arrival of the club at the grounds Prof. Ward and Capt. Byroads took the men in charge and ran over the plays and received instructions and as soon as it was determined that the Huntington team was not strong enough to give more than a good practice game the tactics were changed and all of the styles of football that will be relied on the balance of the season were put on exhibition.

That the advance in prices will not materially affect the attendance was demonstrated by the size of the crowd, which was as large as the usual run of a year ago. Seating arrangements are excellent this year and the crowd was handled without any trouble or discomfort.

An auto parade that started from the uptown districts and that was continued by the players and the Elks' band around the playing field and an excellent musical program that was rendered during the game served to make the afternoon more enjoyable.

The new blankets and uniforms, the excellent ground arrangements and the other improvements that have been made for the opening of the season indicate the fact that the Friars are alive to the needs of their patrons and determined to give them accommodation in keeping with the prices charged. In future bookings stronger teams than Huntington will be sought as it is proposed to try for the best of the independents.

Opportunity was afforded to try out all of the new men in the game, and among them was Crow, the big center of the Zanesville basket ball team. He was on the field only a short time so the coaches could get a line on him in action.

Ample policing arrangements kept the crowd off the field and the whole affair indicated that the Friars are in the game to show the possibilities of independent football. The line-up:

BATTING POWERS HELP ATHLETICS

(By Joseph B. Tinker.)

Philadelphia has the better team in the world's series. Mind you I am not saying the Athletics are the best team in the country. But, compared with the Boston Braves, the Athletics are much stronger.

I am saying this, admitting that there are several players on the Boston team I never have seen play, and that I have had only a few opportunities to watch either the Athletics or Braves play. But I am confident, from what I know of the men, that the Athletics are better.

Further comparing the two teams man for man in every position the Chicago Federal league team classes well with them and if we could get into the series I would prefer our end of the chances to win to that of the Athletics. Admitting them a better formed, better seasoned team I think our pitching and hitting strength would carry us through.

However, this is a comparison of the two teams. I know the Athletics well. It is a great team: it is a smart team. In fact, since leaving the National league and studying the American, National and Federal leagues I am convinced that the American league has far smarter ball clubs than the National has. The smartest ball club, the one that played the keenest, cleverest game won the pennant in each league. I have been astonished to learn from players who have joined us the inside of some things in the older leagues—and this aids me in forming my opinions.

Boston undoubtedly is the smartest ball club in the National. The Athletics won more games by thinking than they did by superior pitching or hitting.

Let us then admit them even in the brainy part of the game; figure that Stallings and Mack are equally wise and that their players play the smart kind of baseball.

Study them mechanically.

The Athletics can outhit Boston almost 35 points to the man around the field. The Athletics are a good base running team—not a great one, as Mack's plan of generalship does not include too much running and that cuts down the stealing averages.

But they can run; and they can take extra bases when they are needed. Boston has not a base runner on its club—not one save Whitted, who runs wild and hard. Evers, while he is a quick, speedy man, is not a base stealer. He will go the extra base whenever there is a chance but is not the base running type. In fact, the club does not run bases. This is partly because Stallings uses the most varied style of attack any manager in the country and partly because the team lacks the speed.

In defensive work the Athletics have a shade on the infield and it is about an even thing on the outfield, neither outfield being great in defense.

In fact, my Chicago outfield classes either of them in spite of its youth. That may sound strong but we would like an opportunity to prove the statement.

Look them over, man for man. McInnis is a highly press agented first baseman. He is a great, shifty brilliant first baseman but he has a lot of faults, due to over anxiousness to make plays and to his lack of heighth and reach.

Schmidt I know. He is slow moving and rather awkward around the bag. At second they have two of the greatest stars in the position. It is very hard to compare Evers and Collins because they do the same things in such different ways. Collins' great speed and his batting power make him the favorite.

This isn't belittling Johnny, whom I consider one of the greatest ball players that ever lived. Collins has it on him too, in better control of temper but that is not likely to affect any of the coming games.

Excuse me for butting in with the Chicago Federal team again—but isn't that my best basis of comparison? There is not much to choose between Beck, our first baseman, and either of those who are in the world's series. Beck is a marvel this year, no matter what he has been. I have only thrown one ball all season that he could not get—and I think he saved me a dozen or more errors. His hitting is up to theirs. I have a coming Evers or Collins in Farrell.

At short Boston has a shade. This Rabbit Maranville is a marvel to me—as he is to all. Barry I consider one of the greatest shortstops that ever played around there. He is the brains of the infield work and never has had credit for all he can do. He is good enough for the Federal league right now. At third Philadelphia has a big margain, due to hitting. Baker covers up a lot of faults by his hitting. He isn't brilliant as a fielder but he is steady and often that is a better thing than brilliancy. I always liked Smith's work, and am glad he finally got going. He is a hustler and a great fielder; but neither he nor Baker is as good a fielder as is Deal, who is on the bench.

If you want to continue comparing these two championship clubs with the Chicago Federals, Zelder is a bit better ball player than Smith in attack, running and defense, and better than Baker in all departments of the game excepting hitting. That's what I think of it.

Mack has only a fair fielding outfield, but it is great in attack. Stallings has six outfielders, and there is only one that the Federal league considered worth going after. Stallings has to keep switching all the time to get some hitting strength against certain pitchers. I have a better outfield than either of them. (Somehow I cannot help comparing our team with them).

As for playing the game—team work you call it—the Athletics do more of it than any club in their league and Boston simply made a joke of the other teams of the National by advanced team work. Mack's machine is better trained, less liable to make breaks. Boston is new. He has drilled it well—he and Evers taught it the team game, but in such a series it is likely to forget.

"Red" Smith, pugilist.
J. H. Smith, attorney-at-law.
They are one and the same person.

Several years ago "Red" Smith, of Sacramento, Cal., was an ambitious preliminary fighter. In fact, he was considered a white hope. Many an aspiring heavyweight was handed a knockout potion by the sturdy auburn-haired youth. About a year ago he told his pugilistic friends he was going to make something of himself besides a fighter.

"Watcha goin' to do?" they inquired.

"I'm going to be a lawyer," Smith answered quietly.

Of course he was given the merry ha-ha but it didn't discourage him. "I'll just show you fellows up," he said with an air of determination.

"Red" worked as a lineman during the day, signing up for fights now and then, and battled with Blackstone at night. Recently he was admitted to the bar and his shingle is going up: "J. H. Smith attorney-at-law."

Smith is a quiet, unassuming young man. He has never used liquor or tobacco. "Yes, it is rather unusual to hear of a pug becoming a lawer," says Smith; "usually you hear of them breaking the law. I discovered that there was nothing in the boxing game for me and I decided to quit while my face was still intact. I would have quit the ring before this, but I needed all the money I could scrape together. My folks in Iowa always wanted me to be a lawyer, but they didn't have the money to put me in law school. I struck for the west and did the best I could."

COLFAX MEMORIAL SOUGHT.

South Bend Proposes Monument to Former Vice President.

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 5.—A monument to the memory of the late Vice President Schuyler Colfax, of South Bend, probably will be erected in South Bend soon, a movement being in progress to bring about the establishment of such a memorial. The movement was started fifteen years ago, when a series of entertainments obtained several hundred dollars, Gen. Lew Wallace being one of the contributors. It is the plan to place the memorial in a niche on the north side of the St. Joseph court house. In two other niches on either side of that reserved for the Colfax will be placed life-size memorials of Lathrop M. Taylor and Horatio Chapin, two of the first men to settle on the site of South Bend. The former was a merchant and the latter a banker.

New York, Oct. 5.—No clearer or more positive illustration of the extraordinary interest taken by the public in the annual world's championship series of baseball games can be desired than that furnished by a glance at the financial results, a statement of which is officially announced at the end of each post-season competition for the coveted title and flag. Through the box office its popularity can easily be measured. Compared with the meager returns at the initial series in 1884 the enormous crowds registered by the clicking turnstiles show that by leaps and bounds the attendance in recent years has assumed such gigantic proportions that there is no telling what it may amount to in years to come.

The first championship games between the Providence Grays and the Metropolitans may have been only lightly attended and there is nothing on record to show what the receipts amounted to for the three games then played, as Providence won three straight. The following year, however, when seven games were played in four different cities, Chicago, St. Louis, Pittsburg and Cincinnati, the financial result was about $2,000. That year the fight was a bat one between the Chicago Nationals and the American association club of St. Louis, and one can hardly imagine what would be the yield just now if such a series were possible over a similar circuit.

Of course in those days seats in the bleachers could be had for "two-bits" and the best seats in the grandstand brought the top price of half a dollar. Even at those rates there could not have been much enthusiasm judging from the results. Today, however, prices have soared so that a single admission costs a dollar, or rather that is the face value of the little cardboard and the holder of one of these is considered lucky if it has not cost him more than thrice that amount.

In the early days of the world's series tickets were easily obtained at the regular prices and no one had to worry as to whether he would get to his favorite seat for one or all of the games. This easy method of satisfying one's baseball appetite disappeared years ago and fabulous prices are offered for ordinary seats in the stands not to speak of the immense prices demanded for the exclusive coupons which entitle the possessor to view the games from a comfortably upholstered chair in one of the boxes, of which there are several rows in the newly built stands.

From the moment that the pennant in each of the major leagues appears to be heading for a certain club or city, the would-be spectator begins to worry as to how he is going to secure a vantage point to see one or more of the contests and the fight for tickets begins. For weeks before the end of the regular season requests are sent for reservations, but it is safe to say that 50 per cent. of these result in disappointments. Long lines form in the vicinity of the playing grounds the night before each battle and fancy prices are given to the persons who await their turn in these files for the result of their long vigil. The big prices that are paid for tickets in this way do not increase the receipts so far as the players or clubs are concerned, as the box office returns are not influenced by the exorbitant amounts asked, in fact demanded, by the holder of the choice coupons.

In 1885, when Detroit and St. Louis played fourteen games in nearly a dozen cities, the receipts amounted to $12,000, about $7,000 a game, which was then considered a large amount. The following year $24,562 was taken in for the ten games played by New York and St. Louis. The first year of the Temple cup series, 1894, four games were played and average per game was $4,500 at Baltimore and New York. There was a falling off a year later when the Cleveland-Baltimore series of five games realized only $14,756.

In 1903, when the first series was played between the pennant-winning teams of the National and American leagues, eight games brought a little over $50,000. There was no contest in 1904 but a year later there was an advance in the prices of admission and $68,405 was taken in for five games at Philadelphia and New York, but the attendance fell to 51,723 as compared with over 100,000 two years previously. The attendance dropped to 63,000 in 1908 for the Chicago-Detroit series, but the receipts jumped to nearly $90,000.

A marked increase in attendance and receipts was registered in 1909 when 146,-295 persons paid $188,302 to see the seven-game series between Pittsburg and Detroit. Philadelphia and Chicago played five games in 1910 before 121,222 persons with gate receipts of $173,980, and this amount was almost doubled the following year when 179,851 persons contributed $342,164 to see the Philadelphia and New York series of six games. This was a mighty jump but it was eclipsed in 1912, the banner year for attendance and financial results. The Boston Americans and New York Nationals played eight games, one of them resulting in a tie, that year, and it was estimated that a quarter of a million spectators saw the protracted series, which drew $490,440. This enormous increase was, of course, due to the extra games that were required but last year when only five games were needed to settle the questioning supremacy between the Giants and Athletics $325,980 was paid in, with an attendance of 151,000. The average receipts per game in 1902 was $61,206, while the average last year was increased to $65,196.

Each of the winning players on the winning side in 1903, the first year that the series was played under the conditions which now prevail, received $1,316.25 and each of the losing players got $1,182. In 1912 the Boston winners received $4,022 each and the New York losers were handed $2,566 each. Last year each player of the Athletics got a winning portion of $3,246.26 and the losing share for each New York player was $2,164.22.

The basis upon which the world's series receipts are divided is as follows: The national commission receives 10% of the receipts of each and every game. The players of the two competing clubs receive 60% of the remaining 90% of the first four games played. The sum is divided 60% to the winners and 40% to the losers. The remaining 40% of the 90% of the first four games goes to the club owners; 90% of the receipts of every game after the first four becomes the property of the stockholders of the two contesting clubs.

Workers in the democratic, republican and progressive parties began early Monday morning the task of getting the voters to the places of registration and returns received at the headquarters of each indicate that very few votes will be lost by failure to register.

In the city it was hard work during the morning hours to get the unregistered to the booths, but at noon there was a rush and the turnout for the afternoon was better and there was every reason to believe that the heavest work of the day will be between 6 and 9 o'clock this evening.

Every means that the party workers could think of was used to call to the mind of the voters of Allen county that unless they registered Monday they would lose the opportunity to vote at the election in November and apparently the warnings were heeded.

Returns from the registration on September 5 show that less than 10,000 voters registered and as many more failed to take advantage of this opportunity and these are the men that are being sought out.

Volunteers supplied automobiles for each of the parties and they were used both in the city and in the county. Farmers were a little bit inclined to take advantage of the good weather to finish up their work for the fall and this probably will show in the returns when they are made, as many of them considered the duties at home equally as important as taking advantage of the chance to register.

Each party had a list of the voters who failed to turn out at the early registration and these were being checked up in the various precincts in the city and county. The real work began in the afternoon for the reason that the parties during the forenoon sought out only those who were lukewarm and a number whose business allowed them but a few minutes for going to the polling places.

All began to get out the infirm and the aged in the hope that this portion of the work might be closed at noon so attention could be given to those who had not attached as much importance to the duty as it demands.

Democratic Meetings Held.

In closing up the campaign of last week the democrats held two meetings and reports are that both were well attended. At Hoagland Hon. James M. Robinson and William Fruechtenicht were the speakers and both were well received.

Judge Samuel M. Hench and Attorney Guy Colerick were on the program at Huntertown and both were heard with interest by the voters.

A meeting has been arranged for St. Joe township on Thursday, October 15, and Prosecutor Harry Hilgeman will be the principal speaker of the occasion.

Hon. J. M. Robinson and Mr. Hilgeman will speak at Center schoolhouse in Eel River township on October 16 and other dates will be arranged during the present week.

HAVE PLANNED LAKESIDE DIKE

Barriers Will Be Carried from Columbia Street to State Street.

Following an inspection of the east bank of the St. Joe river along the Lakeside boundary from the Columbia street bridge to the State street bridge, by Mayor Hosey, Messrs. Singrey, Kelly and Hilgeman of the board of works, City Engineer Randall, Councilman Jacob Agne, of the First ward, and members of the Lakeside and Forest Park Improvement association, it was tentatively decided to construct a stone dike from Columbia street to Forest avenue and to build a dirt dike from a point midway between Delaware and McDougal avenues, following the river course to the state street bridge. The city engineering department is expected to prepare plans at once so that the work may be advertised, the bids awarded and work begun and if possible completed this fall. All the property east of the stone wall will be assessed. The stone wall goes to high ground and will protect Lakeside while the dirt dike will afford protection to property lying between the wall and the river.

WILL RESOD THE RESERVOIR.

Repairs to Embankment Are Almost Completed.

After an inspection of the work of repairing the embankments of the big waterworks reservoir on Lafayette street, Monday morning, the board decided to let a contract at once to have the refilled places sodded and this will be done during the present week. The big earth slides that had so badly disfigured and to some extent weakened the embankments have been filled with clay that has been firmly tamped and it is believed that with the establishment of the drainage and the proper sodding of the banks future slides can be averted. There may be adopted a plan to thickly plant the embankment with dwarf shrubs that take root rapidly and extensively. The work of filling up the slides will be completed this week.

MAY DEFER SEWER MATTER.

Board of Works Wants to Be Sure of Legal Phases.

The board of works had fixed Monday afternoon for final determination of the Wayne Heights sewer matter, which has been held up several weeks on account of a remonstrance filed by property owners assessed and because of the contractor's failure to comply in all respects with specifications, but owing to some uncertainty of legal questions involved action may be deferred until the city attorney returns to the city from Decatur, where he is engaged in the courts. It is believed that the proposal of the Moellering Construction company to give additional bond for guarantee of the work will be satisfactory. When the points at issue have been settled the work will be accepted and the assessment rolls approved.

This is to remind you, if you have failed to register, that the polls will be open until 9 p. m.

Ida M. Shaffer Says Spouse Packed Up and Left Her Without Cause

Married to John H. Shaffer thirty-five years ago and with no minor children, Ida M. Shaffer has commenced suit in the superior court for divorce, complaining that two years ago last August her husband, without cause and wholly without reason, packed up and left her and since that time has not contributed anything to her support. She says since he left she has neither seen nor heard anything of him, does not know his present whereabouts and believes he is a non-resident of the state. She says she has lost all love and affection for him and can never again live with him.

Wants Her Children Back.

Hattie Shondell has petitioned the circuit court for a change of order entered when her husband, George Shondell, was granted a divorce last May, under which he was given the custody of two children. The petition recites that he husband represented to the court that he would place the children in the Sacred Heart academy and as a matter of fact did so, but took them from the academy after two weeks and placed them with his mother, Matilda Shondell. Mrs. Shondell says the children are not being properly clothed, cared for or educated and that George Shondell is preparting to leave the court's jurisdiction. She wants the children taken from him and put in a proper institution.

Receiver for Cigar Store.

In the superior court Monday, in the suit of the Wayne Tobacco company against Davenport Thomas to foreclose a mortgage and recover $1,000, Alfred Foellinger was appointed receiver for the defendant. Thomas owns the Bungalow cigar store at 113 East Main street and the concern has been taken charge of by the receiver.

By action taken in the superior court the R. E. Tobias Millinery company has been dissolved. The firm became insolvent and its affairs were closed up.

The will of the late John George Reiber has been filed for probate. All his property, real and personal, is left to the widow.

OPTION ELECTION NOVEMBER 4.

It is probable that when the board of county commissioners meets Tuesday to fix a date for holding the local option election in Washington township, as petitioned for by a large number of voters, Wednesday, November 4, will be the date chosen. The reason assigned for choosing this particular date is that it falls on the day following the general electing and the voting places can be utilized without additional trouble for the option election. Unless some good reason for choosing another date is presented to the commissioners, November 4 will be set down.

SALOON LICENSES TRANSFERRED.

Monday morning the board of county commissioners authorized the following transfers of saloon licenses by purchase: Edward G. Korn, to purchase of Kinnerk & Scherer, 1416 Broadway; John H. Miller, to purchase of the Citizens' Trust company, administrator of the estate of Joseph Pedary, corner Beadell avenue and Second street; Joseph Bogenschuetz, to purchase of Henry Brake, 124 East Berry street.

"The American relief commission advised us to leave because it was believed that if the war continues Germany will have all she can take care of and while we would never have become charges; we had to eat and every bit will count if things become scarce."

Visited His Mother.

Mr. Borkenstein left early in the summer to go to Potchappel, a small town about eighteen miles from Dresden, and was too far removed from the scene of war to known directly much of what was going on. He said that Germany had good crops this year and that there had been no advance in prices on account of the war and that in the portion of Germany in which he was located everything went along just like there was no war with the exception that a few industries were closed down because the men were called to arms.

"There was a rush for flour when the war broke out," he said, "but in a short time notice was served that there must be no advance under penalty of seizure by the government of the business house in which advances were made and the same prices were held that were asked in times of peace.

"In the town in which I visited, horses were called in from the farms and examined and taken over by the government. It was required that they must have a day's provision, must be shod, over four years old and possessed of good eyesight.

"Those unfit for service were sent back and each man was left enough to carry on his farming. Those accepted were tagged and a duplicate given the owner and he got his money next day. We had no trouble reaching Rotterdam after we went to Berlin and had our passports stamped and the only delay was in transferring our transportation to the Nordam from the Holland-American line. We were told we could not sail until October 17, then the date was changed to the tenth but we finally arranged to get away on Sept. 23.

"In the town near where I was visiting, two Russian spies were taken and killed. I saw detachments of from 500 to 1,000 men being mustered in and I saw some French prisoners who were being nicely treated but that is all the war I saw. When I left things looked mighty favorable for Germany."

Get a 10-cent box now.

Turn the rascals out—the headache, biliousness, indigestion, the sick, sour stomach and bad colds—turn them out tonight and keep them out with Cascarets.

Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never know the misery caused by a lazy liver, clogged bowels, or an upset stomach.

Don't put in another day of distress. Let Cascarets cleanse your stomach; remove the sour, fermenting food; take the excess bile from your liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels. Then you will feel great.

A Cascaret tonight straightens you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from any drug store means a clear head, sweet stomach and clean, healthy liver and bowel action for months. Children love Cascarets because they never gripe or sicken.—Adv.

A party of men were discussing the world's great inventors and inventions. Each had his favorite, Morse and the telegraph, Marconi and the wireless, Whitney and the cotton gin, Bell and the telephone, Wright and the aeroplane, Edison and the electric light—each had his own vociferous champion. When a lull came in the conversation a little man who had previously kept quiet piped up and said: "Yes, those men were all great men, but let me tell you that the man who invented interest was no slouch."

The little man was right. Interest has filled the world with peace and comfort, even if it has bankrupted some fellows that din't know its spree. Four per cent. on savings in our savings department.

NEWS OF FORT WAYNE'S NEIGHBORS

MONTPELIER MUDDLE ENDS.

Council and Mayor Agree on Man for City Clerk.

Hartford City, Ind., Oct. 5.—The city of Montpelier is once again able to transact business, the tangle in municipal affairs, growing out of the wrangle between the council and mayor over the selection of a city clerk having been straightened out by the selection of D. A. Bryson, banker and prominent citizen, to succeed the late Nan McCullick.

Soon after the death of the city clerk, Mayor Neal, progressive, recommended the name of a man of his own political belief for the office. The council, being in a majority democratic, refused to ratify the appointment, holding that the office should rightfully go to a member of the dead clerk's family. In turn Mayor Neal suggested other citizens, but all of them were rejected by the council. In the meantime the city's business suffered.

No warrants were paid and none of the city's creditors or employes have been able to draw their money for several months. Finally, the three democratic members of the council, being in the majority, voted to install Pliny McCullick, son of the late clerk and a democrat, in the office pending an agreement with the mayor and two progressive members of the council. This action, however, did not remedy the situation.

Mayor Neal refused to recognize any of McCullick's acts as official, claiming that he was not legally holding office. Council met regularly and adjourned, the mayor and the progressive members refusing to participate until a regularly elected clerk was installed. Here matters dragged for several weeks.

An attorney for the state board of accounts visited the city. There was finally an agreement placating both political factions. Mr. Bryson's appointment was ratified and he in turn named Miss Bess McCullick, a daughter of the dead clerk, as his deputy. She took charge of the office today.

CITY "DRY" LIST IS VALID.

Huntington, Ind., Oct. 5.—Judge S. E. Cook in circuit court has sustained a demurrer in the case of James Shively against A. J. Rosebrough, city judge, in which Shively sought to prove that Judge Rosebrough had no authority to place his name on the "dry" list. Judge Cook held that the complaint was not good.

Judge Rosebrough will now bring suit against Shively and has already issued a warrant charging him with carrying concealed weapons. Shively is also said to have been obtaining liquor, although his name is on the "dry" list, and Judge Rosebrough says that he has learned how the liquor is obtained and that action in this regard may follow.

VAN WERT CHURCH DEDICATED.

Van Wert, O., Oct. 5.—The beautiful new St. Mark's Lutheran church building, which has been recently completed and which the congregation has been enabled to build through the generosity of the late Marvin Woodruff and John Strandler, was consecrated to the divine service Sunday with appropriate ceremonies. The day was further made memorable because of the fact that the date was also the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the local congregation. The dedicatory exercises were held at the morning service and the evening was given to services celebrating the fiftieth anniversary.

WHAT WOULD YOU DO?

There are many times when one man questions another's actions and motives. Men act differently under different circumstances. The question is, what would you do right now if you had a severe cold? Could you do better than to take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy? It is highly recommended by people who have used it for years and know its value. Mrs. O. E. Sargent, Peru, Ind., says: "Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is worth its weight in gold and I take pleasure in recommending it." For sale by all dealers.—Adv.

ORDERS JUDGE TO FINE SELF.

WHY NOT PUBLISH IT?

When you want a fact to become generally known, the right way is to publish it. Mrs. Joseph Kallaus, Peru, Ind., was troubled with belching, sour stomach and frequent headaches. She writes: "I feel it my duty to tell others what Chamberlain's Tablets have done for me. They have helped my digestion and regulated my bowels. Since using them I have been entirely well." Easy to Darken Your Gray Hair

You can Bring Back Color and Lustre with Sage Tea and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. For 50 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use tonic called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant. You will also discover dandruff is gone and hair has stopped falling.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and look years younger.—Adv.

Has a Greater Disaster Than War Been Brought Upon Us by Conflict?—What Cholera Means—How It Travels and Kills.

Have the war lords brought disaster to the wohle world?

Look to the east! There comes Asiatic cholera, brought to the threshold of civilization by this last deadly act of militarism.

It is not a danger alone to the armies. It is a danger to whole nations. To the whole earth.

In the Austrian and Russian armies dozens of cases have been reported and the ravages of the disease have begun to take on the proportions of an epidemic.

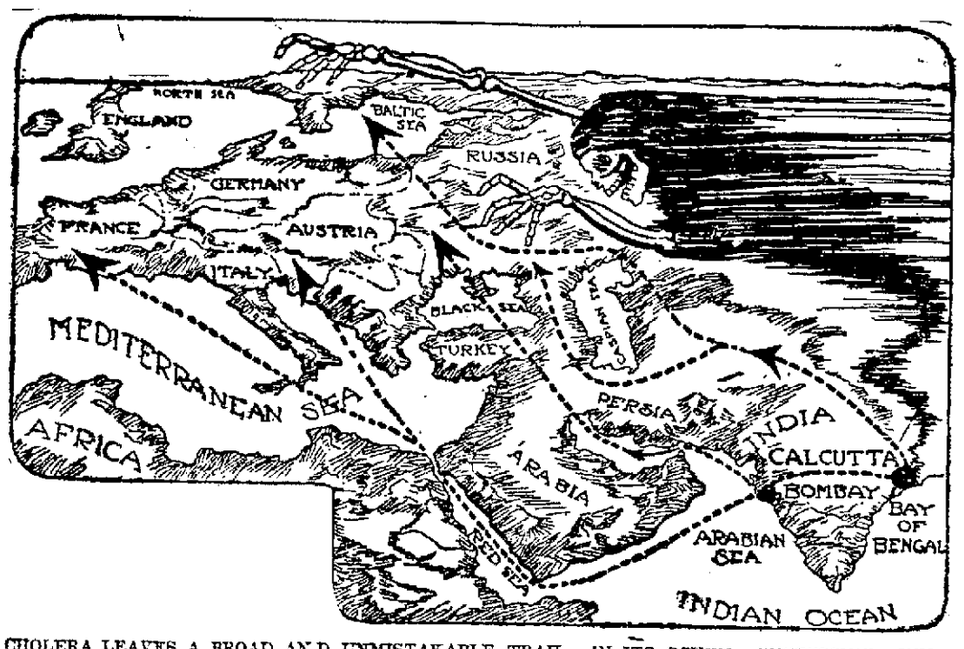
What is cholera?

It is one of the deadliest scourges of mankind. It is worse than smallpox and as bad as bubonic plague. In the seventeenth century—as Black Death—it swept over Europe and killed one quarter of the population, 25,000,000 people.

Seven times in the past century it appeared in the west and in each visit the mortality was frightful. On its appearance in the south of Europe in 1883, 250,000 people died. Before it could be checked in the north 10 years later 378,000 people succumbed. Of these victims over 8,000 lost their lives in Hamburg alone where the disease found new sacrifices at the rate of 1,000 a day.

Cholera is an intestinal disease and its first symptoms are its victims' death warrant for there is no cure. Complete recovery is rare for the convalescent often contracts diphtheria, typhoid and some disease. In mild cases and with hospital treatment 50 per cent of the victims recover, but lacking nursing 90 per cent of the patients die.

As a rule the patient lingers for several days. At its worst cholera kills its victims two hours after the first symptoms appear.



CHOLERA LEAVES A BROAD AN D UNMISTAKABLE TRAIL. IN ITS SEVEN SUCCESSIVE INVASIONS OF EUROPE IN THE PAST CENTUR Y IT ALWAYS FOLLOWED THE PATHE SHOWN IN THE DIAGRAM. IT IS TRAVELLING THE SAME ROUTE TODAY.

For 20 years Europe has been kept free from the disease owing to the work of Robert Koch, the famous German bacteriologist. Koch, you know, is the man who found the germ of tuberculosis He followed up that important discovery by isolating the cholera bacillus.

He showed that the comma-shaped organism was transmitted largely through water and food and in the clothes of people from infected regions. As soon as the truth of his discovery was demonstrated, barriers against the scourge were put up in all ports of the world and it has been kept in the Orient for two decades.

Now the bars are down on account of the war. The disease has again appeared and is especially dangerous to armies as the unhealthful lives of soldiers in the field makes them easy victims. In the Crimean war, for example, cholera killed more men than wounds or bullets. In the Balkan war the disease did as much as the allies in conquering the Turks. It is utterly demoralizing for its insidious attack spares no one. The healthy man in the morning may be dead at night and before dying may infect hundreds of his comrades.

The only way of combatting the disease successfully is to isolate its victims, but one patient in escaping quarantine may expose, although indirectly, the whole of Europe.

While the European doctors are working to prevent a panic which will mean the spread of the disease over the entire fighting zone, neutral nations are taking steps to prevent cholera within their boundaries. Italy was first to put up the bars and a day or so ago was followed by America which remembering the 50,000 lives lost in the United States in 1873, is making a rigorous inspection of all ships from the Black Sea and the Orient.

America may, by strong measures, prevent the landing of cholera. And again it may fail. In that connection, it is interesting to note that an American city was hardest hit, in proportion to its population, of any city in the world during one of the cholera epidemics of the last century.

The city was Sandusky, O. The epidemic spread with lightning rapidity through the town and soon caused a panic. The people left their homes in droves and took to the country roads. Bodies lay thick for miles in every direction.

Miss Playfair Sets Aside Social Barrier While Aboard Liner.

San Francisco, Oct. 5.—In order that she might tango with the man who could match her accomplished dancing, On a recent voyage to this port Miss Playfair, daughter of J. B. Playfair, known as the Armour of the antipodes, indulged her passion for the tango every evening with Bert Graham, a dancing instructor.

Graham was a second cabin passenger. Up in the first cabin Miss Playfair accompanied by her mother, was separated from him by all the rules and caste of the sea. But through effective cajolery of Capt. F. P. Evans, the girl was able to have the barrier set aside, and Graham was given entree to the first cabin.

Exhibitions were given by the couple in both cabins, and by the time the Tahiti reached this port most of the passengers had been converted to the tango.

MISS DAHLIA PLAYFAIR.

Miss Dahlia Playfair, society girl and heiress of Australia, succeeded in shattering all the rules of the sea aboard the Union Steamship company's liner Tahiti.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 5. American citizens of foreign birth, who have obtained their citizenship by means of naturalization, must be on their guard if they leave America and go back home while the war is in progress.

There is only one nation of the seven now at war with which the United States has a naturalization treaty, and that one is England. A naturalized Englishman may return to Great Britain without danger of being seized for military service.

As to the naturalized German-American, he is very likely to be forced into military service should he return to his home country during the war.

As to an Austrian or Hungarian returning to his home: If he was accepted and enrolled as a recruit in the army before the date of emigration; if he was a soldier when he emigrated; if he was summoned before his emigration to serve in the reserve or militia and failed to obey the call; if he emigrated after war was declared, he must serve. Aside from these exceptions, a naturalized native of these countries is treated upon his return to the fatherland as a citizen of the United States.

The French laws on the subject of military service are almost as strict as those of Germany.

The Russian government does not recognize any right in its citizens to throw off their allegiance to Russia by emigrating and becoming naturalized in another country.

Servians returning to their home may be compelled to do military service, even if naturalized as Americans, if such action was without the consent of the Servian government.

The Belgian law is more liberal than any except Great Britain. A former Belgian who becomes a naturalized American is not liable to military service.

Of course, naturalized American citizens are perfectly safe so long as they remain within the jurisdiction of the United States.

Once Worth $250,000, Now He Steals to Escape Starving.

New York, Oct. 5.—The famous Frank England, a man who has made as much as $30,000 in one day, who a few years ago was the owner of a beautiful mansion and a number of fine race horses, has been brought into court here, down and out, and starving, with $1,000 worth of loot on his person which he confessed he obtained by smashing in the door of Mrs. William Howard, of Flatbush, an American woman swimming champion, and robbing the house.

Frank England started his career as a street car conductor, in Brooklyn. One day in 1905 he was given an afternoon off, and he decided to go to the races. He had 75 cents in his pocket, and he decided to do something he had never done before—to bet the money! He won! He placed all his winnings on the next race, and won. He continued to win and when he went home, he had a huge bank roll in his pocket! No more conductor job for him!

He became the most phenomenal plunger in racing history, and his invariable luck simply dumbfounded the most hardened followers of the horses. In 1906 at Saratoga he made three bets on "Carey," owned by a St. Louis sportsman. On the first bet alone he won $10,000. England's biggest "killing" soon followed, when he won $30,000 on Schoolmaster, at Syracuse. Soon the former conductor had piled up a fortune of $250,000, had moved his family into a beautiful mansion, and had wealthy friends all around him.

But a few years later he played "Toots Mooks" for a winner—and found that his luck had changed! On that one race, he dropped $60,000; he never has picked a winner since.

Today England's fortune is gone back into the betting maelstrom whence he drew it; his friends, too, are gone. Starving, homeless, and in desperation, he broke into the home of Mrs. Howard, was arrested while making off with his loot, and now is enjoying for the first time in weeks, a warm bed and a square meal—in jail!

Farmers Reluctant to Bring Products to Municipal Market.

Chicago, Oct. 5.--Reasons for the reluctance of farmers to bring their produce to the new municipal market, a situation which seriously threatens the success of the experiment, were made public today by members of the market commission, who spent yesterday interviewing farmers.

Some farmers said it was too late in the season to change from former practices; others declared that they couldn't afford to spend the day in the market disposing of their products at retail when commission merchants would buy by the wagon load. Still others said that housewives were too particular and would buy only the best, while commission merchants take good and inferior alike.

BEAUTY WHO IS TO WED NAVAL OFFICER.

Mr. and Mrs. Dave Hennen Caruthers, formerly of New York and New Orleans, now living in Chicago, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Frances Isabel Caruthers, to Assistant Paymaster Frederick C. Miss Caruthers has been passing the summer in the East with relatives. She is a niece of Mrs. John A. Morris, of New York and New Orleans, and a cousin of Mrs. Edson Bradley, of Washington.

Caroline Coe's Canning Recipes

Pare, and cut into quarters, dropping into cold water as you do this, to preserve the color. Weigh the fruit and allow three-fourths as much sugar. Cook the quinces gently in boiling water until soft. Skim out the fruit, add the sugar to this water. Skim water well and boil the syrup ten minutes longer. Strain it into jars. Fill to overflowing and seal as usual.

SWEET APPLES.

Core the apple and drop into water. When all are ready pack in heated glass jars. Have at hand a syrup made by mixing a cupful of sugar with a cupful of water, allowing this quantity to every two quart can. Boil hard fifteen minutes, adding the juice of half a lemon for every two cups of sugar. Roll the cans in hot water before putting in the apples. Fill at once with the boiling syrup. Set in a bake pan of hot water and then in a hot oven when the syrup is again at the boiling point, seal immediately. If larger apples are used it is possible to can them the same way only quarter them first.

TART APPLES.

Peel and quarter firm apples, throwing them into cold water as you do so. Weigh the fruit and allow two pounds of granulated sugar to eight pounds of apples. Put the apples into a preserving kettle. Pour over them barely enough cold water to cover them, and let them cook gently until tender. While these are cooking make a syrup by mixing the sugar with water (allowing a cupful of water to each pound of sugar) and bringing to a boil. Cook for four minutes, then lift the tender apples from the water. Lay them gently in the syrup, simmer for a minute and while very hot put into jars. Seal immediately.

PRESERVED CITRON RIND.

Peel and cut the rind into pieces of uniform size, rejecting all the seeds. Lay the rind in salted water for two hours, then drain and lay in cold fresh water for six or seven hours, changing the water three times during that period. Drain, put the citron on to boil in a gallon of water, to which you have added two teaspoonfuls of alum. Stew until tender, drain, and lay in cold water.

Make a thick syrup of sugar and water, and when it boils cook the rind for fifteen minutes. Remove the rinds, pack in jars. Add to the syrup in the kettle enough lemon juice and ginger root to flavor it. When very thick, fill the jars with the boiling syrup and seal.

The changes in the Hammond district, which was eliminated, were distributed equally among the remaining districts. The financial report showed a large increase in receipts for the year.

GERMANS CAPTURE 3 ANTWERP FORTS

Berlin, Oct. 5.—(by wireless to Sayville)—An official report from the German army headquarters says that in the siege of Antwerp the forts of Lierre, Waelhem and Koenigshoyckt and the intermediate redoubts, with 30 guns, have been taken.

"Thus a breach has been made in the outer circle of forts," the report adds, "rendering an attack on the inner circle of forts and the town itself possible."

BY WAY OF LONDON.

London, Oct. 5.—(10:26 a. m.)—A dispatch to Reuters Telegraph company via Amsterdam, gives an official statement issued at the German headquarters on the evening of Oct 4. It says:

"In the western theater the battle on the right wing and in the Argonne district is proceeding successfully.

"The operations off Antwerp and in the eastern theater have been carried out according to plan and without fighting."

The Antwerp correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, telegraphing regarding the fighting around Antwerp, under date of Saturday, says:

"The Germans continue their desperate efforts to capture Antwerp. They are in a desperate hurry to accomplish it, pounding away unceasingly with their artillery at Forts Waelhem and Wavre St. Catherines and flinging their infantry forward in frantic efforts to break through.

"Their losses have been enormous and the number killed are estimated as high as 8,000 during the present movement.

"The Belgians adopted a clever ruse at Waelhem. After the bombardment had lasted several hours the fort ceased to reply, whereupon the German staff, thinking the fort out of action, ordered the infantry to advance in close formation. The Belgian gunners waited until they could see the whites of their eyes and then opened a murderous fire.

"Thus far the forts in the outer ring of the Antwerp defenses have suffered little harm from the German bombardment. The German big guns are not being worked by regular soldiers, but by men in citizens' clothing, who wear only an armlet to indicate their military occupation. Undoubtedly these men are employes of the Krupp factory, hastily summoned to replace the losses among the regular gun layers. The heaviest German guns are located north of Vilvorde, where foundations of reinforced concrete have been prepared.

"The German shells have practically wiped out most of the little villages and hamlets in the outer circles of the Antwerp defences. The Germans still hold Malines, although at a heavy cost, the town is subject to a constant bombardment from the other forts.

ARE YOU MAKING THE MOST OF VEGETABLES?

"Search every cook book for the best ways of preparing vegetables. All vegetables have possibilities, and can be made most savory by the woman who really knows how to cook," is the advice Mrs. Katherine Hoenlein, member of the mayor's committee of food investigations in New York, gives to housekeepers who economize on food cost.

Peas, beans and lentils are all equal to meat in nutrition, and can be made into many appetizing dishes—purees, stews, soups, etc. And in planning your menu don't forget rice, especially the natural brown rice, which contains more nutriment than the polished rice. In a curry with salmon or shrimp, or as a border with warmed-over meat and gravy, or as a vegetable with butter sauce, rice is a valuable article of food.

Soups should be made from the liquor of every vegetable cooked, with a little milk, oleomargarine or butter added. The water from the vegetables, which the American cooks throw down the drain, contains the mineral salts or the vital element of the vegetable, and should never be wasted. Rice water also, which is usually discarded, forms a valuable base for soup.

TWO PAIRS ELOPE TO HILLSDALE.

Ormsby, both of Ossian, Ind., who were joined in wedlock by Rev. J. Will at the Presbyterian manse, and the same minister officiated for Thomas E. George and Miss Georgia S. Davis, both of Auburn, Ind.

BIG DEVELOPMENTS THOUGHT IMMINENT

Paris, Oct. 5.—(7:20 a. m.)—When the long drawn out battle in the north was resumed today there was a feeling in many quarters that decisive developments were imminent. Consequently this afternoon's statement of the war office on the battle of the Aisne, unique in the history of battles, was awaited with the greatest interest.

While the French realize that the battle has not yet been won, it does not seem to many of them that it can now be lost. If the allies win no doubt is felt that they will pay for it, the sacrifice on both sides already being great.

The tone of the official communications has furnished the best reasons for the hope on the part of the French, although the announcement of the visit of President Poincaire to the front was an additional factor for the confidence and optimism felt in regard to the intense struggle. His action is generally commented on as indicating that success is at hand.

Despite the hope of the French, the military critic, Lieut.-Col. Rousset, declares that the battle still can last for some time, pointing out that modern encounters last as long as certain campaigns formerly did. In 1859 the situation was settled in two months, while in 1870 it took thirteen weeks, the fighting after Sedan and Metz being merely a contest for honor.

In the furious fighting now going on, Lieut.-Col. Rousset says, neither adversary can claim what Napoleon called the result.

With the shifting of the battle scenes the railroads are resuming traffic through a number of cities which had been occupied by Germans. From Epernay the news comes that the Germans resected the lines of Epernay in the important champagne district.

Col. Du Paty Clam, a celebrity of the Dreyfus case, is among the wounded in Paris.

CHICAGO GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—Wheat advanced today, influenced by a rise in prices at Liverpool. After opening ¾c to 1½c higher, the market here made a slight additional gain.

The close was firm, ⅝c to ¾c above Saturday night.

Corn showed some firmness with wheat and as a result of unsettled weather, the opening, which was ½c to ⅝c higher, was followed by a moderate reaction.

The close was steady at ⅞@½c to ½@⅝c net decline.

Profit taking on the part of longs tended to restrain buying of oats.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

Since Saturday a western storm has been spreading slowly eastward, and during the last twenty-four hours rains have been quite general from Montana, Wyoming and Utah eastward to the Mississippi. In the extreme northwest the rain has turned to snow, which is reported from western Montana, northwestern Wyoming, and portions of the British northwest. While cloudy weather has prevailed over much of the central and eastern states, the rainfall east of the Mississippi has been confined to the east gulf and south Atlantic coast districts, where rains have been of daily occurrence for the last week.
Moderately warm weather has continued over the central and eastern states, but much cooler weather has appeared in the northwest. Freezing temperatures have occurred in the extreme northwest and frosts are reported as far southeastward as South Dakota and Nebraska.
Fair and warm weather will continue in this section tonight, but it is probable that showers will overspread this section by Tuesday, accompanied by cooler weather.

PROMINENT MEN OPEN NEW ADDITION LATTER PART OF WEEK

John B. Franke, of the Perfection Biscuit company; Walton H. Ingham and Eugene M. Fitch, of the Fitch & Sons agency, owners of "Fairfield View Place," make the following announcement:

Many people within the past three weeks called or phoned Monroe W. Fitch & Sons relative to improvements to be put in at "Fairfield View Place," located just east of Fairfield avenue on Pontiac street. This agency has been unable to give the public much information about improvements or prices of lots to date. This they regret, but promise, however, a plat of the addition in not later than next Sunday's Journal-Gazette, and the prices of the lots will be very low, considering location and the many improvements to be put in on the drive.

Within a few days, comparatively speaking, we will be able to show you what we believe will be the most beautiful six-room house in the city, which is now being built on the addition at the north end of the court. Don't buy a home until you see this property. Telephone Monroe W. Fitch & Sons' office or residence any time during the day or night and they will give you all the information possible. We are sure that you will be interested if you desire to buy a lot or a home at a low figure in the best location in Fort Wayne. Phones—Residence, 371 Bell; office, 373; residence, 1746 Home; office, 1360 and 1361.

MAKES OUT ITINERARY.

County Agent C. Henry Plans Meetings for the Coming Week.

County Agent C. Henry, agricultural agent for Allen county, who is making a tour of this county and giving talks on the selection of seed corn preliminary to the great seed selection day, Saturday, October 10, has made out his itinerary for the coming week and is as follows:

Tuesday morning—Springfield township.
Tuesday afternoon—Cedar Creek.
Wednesday morning—Lake township.
Wednesday afternoon—Aboite township.
Thursday morning—Milan township.
Thursday afternoon—Maumee township.
Friday afternoon—Eel River township.
Monday afternoon he spoke at district No. 1 school house in St. Joe township and the meetings for the week will be held in the Center school houses of each township. Farmers are displaying great interest in the work that the county agent has been doing.

In the last year the revenue cutter service saved 327 persons from death or peril, took 264 persons off shipwrecked vessels, destroyed thirty-one derelicts and saved other derelicts to the value of $18,000.

HOME VALUE TALKS
No. 5

West Shawnee lots are 40 feet wide and most of them 140 feet deep—all plenty large for the six room houses on them. This free "breathing space" is worth real money when it comes to home values. Consider then, how moderate are the West Shawnee prices, $3,850 to $4,500.

Leo Bogner and William Hamilton were fined $50 and costs and given fifty days in jail each and Charles S. Strob and Walter Wilkinson or Wilson were fined $55 and given fifteen days in jail each, all of them being charged with disorderly conduct. The quartet came from Decatur on a joy ride Saturday night. At the Hotel Edwin Bogner and Hamilton started a row with Carl Herford, the bartender, who tried to get the men out of the saloon and take Wilkinson, who was helplessly drunk, with them. The pair wanted trouble and allowed they could clean up all the saloonkeepers and bartenders in town, and when Officers Charles Westerman and Michael Laughlin tried to put a quietus on the brewing trouble further allowed that a Fort Wayne policeman didn't look any bigger than anybody else. The men had clubs handy and they walloped Herford over the head, cutting a bad gash above his right eye. Then the coppers cut loose and had to mace the drunken and infuriated pair into submission. Bogner was badly used up and as an exhibit in police court was interesting. Wilkinson got away during the fight and went to the Pennsylvania station, where he committed an indecedent offense and was arrested for drunkenness. It was not known at the time that he was a participant in the affair at the hotel. Bogner was taken to the hospital, where it was found his injuries were not dangerous. The fellows all promised ned to come back to Fort Wayne to look for trouble, in consideration of which the jail sentences were suspended.

Another Saloon Fight.

Perry Carpenter, charged with disorderly conduct, looked as though he had been used as a buffer for a head-on collision. His head was split, both eyes were blacked and his face was highly ornate with carbons cuts and bruises. He and a man named Walter Scott tried to put on a wrestling match in Sam Sloman's saloon, Harrison and Pearl streets, Saturday, over the protest of the proprietor. They prevented Sloman from calling the police over his own telephone, and while he was turning in an alarm from a nearby drug store the two went at it and put on a vicious rough and tumble fight. Scott got away before the officers arrived. Carpenter was told to go and sin no more.

Just by Way of Contrast.

Tony Bateman, a simple-minded, hard-working man who resides with his sisters on St. Joe boulevard, got drunk at home Sunday from a neighbor's bottle and became nossy. His sister telephoned for the police and he was arrested. Judge Kerr fined him $1 and costs. The arresting officer testified that Tony was harmless and was always industrious. Then came Charles Davis, a police character and confirmed thief, who a few months ago completed seventy days in jail for robbing a man, and who had done jail time previously. Davis once stole the bell of a church that had burned at Huntertown, and sold it in Fort Wayne, for which he served time. Davis has been detained by the police for investigation in connection with the murder of Harry Shaw, whose body was found in the St. Mary's river nearly four years ago. This time Davis was drunk when arrested. He was admonished to continue along paths of rectitude and turned loose.

Paroled Convict Mildly Dealt With.

John Campbell, a convict paroled from Michigan City prison several months ago for assault with intent to kill at Elkhart, Ind., tried to pull a hold-up on Main street at 1:30 Sunday morning when, with a companion who is unknown, he assaulted George Young, 2020 Nelson street, and was prevented from robbing him by Detective Sergeant Walter Immel, who heard the men plan the job, and got on the scene just after Young had been knocked down at the alley between Calhoun and Harrison streets. Campbell ran and Detective Immel pursued him to Columbia street, where Campbell gave the officer a fierce battle, striking, biting and kicking with terrible fury. For this Campbell got $10 and costs and ten days. The court shut off Detective Immel in peremptory fashion when the officer sought to testify as to Campbell's criminal record, but Prosecutor Frank Dubin insisted on having it and it went in.

Bound Over to Circuit Court.

Louis Beaver and Roy Smith, charged with petit larceny, were sent over to the circuit court under $1,000 bond each. They were toting a forty-pound roll of copper, stolen from the Frank Gruber boiler works on Barr street, when Detectives Brennan and Rundell picked them up Saturday night. Recently, it is said by the police, Beaver stole forty pounds of tin foil from Abe Fields, a junker.

Grabbed Money and Ran.

Last July Cy Cross, a negro, was employed to help Robert Dickert, another negro, get his baggage to the interurban station. At Main street and Maiden lane Cross demanded his pay and while Dickert was dishing a quarter from a handful of money Cross grabbed a $20 gold piece and fled. He disappeared from the city and upon his return a few days ago was arrested on a warrant issued shortly after the theft. Cross admitted grabbing the money, but offered as extenuating circumstances that he and Dickert had stopped to shoot craps on the sidewalk and that he was cleaned up for $17 and wanted his money back. He got $15 and costs and fifteen days in jail. The crap-shooting story was an interesting myth, evidently invented for the occasion.

Other City Court Cases.

George Stanton and "Beans" Crawford, charged with drunkenness, were held under bonds of $100 each until Oct. 9, while the police investigate their possession of some merchandise they had been peddling.

Al Ort and William Voelker, drunks, were turned loose, and Howard Frazier, another drunk, was fined $1 and costs.

Florence Young, a feeble minded youth held for several weeks on a loitering charge, was again continued under bond.

Custro Trio, charged with loitering, was released after Officer Pattee had testified that the foreigner had been persistently following women on the street.

Queenie Gaines, charged with adultery, had consented to live until Monday morning, and was in court as she had contingently promised to be. She was continued until Tuesday and allowed to go.

FINDS STOLEN MOTORCYCLE.

FIND STOLEN CLOTHING.

BLUES TAKE EIGHTH STRAIGHT.

Monroeville, Ind., Oct. 5.—The Monroeville Blues won their eighth straight by defeating the Decatur Stags in an interesting game by the score of 5 to 4. Distel of Fort Wayne, pitching for Decatur, might have won had it not been for bad support. This was his first defeat in fourteen games. Grimes, for the locals, was in good form, having twenty-one strikeouts to his credit. Score by innings:

Observance of Peace Sunday at Washington is Notable.

Washington, Oct. 5.—The American nation on its knees praying to Almighty God to end the great world struggle was the spectacle presented to the belligerents yesterday.

President Wilson and the members of his cabinet, senators and members of congress, the chief justice and associate justices of the United States supreme court—all officialdom. In fact, was in the churches of the national capital yesterday leading the American people in this united prayer.

With them were the representatives of other neutral nations. A number of the agents of belligerent countries also attended church. They did not officially participate, however, in this unique ceremony. The president attended the Central Presbyterian church.

In this way there will be brought home to the fighting states the deep religious feeling of America and the method of its expression in behalf of peace. That it will exert a real influence upon European thought and facilitate the mediation of the president there is not the slightest doubt.

Further to emphasize this day of prayer the state department advised all the American representatives accredited to the belligerent nations of the president's proclamation. In accordance with the appeal therein set forth these representatives attended services in churches of Europe and uttered their prayers for the early cessation of the struggle. So from various parts of the world, including the United States, rose the fervent hope that Almighty God would intervene to terminate the terrible war.
